Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, some months ago there was introduced into the Senate a bill which became known by the title "Jaspan Parole Ripper." It has received various interpretations, one of which was that it was an agreement by Democrats to help the Governor to rip out the parole law that was passed in the 1941 session. I am happy to say that history now records the fact in connection with ripping the parole board it now bears the seal of approval and the sanction of the Republican party and the Governor, and has been divested of any possible suggestion that the Democratic party could have any hand in this stab in the back of a good and honest governmental function. Now that that is clear, Mr. Speaker, let us talk about the bill.

For many years the matter of the commutation of sentence and parole in the Commonwealth was conducted by a loose and leaky system.

I remember some years ago during my infant days in politics when discussing a certain candidate for high office, a good Republican friend of mine who was advocating his election said to me "Why, he's a swell candidate and he's a good fellow to the boys, because when he was Lieutenant-Governor some years ago and was Chairman of the Pardon Board all you had to do to get a person out of jail was to go to him and you got your job done."

For fear of offending Members on the other side I shall not mention the name of the former Lieutenant-Governor. I mention the incident merely as an example of what happenings were permitted in Pennsylvania in the matter of rehabilitation and relief of criminals, or let us say persons who have violated the law and were incarcerated for their trouble.

Back in 1935, if memory serves me correctly, a commission was appointed to study the entire problem of parole in Pennsylvania. The commission was headed by Judge James Gay Gordon of Philadelphia, a jurist of high intellect, great sincerity and of unquestioned honesty and reputation, as independent as any man could be in public life, and who served Philadelphia and Pennsylvania to the everlasting credit of that city the state and himself. After years of painstaking study and consultation with many persons and many agencies in the Commonwealth a model parole bill was presented to this House in 1939. After serious consideration by that body made up then by a majority of Republicans in both the House and the Senate, the bill received approval and became law when it was signed by Governor James—rather I should say when it reached him he approved the bill, but regretted that he had to veto it because it lacked one ingredient that would have made it effective, and that was an appropriation. I am very sorry that that little detail was overlooked then, because if it had not been the commission would have been appointed, and by 1941 when the Democratic party had a majority in this House it could have saved the life of the act and the commission would then have had two years of experience upon which we today could intelligently deliberate.

However, in 1941 the bill was again presented, and this time with the proviso of an appropriation. The bill was passed by a Democratic House, was passed by a Republican Senate and was then signed by Governor James. It is one of the few things he did that I wholeheartedly approve. I did not approve, of course, of his long delay in appointing the Commission so that it might get down to work, and I should not like to suggest even that it was a part of a plot of the Governor to so long delay the appointment and the functioning of the Parole Board and the incoming Parole Commission so that when this Commission came into being we could be given the thoroughly fallacious argument that the Commission was not doing a good job. The Parole Commission cannot tell you that by experience it has done a good job because it hasn't had enough life to give us today a history of accomplishments which would indicate to us whether it was a good plan or a bad plan.

We are faced with a problem, we are faced with the statement that the Commission is not good, and we are asked now to strip the Commission of its very best feature without having had the opportunity of seeing the operation of this feature in actual practice.

Some months ago the Philadelphia Record presented the arguments that were made on behalf of the Parole Commission at a public hearing before the Senate, and it presented the arguments of outstanding citizens of the Commonwealth whose opinion was not prejudiced and whose position was not biased. Each person appearing before the Senate hearing testified in favor of the new board and pleaded for more time for it to accomplish a job to present on the merits of its accomplishments its position in the State's governmental structure.

The Philadelphia Record very vividly showed the array of citizens of the Commonwealth, both deceased and living who if alive and present would have testified for the parole system. One of the gentlemen who might have testified on behalf of ripping out the parole board and sending it back to the good old days was the notorious and infamous Blackie Zukowski, who went to jail for ninety-nine years for not only many crimes against the peace and the dignity of the Commonwealth, but against the morals and the safety of the people. I disagreed when he was sent to jail for ninety-nine years, because I do not believe that is good penology, but that of course is another question. Blackie Zukowski was not a dummy, Blackie Zukowski was a smart one, because he had to be smart to evade the law as long as he did, to roll up the crimes that he did, and Blackie Zukowski was a good boy for almost ten years.

I had occasion recently, Mr. Speaker, to visit the Eastern Penitentiary in Philadelphia to talk to a person who was asking for representation to present a case before the parole board for commutation. He had served nine years and three months of a ten to thirty years sentence for highway robbery. I asked him whether during his time in prison he had met Blackie Zukowski and he said he had. He said as a matter of fact he had become a great pal of Blackie's, and I asked him what he thought of Blackie. He said Blackie was an all right guy, but he said Blackie was a smart one. If you didn't play ball with Blackie be careful, and almost everybody in jail played ball with Blackie, so he had his way. But Blackie was able to convince a pardon board under the old system that he should be free, and maybe Blackie made the bargain that he wanted to, because he felt that he would rather die in jail; he would rather take his chances beating the law, but he missed, and with regret must I admit that we in Pennsylvania permitted Blackie out on the highways again, so that within a year he shot and killed an innocent citizen of the state of New Jersey, for which he paid the supreme penalty.

Maybe Blackie didn't care whether he lived or not, but he probably felt a fast life was the best one, he would rather not linger long before he met his Maker.

Then the Philadelphia Record expressed the opinion of other famous criminals including Dannie Day who was released on parole and eventually landed on the hot seat. He went there with a lofty demeanor the same as other notorious criminals who have brought disgrace upon Philadelphia and Pennsylvania.

The new parole board, I couldn't say whether it would be perfect because it had no chance to prove it, nor could I say it would have been imperfect because we have no chance to prove that either. If it were imperfect I should be one of the first to come here to do what we have been doing all session long, amending bills which we found not to be perfect, to make the law better, but not to come here and rip out a law which we found not to be to the entire satisfaction of everyone. That is what we are doing now, at least that is what we are being asked to do, to rip out an advance in government and an advance in the administration of government that has had no chance to live.

Many of the features of the old parole bill are alleged to be in this bill, but like the 1939 bill that was passed without an appropriation, we are asked to pass a bill without teeth, or at least to enact a bill with soft teeth, so that no one will get hurt. We are asked to take a reform in government, which should be kept on a high plane and out of politics, out of any possible party consideration, and give a Governor,—and that goes for any Governor,—Governor Martin or any man who may be hereafter elected in the Commonwealth, the right to appoint persons to administer, in the various districts in Pennsylvania, the real machinery of the parole law.

I do not deny that the Governor would make very fine appointments, and I cannot deny that he would not appoint people who would be honest and sincere and would do a good job, but let us, as the gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Lovett, has so frequently said, be fair. Let us admit that we often with the little bit of patronage that comes to our table appoint who we hope will do a job but we are quite sure won't do a job, and I admit for the record that in the past I have been guilty, not by intent, but at least by results. I know that the gentleman is honest enough to admit that he is not perfect, and I believe that when we finally sit down and chat with him around the table he would admit that most likely he would appoint some person merely to suit the convenience of some sections of the state. It would be fatal if only one of the ten supervisors would turn out to be a politician who had no scruples, because supposing that he would be assigned to the Philadelphia area, under his jurisdiction would be the Eastern State Penitentiary, and under his jurisdiction he would have the resting place and the home of many of our citizens who went the wrong way, men who in many instances leave the prison walls only to make a bet on how soon they might come back again, the people who come out to do harm to our neighbors, our friends and maybe even to ourselves.

Another subject I should like to touch upon is a peculiar sort of thing, something brand new, that was not in existence under the old law. It is provided that in every instance where parole is granted or denied by the parole board the reasons must be filed. I believe there is a provision for appeal to the pardon board, which means only one thing, that the right of appeal to the pardon board, which we are trying to get away from will overcome, revoke, rescind, recommit, do everything that we do to pickle things and overcome any decent consideration of particular cases, so that the effectiveness of the parole system again rests in the hands of a pardon board, a system which the originators of the new system sought to get away from.

I have the highest respect for the present pardon board. I do not say this because I have a case before them coming up in two weeks. I have no reason to suspect their honesty and integrity,—in fact I shouldn't even say that,—I believe they will do a swell job, but that is not what we are talking about; we are talking about a pardon board as an institution, we are talking about a pardon board eight or ten or twelve years from now; we are talking about a system that is defective and not about people who are defective, and that, Mr. Speaker, is the story. The question is whether we shall as representatives of the people be fair; whether we are going to rescind our actions of two years ago because someone somewhere is dissatisfied.

Let the man or men who are living today, and I am not talking about the criminals who have been paroled, but let the man who is alive today who opposes this bill, the man in public office or the man in private life who has never been through the mill but who is interested in the repeal and the breaking down of our parole system, let him appear and give us a plan of any sort or a reason of any kind why the system proposed in the 1941 act is not good. The mere fact is that they have not appeared up to this time, either in committee, in secret or in public. Why have they not come? It leads me to but one conclusion, that that person would have to hang his head in shame in explaining his opposition to the 1941 law, that he would be doing so with tongue in cheek because I think he couldn't conscientiously and sincerely dispute that the 1941 act and the system it put into effect is a good system, and he could not honestly say that the system had a chance to show what it was worth.

I ask you, Members of the House, to forget a few political jobs, and to think of one person who might meet a violent death by one mistake that might be made by one person being paroled improperly. On that one basis think of the saving of one life, think of that one bad crime, think of the one bad consequence, and let that be enough for you as it is for me to make me utterly and unreconcilably opposed to any tampering with the parole system as we have it now, until such time as it proves its worth or until such time as it shows that it cannot have our confidence any longer.

Mr. ALSPACH. Mr. Speaker, I would like to say a few words to clear up a little error. In the first place I do not think there is any person in the House who is more interested in efficient proper parole system, and I do not think that any political party is more interested in having an efficient, proper, well-managed, well-run parole system. I do not think that there is any political party that is more anxious to divorce itself as a political party from a parole system than is the Republican party, because I think any person, partisan as you may be, must recognize that tampering with the penal institutions, correctional control and rehabilitation is dynamite.

The bill which we have before us is quite a good deal different from other bills which have been introduced in these two Houses on the same subject. The present bill which we have before us does simply one or two things, and I would like to call the attention of the Members of the House to these particular things.

In the first place, it reduces the present parole board from five members to three members. It reduces the salaries of the members of the parole board. It provides for district supervisors up to ten in number, and it provides for the parole officers to do the case work.

The only difference between this bill and the prior bill is that the board is now scheduled to be comprised of three members instead of five, that we have district supervisors up to ten, and that these particular persons are appointed by the board with the consent of the Governor.

I am not asking you Members of the House to support this bill merely because of the reduction in cost in government, laudable as that may be, I am not standing here and suggesting that because it might save the Commonwealth $100,000 a year we should pass it for that reason.

I am not stating that; I don't think there is any price that can be paid that would be too much for a proper control of this problem, but I do wish to point that out in passing, because it deserves your attention.

We have been besieged the past few months by various bodies, particularly emanating in the city of Philadelphia to oppose this particular legislation, to oppose Senate Bill No. 18, I think it was, the so-called Jaspan bill. From the time it was introduced up to the present time we have been besieged practically every week by pamphlets, bulletins, letters, and so forth from associations. There are several things in this bill, before passing on to some other situation to which I wish to call your attention. I would call your attention when talking about reduction from five to three, it seems to me to serve no purpose whatsoever to have a five person board when three can accomplish the same purpose and get the same results.

The members of the board are supposed to be a policy determining group of men and are not charged with administrative duties, not charged with ministerial tasks, and if that be so, then certainly we can get along just as well with a board of three as we can with a board of five as we have at the present time. Under the working of this bill and the working of a prior bill under which we are operating, when a person seeks parole he makes out an application, and the parole officer visits him. The parole officer goes over his case, reviews all the facts, prior record, along with the recommendations of the various penal authorities, the judge and district attorney, and decides whether or not in his opinion the man merits clemency or parole. He then makes his report. Under the present act that is a duty upon the members of the parole board, these five men. Before this man may be paroled, all visit each and every applicant for a parole and interview him personally which, of course, results in a rather ludicrous situation. You have a complete record of the particular individual, and he, the member of the board goes down to the particular county jail or to the state pen, he has before him a list of all persons whom he is going to interview, he interviews them one by one, talks to them, and on the basis of that talk is supposed to make a recommendation as to whether or not the man is entitled to be paroled. It seems to me, members of the House, that that is a duplication of effort. I certainly think that if a proper personnel is maintained among the parole officers they are thoroughly able and competent to make a report on the various men who have been interviewed, and it would do no particular good to require these members of the board, high-priced, high-salaried men to take up their time to rehash something that has already been gone over once before, and perhaps oftener than that. It seems to serve no particular purpose to have a board of five when a board of three can serve the purpose just as well.

This bill cuts out the position of the director of parole. If we are going to have men on the parole board who are real members, who are worth their salt, they are going to be active and do the job they are appointed to do. They are not going to sit around and let the director of personnel do the work. Therefore, this bill contemplates the abolition of that office. Why should we have that office when there are men on the payroll who are supposed to do that particular chore? I think the answer to that is very obvious, that there is no reason for this particular job, therefore, it is sensible that it be abolished.

When we are speaking about the way this particular act would work, we contemplate that these particular district parole supervisors should more or less remain in their own districts; they should not be jumping jacks, jumping from one corner of the state to another whenever the whim suits them or catches their fancy for the purpose of interviewing persons. They should remain in and be responsible for their own particular district. This is going to save the Commonwealth a lot of money. Between $300,000 and $400,000 is consumed in travelling expenses and paying for junkets across the State by the present board and the present staff which takes advantage of the situation to travel long distances, when the thing could be much more efficiently administered if we were to have the thing set up in workable districts.

Of course there are many other things here which I would like to call to your attention. When these bills were first introduced there was a hue and cry: "We are going to cut out civil service." At the present time there is not a single word in this bill which takes the parole officers from civil service. The way this bill is presently drafted these men are in civil service, and they are the ones who meet the criminals and interview them in the institutions; they are the ones who are going to make the recommendations. If any person has any fear that this is going to be misused, that it is going to be a political football, that it is going to be kicked back and forth, depending upon who can get the ear of a politically appointed parole officer, let him remember, that this bill, Senate Bill No. 554 keeps all the parole officers exactly where they are now, under civil service. There is no thought of taking them out of the civil service act and putting them back into politics, as the expression has been often used. It is not sought to do here anything but provide the best service possible for these men. They are a problem, they are an increasing problem and perhaps after the war is over they may be even more of a problem, so after all, Members of the House, there is no thought on the part of the sponsors of this bill or the Members on this side of the House or anyone connected with the bill to in anyway jeopardize the parole board insofar as the motives and the purposes of this bill are concerned. The only thing we are seeking to do is to set up a bill which is supposed to work, is expected to work, and which does not put too great a demand on personalities; which does not require men to do things which they humanly cannot do.

I don't think there would be any great advantage in standing here and telling at length what his bill does and what it does not do beyond what has already been said. I think most of the opposition at the outset was directed against the civil service feature. As I said before, that is now as it was before; the jurisdiction is the same as it is at present, namely, two years and the provisions of the bill are chiefly the ones I have just outlined, namely, changing the personnel of the board, providing for district supervisors and several amendments which clarify the bill so far as the jurisdiction of the present board is concerned, namely, over a flat sentence, over a general sentence. That briefly is what the bill proposes to do, and if there are any questions I would be glad to try to answer them if humanly possible.

One of the amendments on page 9 requires the trial

judge, the district attorney and wardens of the institutions to submit reports and make recommendations which shall be considered. There are many things that are very meritorious in the bill, and I submit to the Members of the House, if you want to pass a good piece of constructive legislation this is one that is going to reflect credit on this House and the General Assembly. I ask that you vote for Senate Bill No. 554.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the Majority Floor Leader, Mr. Lichtenwalter.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Lehigh permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, might I inquire of the gentleman from Lehigh as to whether or not this is the attitude of the Administration on parole in Pennsylvania?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, I believe that the Administration on one or two occasions, in public expressed the thought that the present Board of Parole was rather an expensive experiment in Pennsylvania, and it probably could be said that this would be an Administration parole bill. I think if this bill passes the Administration will sign the bill.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I desire further to interrogate the gentleman. In the gentleman then stating to the House that the Administration has placed its stamp of approval upon a politically dominated parole system in Pennsylvania?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, there might be various opinions as to a politically controlled system. Now, that might be the opinion of the gentleman from Philadelphia and other people in Pennsylvania, but I do not say that this is a politically controlled system. The only thing that I see is the matter of about eight or not over ten people that were under Civil Service under the prior system that would not be covered under this bill. I certainly don't see that the eight or ten people means that this a politically controlled bill by any means.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, could the gentleman tell the Members of the House then, why in place of the present uniform, exclusive and non-political parole system as passed by the Assembly in the last session, and incidentally by a Democratic House, a Republican Senate and a Republican Governor affixing his signature, why we plan at the present time to replace that with ten politically appointed and politically controlled supervisors in ten sections of the state?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, I believe the gentleman from Lancaster covered a lot of the points with reference to this bill which probably would answer that. I would like to answer that experience has shown that a change of this type, I believe, is very, very necessary for a good, efficient operating parole board in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Mr. LEVY. Did the Majority Leader say a good, efficient Republican parole system, or a good, efficient parole system?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I said, Mr. Speaker, a good, efficient, parole system.

Mr. LEVY. Why then, Mr. Speaker, does the Majority Leader contend that the supervision placed in the hands of supervisors, employees administering the system throughout the Commonwealth is inferior to a politically appointed and politically dominated ten supervisors?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, I would say that change is a very, very essential thing in legislation, and in our past experience we have found that there were many mistakes made, that the present system was certainly not operating to the best efficiency that we on this side thought it should have, and even with the changes made now we will probably have to come back here in sessions in the future and make additional changes to make it a real, good operating board. But for the time being, I certainly see no reason whatsoever that this should be branded a political controlled board or in any way a politically minded parole board or parole system.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, the Majority Leader talks of mistakes made by the parole commission appointed by Governor James. I would like to have the Majority Leader relate to the House some of the mistakes.

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I would yield to the gentleman from Lancaster, Mr. Alspach, who I believe will point out for the gentleman some of the mistakes.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I again would request of the majority leadership of the House the mistakes he is referring to.

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I am asking, Mr. Speaker, that the gentleman from Lancaster, Mr. Alspach, answer the questions.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman stated a moment ago that from his own experience he knows of many mistakes made. I would ask the gentleman, without referring to the gentleman from Lancaster, to tell us what mistakes he is referring to.

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I again yield to the gentleman from Lancaster, Mr. Speaker. I think that he will be able to give the gentleman some of the mistakes that I feel, and I know he feels have been made.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Lehigh yields to the gentleman from Lancaster, Mr. Alspach.

Mr. ALSPACH. Now, Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman repeat the question?

Mr. LEVY. The Majority Leader, Mr. Speaker, made mention through his own experience that he knows of some mistakes made by the James appointed parole commission. I would like to have stated this afternoon in the House these mistakes that were made.

Mr. ALSPACH. Mr. Speaker, one of the mistakes that comes to my attention is the fact that the present board in its infinite or not so infinite wisdom decided that they were going to scrap all the old experienced hands at the parole business, and decided that they were going to have examinations, that they were going to mark papers, and having marked the papers they were going to come up with a certain number of names of those successfully passing the examination who were going to be appointed to that particular position. I think it is public knowledge and public information that many persons who had been with the department as long as thirty-five years,—the Department of Justice,—were superseded by persons who might have graduated from certain social colleges, with certain social degrees.

I am not in position to say it is not a nice thing to be a graduate of a college with a social degree, but I do say that there is a certain advantage, when you go to talk to a person in jail to be familiar with his tactics and his lingo, with the way he feels and the way he thinks, and that an awful lot of the chances for success of a system depends upon the investigator knowing the tricks of the trade.

Mr. LEVY. Will the gentleman from Lancaster explain to the House how Senate Bill No. 554 would correct the situation whereby the employes under the parole system were let out of the system to make way for the Civil Service appointees if in his judgment the bill still carries in it the right to carry Civil Service employes?

Mr. ALSPACH. My answer to that, Mr. Speaker, is one word, philosophy.

Mr. LEVY. I am satisfied that the gentleman has something there, Mr. Speaker. Proceed, Mr. Alspach.

Mr. ALSPACH. I think it has been the attitude, Mr. Speaker, but I say the philosophy behind what has been going on in the present board, that these things should be foisted upon the people and these things should be done, their attitude is expressed by what they have done, and I feel confident that when this bill passes and when a parole board is appointed, that the appointees are going to be good level-headed men who have both feet on the ground and know what it is all about so far as the parole business is concerned.

Mr. LEVY. Does the gentleman from Lancaster then, Mr. Speaker, intend to inform this House that by the passage of Senate Bill No. 554, all the political appointments made prior to the administration of the new parole act of 1941 would then be returned to the parole system as intended under 554?

Mr. ALSPACH. No, Mr. Speaker, we make no such statement. The gentleman knows better than that.

Mr. LEVY. Then how is the gentleman going to correct the mistakes he is talking about, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ALSPACH. I say, Mr. Speaker, that they are an honest group of men on the parole board who set the policies which the board is going to continue to carry out, and I say that the board is going to use judgment in appointing supervisors. A lot of the success of the entire organization is determined by the men who run the thing, and determine the policies. If you have something that is rotten or wrong at the top, you can hardly expect the men to run correctly underneath.

Mr. LEVY. In view of the fact that the Majority Leader has seen fit to yield to the gentleman from Lancaster, permit me to ask what I should have asked the Majority Leader: what are the duties of the ten political appointees, the ten political supervisors going to be under this new act?

Mr. ALSPACH. Mr. Speaker, I have not answered that question because I do not think these political appointees are political supervisors. I mean to say they would be appointed by the parole board by and with the consent of the Governor, and I think it is totally wrong to use the word political in the tone of voice which Mr. Levy uses it because I know what the implications are.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I would then ask the gentleman from Lancaster to give the House an idea as to what the duties are of the ten supervisors throughout the state?

Mr. ALSPACH. Mr. Speaker, I have answered that question, it seems to me, and the answer is so obvious that it is useless to answer it again. For the purpose of simplicity of administration the state would be broken up into districts not exceeding ten in number. There are certain obvious, logical districts into which the state might be broken and divided, and one supervisor would be in charge of the various parole officers who work in the penal institutions in that locality. Philadelphia might be one area, Pittsburgh one area, southeastern Pennsylvania another area, the section up between the mountains another area, and we would have a supervisor in control of the particular parole officers and it is his duty to correlate the work that they do, and supervise them. If there is any answer more obvious than that, I would like to know what it is.

Mr. LEVY. I asked what are the duties, Mr. Speaker. I didn't ask how the districts are constituted. Will the gentleman please answer that question, what are the duties of the supervisors.

Mr. ALSPACH. The duties are to oversee, as implied by the name of supervisor, to look over.

Mr. LEVY. I want to know the duties of the supervisor, Mr. Speaker. The gentleman knows what this bill is all about. Let us not kid about it. This is important.

Mr. ALSPACH. I know it is important, Mr. Speaker. I say the word supervisors means one who supervises if the gentleman wants it in one word.

Mr. LEVY. I understand that a supervisor is one who supervises, but will the supervisor then recommend paroles?

Mr. ALSPACH. I might say, Mr. Speaker, that the parole officer will make the recommendation. That is my understanding.

Mr. LEVY. Then I suggest, Mr. Speaker, that the gentleman from Lancaster read the bill. The supervisors would certainly recommend paroles under the Jones bill. I would like to ask the gentleman from Lancaster—

Mr. ALSPACH. Is the gentleman talking to or interrogating me?

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, will they recommend paroles is what I want to know.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Does the gentleman further desire to interrogate the gentleman from Lancaster?

Mr. LEVY. I do, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Lancaster permit himself to be further interrogated?

Mr. ALSPACH. I will, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LEVY. Will the gentleman from Lancaster, Mr. Speaker, kindly inform the House as to whether under the conditions of Senate Bill No. 554, these ten district supervisors will recommend paroles?

Mr. ALSPACH. Will the gentleman please turn to page 6 and read Section 11:

Each district parole office shall be in charge of a district supervisor who shall be appointed by the board with the approval of the Governor and who shall receive such annual salary not exceeding four thousand five hundred dollars as the board shall determine. Said district supervisor shall be the executive head of the district office to which he shall be appointed and shall have the control, management and direction of all employes of the board assigned to said district subject to the supervision of the board.

Does that answer the question?

Mr. LEVY. I will ask the gentleman from Lancaster, who is a keen student of English, whether they would recommend paroles.

Mr. ALSPACH. Mr. Speaker, I see nothing in the bill that says they do or do not. I cannot conceive of a supervisor being totally oblivious to anything that happened under his supervision. I think that you must agree that a parole supervisor would be a "dumbbell" if he were the head of a group of men, intelligent men under civil service, making reports and recommendations, and who would not know what is going on underneath.

Mr. LEVY. Under the terms of the bill, Mr. Speaker, may I ask the gentleman from Lancaster who is mainly interested in this piece of legislation? Who is going to make recommendations for parole of prisoners?

Mr. ALSPACH. I think the answer is obvious, Mr. Speaker. If the gentleman will read the bill he will find the answer.

Mr. LEVY. My contention, Mr. Speaker, is that the district supervisor will make the recommendation, and I am asking the gentleman from Lancaster if he is not in accord with that statement?

Mr. ALSPACH. Mr. Speaker, I might answer that question by another question. I ask where in the bill it appears that the district supervisor makes the recommendation?

Mr. LEVY. Then I ask the gentleman, Mr. Speaker, when and under what circumstances the parolee is to be returned to prison?

Mr. ALSPACH. I am still waiting for an answer to my question, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LEVY. I have been interrogating the gentleman, Mr. Speaker. If the gentleman feels that he doesn't know enough about Senate Bill No. 554, then let him yield to another Republican Member. Until that time I insist that my interrogations be answered, and not by questions.

My question then is, Mr. Speaker, who is to decide when and under what circumstances parolees are to be returned to prison?

Mr. ALSPACH. The answer to that is obvious, Mr. Speaker. Will the gentleman read the bill and find out? I cannot understand the purpose of the interrogation. If the gentleman will read the bill he will find the answer. He knows the answer and I don't see why he should ask me that question.

Mr. LEVY. Permit me to further interrogate the gentleman. Is it not true that the Jones bill, Senate Bill No. 554, reinforces the control of paroles by these district supervisors when it includes a provision that the board in the future would have a right to certify its reasons for refusing parole? Maybe that is an easy one.

Mr. ALSPACH. Will the gentleman point out the particular paragraph that is in?

Mr. LEVY. I can give the gentleman the same answer, Mr. Speaker. It is obvious, he should read the bill.

Mr. ALSPACH. If the gentleman does not have it before him, might I ask whether the gentleman has read the bill?

Mr. LEVY. Yes, I have, Mr. Speaker. I have read it so thoroughly that I am convinced that the gentleman from Lancaster doesn't know what he is talking about.

Mr. ALSPACH. Mr. Speaker, I wonder why the gentleman couldn't answer questions if he is so familiar with the bill as he says he is? Is there anything more, Mr. Levy?

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, it is unfortunate that a disgraceful piece of legislation such as Senate Bill No. 554 must find its place on the calendar a few hours before we are to adjourn sine die. I don't know what really is behind the strategy of the Republican leadership in the state. Every newspaper within the confines of the state of Pennsylvania is against Senate Bill No. 554. Public opinion as expressed in the press is undoubtedly against it.

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker—

Mr. LEVY. Will the gentleman from Wayne county, Mr. Speaker, get on to selling his poems and leave me alone for a minute?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state his point of order.

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, I wish to correct a misstatement that Mr. Levy just made.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, that is not a point of order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Philadelphia has the floor. That is not a point of order. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia yield?

Mr. LEVY. I will not, Mr. Speaker.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. A question of personal privilege is not in order at the present time. The gentleman from Philadelphia will proceed.

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker. The point is that the gentleman is not talking on the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Philadelphia will confine his remarks to the bill.

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Philadelphia has had the floor about three-fourths of the time during the sessions, and I think he ought to yield.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman is out of order. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy, will proceed.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, there is no doubt in my mind that when the Governor talks about the people of Pennsylvania he knows that the people of Pennsylvania are against destruction of a decent governmental reform. What does the Jones Bill intend to do? It intends to crucify a decent governmental reform on the altar of politics, nothing more and nothing less.

The gentleman from Lancaster amuses me. The gentleman from Lancaster spoke about twenty minutes, he spoke about everything else but why the Republican leadership should approve such a bill. He talks of ten district supervisors. Do you gentlemen know that these ten district supervisors are not only going to recommend paroles but that these ten district supervisors will interview the applicants, will decide when and under what circumstances parolees are to return to prison. They will also supervise parolees, and last but not least I say to the gentleman from Lancaster they will recommend paroles.

If it is the intention of the Republican majority to place the governmental reform as written into the law of 1941 back into the muck of politics, they will undoubtedly be for Senate Bill 554, but I know some Republicans will not. I know some Republicans won't be blindly led by a Senator or by the portion of his party that is attempting by this bill to bring a decent reform back into the mire of inecency.

What does the bill do, gentlemen, aside from the ten supervisors? This is the key to the whole situation: it eliminates enough heads in order to make it easier for political manipulation. I say to the Republican leadership if they can refute that statement let them refute it, but I haven't heard one word in support of the bill that refutes an argument of this kind.

What else does Senate Bill 554 do? It rips out the safeguards to plunge parole into the most unsavory political mess in the history of the Commonwealth.

Recall, gentlemen, that nearly five years ago a Governor's nonpartisan nonpolitical commission had this to say about the parole system of Pennsylvania:

It is essential, Mr. Governor, that the parole system be shielded as completely as possible from the baneful effects of political and other subversive influence. Every witness who appeared before our commission without a single exception emphasized this as the most important safeguard for the efficient administration of parole.

I intended to ask the gentleman from Lehigh, who certainly represents the Republican voice, whether the Jones bill in any manner attempts to conform with the bipartism and nonpolitical desires of the Parole Commission created by this Assembly? No, gentlemen, there apparently is no answer, because the gentleman from Lehigh has no answer. He says something about the dream of the Republican party to effect some economies. I say that is definitely a false issue. If under the rehabilitated parole system in Pennsylvania we have saved one Zukowski within the confines of our Commonwealth, I say it is worth five times as much as the administration of this parole system in Pennsylvania, and the Republican leadership knows it. Let them answer that charge.

What then could be in the minds of men who agree with such assertions, who agree with such charges, and yet in the dying days of a legislative session are here attempting to push through the most disgraceful bill that has yet appeared on the calendar? I say, gentlemen, let us go easy on legislation of this kind.

I heard the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. James, this afternoon talk about monkeys. I say, gentlemen, a vote for Senate Bill 554 is the act of a monkey in attempting to fly from limb to limb on the theory of decent government.

Maybe some of the membership is not familiar with the fallacies of the old parole system as practiced before the act of 1941. I want only to say to them, let them look at the record. Governor James himself when he finally signed the parole bill of 1941 said: "It is something that has been needed", and the only question that resolved itself around that question at that time was the fact that he thought the money was probably not available.

I say to the Republican membership of this House this evening, let us look at all the facts in this case. If you want a politically dominated parole board then that is your prerogative, but let the issue stand out clear and the one issue involved in the passage of this legislation is whether we are willing to crucify a decent governmental reform on the altar of politics.

Mr. ALSPACH. Mr. Speaker, might I say that I sat here listening to the gentleman expostulate at great length, and I perhaps would have been somewhat impressed by his magnificent flow of oratory had it not been for the fact that he wound up in a terrific lather in which he characterized this bill as "the most disgraceful piece of legislation". I have yet to see a bill that he has opposed that was not "the most disgraceful piece of legislation". Every single bill he opposed is disgraceful, but I am very much disappointed in one respect, he failed to characterize this bill as "a fraud on the people" and that is what he has called probably every other bill that he has seen fit to oppose, and I proposed before he sat down to find out whether he would call Senate Bill No. 554 likewise "a fraud upon the people."

I would like to call attention to one thing, and that is that under the workings of the parole system prior to the present act under which we are working we had a system which was floating along on a very small appropriation. You gentlemen know very well that if you want to kill something all you need do is cut off the appropriation by which it can continue operations. If we wanted to kill off anything we would just cut off the appropriation and it would be like a ship at sea without sail in a perfect calm. So in the case of the old parole board they had no money with which to work, and consequently could not hire and employ competent agents sufficient in number to keep up with the increasing problem of parole. There was a wave of opinion in the state that we ought to do something about it. Somebody came along here and suggested we cut off the appropriation. I think and I believe that if the presently proposed parole board is given a chance to operate, is given an appropriation which will enable it to take care of itself, it will be able to get along properly.

There have been abuses,—there are bound to be abuses under any system. I was in a restaurant a few weeks ago and got a rather severe stomach ache. That didn't prove to me that the food was bad; that didn't convince me that I should not ever eat again. I was riding along the road the other day and almost had a blowout because the tire sidewall got wedged. That didn't convince me that all tires are no good. You cannot appraise a system or a principle by one isolated act.

It is true there are abuses; abuses are bound to creep in, but only when we can set up a system in which we have implicit faith and confidence in the men at the head, knowing full well that in principle they are doing the job; that they have set eyes on a proper guiding star and that they are seeking to accomplish a goal, then and then only will we have a system which is going to work. But there are bound to be crimes committed; somebody is bound to be murdered during the next few weeks somewhere in the state; there is bound to be an automobile stolen; certainly, that is human nature. We are never going to find ourselves in such a Utopia as that, but I say the fact that there have been abuses does not condemn the system as a system. It condemns the way the thing may be working. I say to you Members of the House that with a proper appropriation here, with proper supervision, a proper board, a board which has both feet on the ground and is trying to do the right thing, is going in the right direction, I feel that certainly we will have a parole system which is second to none in the United States.

Mr. SAMUEL ROSE. Mr. Speaker, I was very sorry to see certain personal issues injected into the debate on this particular bill, because I think we should consider this on an entirely non-partisan basis. I do not think that any of the Members of the House today are not interested in the problem of the rehabilitation of criminals and proper penology reforms to be followed by the Commonwealth. I admit, and I listened to the testimony before the open hearing in the Senate some time ago in which some of the proponents of the present system admitted that there are certain defects in the present parole laws, certain defects that might well be eliminated. The members of the parole board and Judge Gordon and other persons who were interested in a decent parole system themselves indicated that possibly because of the short time in which this parole board had been working there were certain errors that might arise. However, from a study of this parole bill I do not think these defects have been met, and I want to point out to all those Members of the House here who are interested in a decent parole system in Pennsylvania one fact that has not been brought out in the debate until this moment, and that is that the parole board itself after it has failed to grant a parole would have to certify its reasons for refusing parole.

Gentlemen of the House, you can well realize the burden that this would impose upon the parole board, whether it be a three man board or a five man board. This would put the parole board on the defensive every time an application for parole had been refused, and gentlemen, I wish the Members of the House would realize that there could be political pressure brought by some individuals throughout the state in every case where a parole has been refused. Today the forces of evil are somewhat under control in Pennsylvania. The racketeer and the criminal, because of the passage of the parole bill during the last session of the legislature have been squelched to a certain extent, and I say to you gentlemen of the House that if you were to pass the present bill the forces of evil would rejoice. I appeal to you, not on a partisan basis but as gentlemen who are honestly interested in a decent effective parole system to defeat the present bill.

Mr. GRANT. Mr. Speaker, I have visited the Berks County prison for seven or eight years,—I forget what year I was appointed, and in such capacity I am very much interested in a good parole system I know that before I came up here, because of my associations and contracts with the old parole system that only two members of the old parole system passed a Civil Service examination, and those two members passed because of the additional credits they received because of the fact that they were ex-service men.

I was told before we convened in this session that a bill would be brought up under the parole system for one reason and one reason only. Mr. Alspach has told us that some of the Members who had years of experience failed to pass the Civil Service examination, but he didn't tell us about the qualifications of the men who were qualified to pass and who did pass this Civil Service Examination, and what experiences they had whether or not they are capable of functioning. It all boils down to this, gentlemen, one simple little question, the information that was conveyed to me before this House convened in session was that some of the Members under the old parole system failed to pass that Civil Service examination, and that some bill would be presented to this House, and here it is. It gives an opportunity for the Governor to appoint ten men from the old parole system to ten very responsible jobs.

I say to you that those men may be very high caliber men and they may be qualified to do their duties, but do we believe in the Civil Service system or do we not believe in the Civil Service system? The primary purpose of the parole system is to rehabilitate and, when we are convinced that they have served their time, it serves no good purpose to keep them confined in penal institutions when they have been rehabilitated to the extent that they can go out and be good members of society.

If we vote for this bill in its present form we are only voting for the one reason that was conveyed to me before we came into this session, it gives the Governor the opportunity to appoint those eight men who worked under the old system who failed to pass the civil service examination, and that is the whole bill in a nut shell.

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, I would like to challenge some of the statements made by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy. Mr. Levy stated that all the newspapers of Pennsylvania were opposing this bill. I wish to say that I do not believe ten percent of the newspapers in Pennsylvania opposed this bill. I doubt if there are five percent of the newspapers in Pennsylvania who oppose this bill. If the editors of some of the newspapers understood this bill there wouldn't be over one percent who would oppose it. As far as I can learn there hasn't been a weekly newspaper that has come out and opposed this bill, and I know that Mr. Levy is entirely wrong in making such a statement. The statement that the newspapers are opposed to this bill is just about like the rest of his statements. If I stood on the floor of this House all this afternoon and made the number of misstatements that Mr. Levy has made in this session, I wouldn't come anywhere near to answering that description. This one is just another example. I dare say that not over one percent of the newspapers of Pennsylvania are opposed to this bill, and I think if they understood it they would all be in favor of it.

Further regarding examinations, I wonder if the gentleman knows something about what the examinations are? There are a lot of fool examinations made up by cost experts and by social service workers. I bet there are not five men in this House who can pass those examinations—not five, and it is for that reason that I think this bill, which has a great deal of merit should be passed. All it does is to streamline the parole board. I think you all know that the big manufacturers get out more and more automobiles every year. I wouldn't suggest that we get out a new parole board every year, but when you find that a parole board is ineffective or the carbureter is out of whack, I think it is about time to change the board and get out a new model.

Mr. HOFFMAN. Mr. Speaker, it is not difficult to understand why we should be in disagreement here this afternoon on this measure. Its involvement is really highly important. We are dealing in the final analysis with human souls. It is true that they may be wayward, but they are human just the same, and I think if we could bring our minds to a point where we could look at this controversy from the standpoint of dealing with it on the basis of humane consideration, and with some degree of the milk of human kindness we would get away from the political character of this measure.

I cannot conceive that the Governor, who is now being pre-judged, is so far removed from the responsibility of what this measure means that he would deliberately give his approval to a measure the outcome of which might become disastrous. I feel this afternoon that in dealing with this problem of parole it must be lifted from the strata of politics, and whether we are Republicans or whether we are Democrats it is our bounden duty first to the citizens of Pennsylvania, and second to the society of Pennsylvania that we keep our minds clear on the political aspects and confine our deliberation to the point as to how best we can serve them, how well we can place about them safeguards that will rehabilitate their lives and make them useful citizens to the state and to society.

Because a man goes wrong is no reason why society should forever condemn him. In every good there is some evil and we ought to look at the subject from the standpoint of our obligations to human society and feel gratified that we are not among those who are unfortunately delinquent in their obligations to society. I cannot conceive of any higher responsibility as a Member of this Legislature than to commit myself to do something today that will place around these unfortunate criminals, if you please, some system of efficiency and protection and hope that will enable them in their distress to find themselves again so that they may become redeemed not only in mind but in heart, and find a system and a practice and a principle set up by the state, who after all does regard its obligations to society whether that society be weak or whether it be strong. I say to you men of this House, that I think we shall find ourselves doing a duty today that in the tomorrow we can be glad of when we can lend our endorsement both as Republicans and Democrats, and, still better and more transcending than that, as good citizens of the state of Pennsylvania, interested in the society of Pennsylvania to pass this bill this afternoon, and not from a political standpoint prejudice the Governor of our state, who from my experience with him is elevating his judgment and his conception of his duties on a higher plane than politics. I, therefore, ask you, regardless of your political connection with this House, to support this bill.

Mr. WEISS. Mr. Speaker, I don't believe that the present parole system has been given a fair chance to really find out whether it can operate efficiently or not, and before we could decide as to whether it has been given a fair chance and whether it can operate we should hesitate before we vote for this particular bill. I believe that every Member of this House should know how the judiciary, the judges of the various counties feel about this particular parole system.

I know that the judges of Westmoreland County are unanimous in opposing any change in the present parole system without giving it a fair chance and a fair trial to see if it will operate efficiently. Much study and work has been given to the job of getting the present parole system through, and if you were to discard it and change it against the opinion, I would say of about ninety percent of the judiciary of this Commonwealth, I believe it would be a travesty on justice.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

SENATE MESSAGES

SENATE BILL FOR CONCURRENCE

SENATE BILL No. 589.

An Act to further amend section four hundred two of the act, approved the ninth day of April, one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 343), entitled "An act relating to the finances of the State government; providing for the settlement, assessment, collection, and lien of taxes, bonus, and all other accounts due the Commonwealth, the collection and recovery of fees and other money or property due or belonging to the Commonwealth, or any agency thereof, including escheated property and the proceeds of its sale, the custody and disbursement or other disposition of funds and securities belonging to or in the possession of the Commonwealth, and the settlement of claims against the Commonwealth, the resettlement of accounts and appeals to the courts, refunds of moneys erroneously paid to the Commonwealth, auditing the accounts of the Commonwealth and all agencies thereof, of all public officers collecting moneys payable to the Commonwealth, or any agency thereof, and all receipts of appropriations from the Commonwealth and imposing penalties; affecting every department, board, commission, and officer of the State government, every political subdivision of the State, and certain officers of such subdivisions, every person, association, and corporation required to pay, assess, or collect taxes, or to make returns or reports under the laws imposing taxes for State purposes or to pay license fees or other moneys to the Commonwealth, or any agency thereof, every State depository and every debtor or creditor of the Commonwealth" by providing for audit of the Department of the Auditor General and imposing certain duties upon the Governor of the Commonwealth.

Referred to the Committee on State Government.

CONCURRENCE IN HOUSE RESOLUTION No. 44

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed that the Senate has concurred in the resolution from the House of Representatives, as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 17, 1943.

After the discovery of the Philippine Archipelago four hundred years ago by Ferdinand Magellan, and until 1898 the islands were held and ruled by Spain.

Following the sinking of the Maine in February, 1898, the declaration of war against Spain and the taking of Manila by Admiral Dewey, the Spanish Government ceased therein and was succeeded by United States Military Rule.

In June, 1898, the Filipinos proclaimed their independence with Aguinaldo as President, and within less than a year which was marked by increased hostility toward the United States, the Melolos Constitution was proclaimed declaring the Philippines a Republic.

On the night of February 4th, 1899, the inevitable conflict between the Americans and the Filipinos was precipitated and Aguinaldo declared war on the United States resulting in a struggle which was not terminated until the capture of Aguinaldo by General Frederick Funston, two years later.

Many of the American soldiers who participated in quelling the Philippine insurrection and bringing peace to the islands and their inhabitants and delivering them from starvation, are alive today and are deeply interested in the freedom of the natives and their full and complete independence, which under the terms of the Tydings-McDuffie Act is scheduled to occur in 1945.

The seizure of the islands by Japan will not interfere with the realization of that dream by the Filipinos, for before the day fixed in 1945 for their independence the Japs will have been driven from the Islands and the loyal natives will be better equipped than before to take their place among the free peoples of the world.

Nothing could better serve to mark this epochal event than to have the men who delivered those islands from slavery in 1899 return as Ambassadors of Good Will to the new nation for whose existence they will in great measure have been responsible; therefore be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby memorializes the Congress of the United States to take such measures as may be necessary to furnish free transportation on United States warships or other vessels to and from the Philippines as soon after the cessation of present hostilities as is possible to all those men who formed a part of the expeditionary force that made possible the freedom of the Filipinos and the creation of the new Republic of the Philippines; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be transmitted by the Chief Clerk of the House to the President of the United States, the presiding officers of each House of the Congress of the United States and to each Senator and Representative from Pennsylvania in the Congress of the United States.

RESOLUTIONS CONCURRED IN BY SENATE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed that the Senate has concurred in the resolution from the House of Representatives, as follows:

In the House of Representatives, May 5, 1943.

RESOLUTIONS REPORTED FROM COMMITTEE

Mr. YEAKEL asked and obtained unanimous consent to report from the Committee on Rules as committed House Resolution (not printed) and for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 8, 1943.

William F. Smith, a former State Commander of the American Legion, prominent in the business and political life of the Commonwealth and a leading citizen of Jefferson County, died at his home in Punxsutawney on January 30th.

He was born in Tioga County on April 7, 1888, attended the Mansfield State Teachers College and graduated from the Indiana State Teachers College in 1908. During the first World War he was commissioned a first lieutenant and after the termination of hostilities, he spent several years as business manager of National Park Seminary near Washington, D. C.

In 1920 he returned to Punxsutawney where he has since been engaged in business.

Upon taking up his residence in Punxsutawney, he became interested in and devoted much of his time to local activities. He was a director of the Chamber of Commerce, a trustee of the Adrian Hospital Association, and a director of the Central Y. M. C. A. Fraternally he was an active member of the Punxsutawney Lodge of Elks and of the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

It was as a member of the American Legion however that he became best known throughout the State. He served as Commander of the John Jacob Fisher Post of Punxsutawney, later as County Commander, then as District Commander, and as Western Vice Commander. In 1938 he was elected Department Commander and his regime was marked by an outstanding record in the promotion of Americanism.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Alice Evans Smith, and a son John Evans Smith, who is now in military service; therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives extends its most sincere sympathy to the widow and son of this illustrious citizen of the Commonwealth; and be it further Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the House shall forward a copy of this Resolution to his widow, Mrs. Alice Evans Smith.

Mr. YEAKEL asked and obtained unanimous consent to report from the Committee on Rules as committed House Resolution No. 19 and for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 9, 1943.

George W. Hensel, Jr., of Quarryville, Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, founder of the Slumbering Groundhog Lodge of Quarryville, died at his home on Sunday, February 7th, after a busy life that added six years to his allotted span of three score and ten.

Merchant, banker, philosopher and sage, he lived in a house by the side of the road, and watched the world go by, giving to it in rich abundance of his wit and wisdom.

For thirty-seven years he was the Hibernating Governor of the lodge that he had founded, which counted among its members some of the most prominent citizens of the Nation, and some from foreign lands.

All his life he was a prominent Democrat and served as Post Master of his home town, as United States Jury Commissioner, as a member of the Board of Public Assistance of his county, and as a Valley Forge Park Commissioner.

He was President and a director of the Martinsville Horse Detective Association, a Director of the Humane Society, a member of the Pennsylvania Society, the Lancaster County Historical Society and the Pennsylvania German Society, and of the St. Paul's Evangelical and Reformed Church.

For many years his home and store in Lancaster County were the mecca for Governors, Members of Congress, prominent judges and high officials of the Army and Navy.

His death will deprive his home county of its most unique and outstanding character who brought prominence to it through the close friendships he made with prominent people who delighted in his company; therefore be it

Resolved, By the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania that in the passing of George W. Hensel, Jr., an outstanding citizen has been lost whose place in history will always reflect credit upon it.

That the House extends to his widow its most sincere sympathy; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of this House shall transmit to his widow, a copy of this resolution.

Section 6 The provisions of this act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment and remain in effect until eligible lists have been established and appointments made as provided herein

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. CULLEN. Mr. Speaker, Senate Bill No. 311, Printer's No. 444, which has been amended, I think five times before, has become infamously known throughout the Commonwealth and elsewhere as the Wade-Taylor Civil Service Ripper Bill.

I know that this bill will be passed by this House.

I am aware that with its passage through this Chamber, civil service as it should be properly administered in Pennsylvania will pass into oblivion.

I believe, too, that this bill in its present form is a fake and a fraud.

I am confident, too, that if Republican Members could, they would agree with me that it is a fake, and a fraud, and its sole purpose is job-grabbing.

I am not alone in this belief. Every fair-minded newspaper editor in this state is opposed to its passage.

Listen to what the Evening Bulletin of Philadelphia has to say about Civil Service rippers. In an editorial entitled, "Ousting The Service Men"

A rule that gave a civil service employe of this State the right to resume his job upon his release from military service would appeal to everybody as fair and proper.

But this is not what is proposed by sponsors of the civil service rippers in the Legislature at Harrisburg. They profess to be fearful lest there be no jobs with the State and local governments for which the boys can compete when they return from the wars. So they propose that all jobs falling vacant until the end of the war * * * be filled permanently by competition at some uncertain date after the cessation of hostilities.

There is a certain plausibility about the idea, but it promptly withers away on examination. One difficulty lies in the rank of unfairness to the man who, on entering the military service, leaves a job he has won for himself in civil service competition.

Certain members of the Legislature are now telling him, out of their deep friendship for him that they intend not to give him back his old job, but to throw it open to the competition of all comers.

The editorial closes by saying this:

It doesn't add up. The motive of these bills is just plain spoils, not solicitude for servicemen.

Mr. Speaker, the editorial which I have just read is not from a Democratic newspaper. The Evening Bulletin, is one of America's greatest newspapers. It is independent in its politics. It is fair and honest. It is impartially edited in the best interests of our citizens and in the best traditions of what an American newspaper should represent in public service.

But even this condemnation by so impartial a newspaper as the Bulletin, which has so clearly warned the Republicans of what they are doing, will not stop the blindness of the majority leadership. And in this instance, the Republican state leadership must take the full blame, for this bill is co-sponsored by the Republican State Chairman.

Other representative newspapers have expressed the same thought as does the Bulletin. But even this state-wide protest against the double-crossing of servicemen will not be sufficient to prevent its passage.

We on this side of the House are unable alone to prevent its enactment.

All that we can do in this war veteran's crisis is to plead in their behalf to virtually deaf ears.

All that we can do is make a futile effort to salvage as much as possible for the patriotic men and women who cannot come here and voice their own denunciation and pleas for fairness.

This House agreed Monday to amendments offered by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Cohen, which amendments, I am told, were submitted to the majority and to a representative of the Republican State Committee. However, the bill as it stands now, is still an insult and imposition on the servicemen. In Section 3 it is provided "Six months after the cessation of hostilities in all wars in which the United States is engaged", which simply means that should the war in one theatre cease and those veterans return to civil life, they would still be unable to compete for jobs since the nation might be engaged in a war in another part of the globe.

This bill, Mr. Speaker and members of the House, is a Republican party "must" bill.

It is "must" because the Republican party must have more jobs.

It is not "must" because the Republican leadership believes they are doing something for the servicemen.

You know what you are doing, and what we on this side of the House know you are doing is also known by everyone who has read the bill.

This bill has been discussed in Republican caucus and has been amended and amended. No member on the other side can later say he voted under a misapprehension. Republicans will vote straight down the line and deny jobs to freedom's defenders.

What the Republicans are in effect saying in this bill to their prospective appointees is this "You are now, and will be a State employe as long as you behave yourself. We enacted this bill for faithful Republicans."

You are saying "We were, and still are, opposed to civil service in the Departments of Public Assistance; the Liquor Control Board; the Department of Health; Unemployment Compensation and all other departments, boards and commissions."

You are saying "It makes jobs for Republicans because we hold the appointing power through Departmental secretaries."

You are saying "Take the job and forget all about civil service."

That easily could be a conversation between a job-getter and a job seeker—a Republican bigwig and a Republican worker.

Neither the Republican Senators nor the Republican Members of this House can honestly run around the State shouting "We saved jobs for war veterans."

This bill does just the opposite. This simply would be deliberate lying and gross deceiving.

It saves little for the men and women members of our armed forces and their auxiliaries.

It is a fraud, a brazen fake, a dishonest way of dealing into jobs Republican followers, and a shameful way to deal out war veterans, under the guise that they are being protected.

It does little for the men in the service.

If the relatives and friends of these men and women have written to them saying jobs are being kept intact for their return, they have been fooled by Republican duplicity.

War or no war, Republicans want jobs for Republicans.

Recently we celebrated the birthday of Thomas Jefferson and there was much speaking on retaining the American way of life—about liberty and justice for all, in the spirit of the nation's founders.

Now we are confronted with the spectacle of the Republican party denying justice to those who are defending our liberties.

What would Jefferson, with his intense desire for justice, say about such a bill as this?

He would denounce it as being a stab in the back to all servicemen!

Mr. Speaker and Members of the House, this whole bill is quackery. It is a travesty on the American way of justice. It needs lots of amending before it can be acceptable to us, or to servicemen.

This bill, Mr. Speaker, will freeze into jobs the war-duration employes as securely as the Republican leadership desires.

It saves little for the servicemen.

When the defenders of liberty come back, they will have less opportunity for a State job than they had before they left to defend you and me.

It is taking advantage of men while they are in a life or death struggle to protect us and the very method of law-making that we say we so cherish, but which at this minute, is flagrantly flaunted for political purposes.

I say that this bill saves nothing for the servicemen and women because it prevents them from having a chance to displace those who will be appointed to the vacancies that shall occur and the inevitable changes that will be brought about through dismissals on the slightest pretext.

No one knows what the departments and boards and commissions will determine to be the rules and regulations which are provided to be established by this act.

Now another matter that should be clarified is the right of appeal. In the act before it was amended as we now have it, the Superintendent of Public Instruction was to hear appeals. This provision has been dropped. It was dropped probably because the Federal Government would not go along with such a concentration of power. Personally, I don't know, and members of this House probably don't know, how the Federal Government feels towards the provisions of the bill as it now stands.

We in Pennsylvania receive about $45,000,000 a year from the Federal Government or $90,000,000 a biennium. We receive this Federal money for two reasons. The first is that the Federal Government is aware that States cannot carry entirely the cost of the various social services, and, secondly, we receive these huge funds because we conform to the provisions of the Social Security Act with respect to civil service.

I don't believe Governor Martin's policy is to lose the Federal assistance. But, if it isn't his intention to conflict with Washington on this vital matter of civil service, then this bill needs more than the casual passage that it would have, should we on this side of the House not have pointed out the inequalities that the bill in its present form makes certain.

Mr. Speaker, this bill has been exposed for the trickery that it establishes in governmental office. Any attempt to amend it can give but little relief to the servicemen over whom this administration has been shedding crocodile tears.

Mr. Speaker, this bill is iniquitous and the fact that it was reported out of Committee, is an insult to the members of this House.

I, therefore ask, the Members of the House to vote "no" on this bill.

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, I just want to make a few very brief remarks relative to the amendments that have been inserted in this bill. I will not take the time of the House to discuss the amendments because it has been decided that this bill is to go to a conference committee and then we can adopt a conference report. I would just like to briefly reply to a few remarks made by the gentleman from Philadelphia.

He first read from an editorial, I believe, which appeared in the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin. I might say when that editorial was written most of the things which had been under criticism were things which have now been corrected by amendments inserted in the bill. When that editorial was written the bill as it appeared in the Senate had abolished the entire Civil Service Commission, had abolished the Director of the Civil Service Commission. The amendments inserted in the House also changed the effective date of this particular act which was also under criticism, as I recall, in that editorial.

The gentleman from Philadelphia also stated that it would freeze those people that are now in the particular jobs, in those jobs. If the gentleman will read the bill it is exactly the opposite; it provides that from the effective date of the act those employed from that particular date back to March 16, 1942 are not frozen in their jobs but are provisional employees. They will also have to stand for the same tests as the boys and girls who return from the armed services and are qualified to take these examinations.

As far as the Federal Government is concerned, I would like to inform the gentleman that as late as today the Federal Government has approved the provisions of this act and the amendments which are to be inserted. Therefore, I feel the arguments of the gentleman must fall and I ask for the enactment of Senate Bill No. 311.

Mr. CULLEN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Lehigh, Mr. Lichtenwalter.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Lehigh permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. CULLEN. Mr. Speaker, did I understand the gentleman to say that the Federal Government has agreed that this will conform with the Federal act after he has put in the amendments which he intends to put in?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. That is correct, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. CULLEN. All right, I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, I do not have a copy of the proposed amendment. All I can talk about is the bill before me. What they might put in it in the conference committee I don't know, and whether that will agree with the Federal regulations I don't know. The assumption is that they are going to do something, that the Senate and the House will get together in the dying hours of this session and agree on it. I can't see that the Majority Floor Leader has answered any of the charges made in my address.

Mr. McMILLEN. Mr. Speaker, I listened with considerable interest to the arguments of the gentleman from Philadelphia on the bill and tried to follow him through on his thoughts. I find myself in quite a bit of difficulty in trying to connect his thoughts one with the other. It seems to me maybe they did not tie up, and summing up his entire argument I might give a little story I once heard.

It is reported that a farmer was driving down a country road in his Model T Ford behind three bulls traveling in the same direction, a big bull, a medium sized bull and a little bull. Following the three bulls down the road for some distance the farmer became quite discouraged and horned them off the road. The big bull turned off into a clover field to eat and rest. The two bulls now continued on down the road. Finally the middle sized bull became tired and turned up into a field to eat and rest, but the little bull was persistent; he stayed in the middle of the road. The farmer in desperation horned the little bull to pull over to the side of the road, but he wouldn't.

The farmer finally in desperation pulled up beside him and said; "Listen, little bull. Why don't you pull off to the side of the road and eat and rest?"

The little bull turned to the farmer, and in reply said, "You, Mr. Farmer, better than anyone else should know that a little bull can go a long, long way."

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the Majority Floor Leader.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Lehigh permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LOVETT. May I ask the gentleman, Mr. Speaker, if I understood him that we are now going to amend this bill in a conference committee?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. That is correct, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LOVETT. That is all. Mr. Speaker, may I call upon my good friend Homer Brown, and the gentleman whose name I do not know, who offered the resolution last night to amend the Constitution, and ask those two men whether or not they think we are within the Constitution when we start to amend bills in conference committees instead of on the floor of the House?

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

HOUSE RESOLUTION No. 71

Mr. STOCKHAM. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up House Resolution No. 71, Printer's No. 744.

The Resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, May 5, 1943.

Whereas December 7, 1941 at Pearl Harbor proved

America cannot stay out of war because she wills it so and

Whereas The radio and the aeroplane have obliterated distances and brought all the world into close and related contact thereby destroying our former isolation and rendering necessary dealing with global problems as part of our own and

Whereas It has therefore become necessary for us to be thinking of world peace because it will be part of our peace and we must not be unprepared for that peace as we were for the war therefore be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur) That the Congress and the people of the United States give more thought to a closer association of the United Nations to further the speedy termination of the war and the winning of the kind of peace that will rid the world once and for all of the banditry and aggression that have made life intolerable for all people who believe in liberty and justice and the dignity of mankind

On the question,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

Mr. PAUL L. WAGNER. Mr. Speaker, I think we are justified at this late hour in taking probably just two minutes to discuss and stress the thought that goes with this particular resolution. It is a very simple resolution that at last has found its way to the House. One thing on which we can all agree, it expresses the desire and the hope and the prayer of the American people that the peace that follows this war may bring us to that state of civilized Christianity in which we may unite and live together peacefully and advance the interests of common humanity.

There are many things that I would like to say about this resolution. There are many things I would like to say about the peace that shall follow this war, but I want to just confine myself to one thought. One time St. John arose in a concentration camp on the Isle of Patmos, and presented that part of the Book of Revelations that we are probably best able to understand and appreciate. At that particular time he said "And I saw a new Heaven and a new earth, for the first Heaven and the first earth were passed away; and there was no more sea." That must have meant something to the people of Bible times, because the sea constituted a voyage, because the sea separated them from anything that lay beyond their vision and their immediate vicinity, and that prophecy and that vision have indeed come true today because there is indeed one world in fact, no more sea; distance has been annihilated in this world and no place ever again will be very far removed from any other place. We are now living in proximity without community. We of this world are living together but we do not understand one another. It is the hope of the people of Pennsylvania in this simple non-controversial resolution that we do not make the mistake after this war that we made after the previous one. We must disregard isolationism and put aside this feeling of singleness, and with the people of this earth we should learn to live together lest we and civilization perish.

I am asking, Members of the House, for your unanimous support of this resolution memorializing Congress for a just and lasting peace among men of good will.

Mr. DENMAN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to second this resolution.

Mr. Speaker, permanent peace is a vision which all men hope will become a reality. We can win war and lose a peace. That is what happened in the First World War.

For countless generations men have engaged in warfare hoping in the end that some how, some way, there would be a lasting peace, which would end wars.

This thought is gradually coming to the front in the present conflict.

In a recent publication Mr. Wendell Willkie said "There are no distant places in the world any more." It is well known that no spot on this earth is more distant than thirty-six hours from any other spot.

Nations are realizing that the world of civilized persons probably could not withstand another world conflict in the future.

Religious people, throughout the world are expressing a concern over the future; a concern whether we shall again win a world war and again lose the peace.

These people are concerned with the establishment of a permanent peace. They realize that the formula for a permanent peace was given to the world nineteen hundred years or more ago by the living Christ in His Sermon on the Mount. They realize that if humanity can bring itself to follow those principles that there can be no war.

Efforts are being made to have this nation take a positive step in the ultimate direction of establishment of a permanent peace after this present war is won.

State Legislatures of North Carolina, of Maryland of Connecticut, New Jersey, Vermont and New York have passed resolutions asking the United States Congress to interest itself in a World Federation, founded on religious principles, dedicated to the proposition that nations shall live together in peace and that the hatreds which cause wars shall be no more.

Mr. Willkie further states:

We must face the fact that if billions of human beings are not to be disappointed, if the world of which we dream is to be achieved even in part, then today, not tomorrow, the United Nations must become a common council, not only for the winning of the war, but for the future welfare of mankind.

It is time for Pennsylvania, the Keystone state of this nation to express a concern over the proposition that all nations shall have the opportunity to live in peace.

Peace can come by the adoption of the principles of the Sermon on the Mount. We have but to look to the left front wall of this House of Representatives, to see the reaction of the American Indians when they were confronted by a stranger, William Penn, who practiced those principles, and there we learn that permanent peace can be established when it is so desired.

We have but to look to the right front wall of this House of Representatives to see what an aroused people, ruled by tyranny answer when unfairly treated.

The generations of warriors who have preceded us have hurled to us a torch of human freedom; they have challenged us to hold it high and not break faith with those who die that freemen might live; they have hurled to us the challenge to adopt the principles of the Sermon on the Mount. They, and those who now ask us to concern ourselves with taking a step tonight which will place Pennsylvania as another state desiring permanent peace expect us to remember that those who fought and died that this may come to pass, do not expect us to fail in our Christian Duty towards them.

It is time for us to take this step that we shall not disregard the mandates of those who went before; that we shall remember their sacrifices, sufferings and deaths, and that we shall avow ourselves that war shall be no more. Let us show our belief in the truths of our religious instructions.

Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, some of us regret that resolution No. 71 does not go far enough, and for the sake of brevity I should like to read my remarks into the record.

Vice President Henry A. Wallace, addressing the Conference on Christian Bases of World Order held in Delaware, Ohio, on March 8, declared that there are three great philosophies in the world today.

The first based on the Supremacy of might over right says that war between nations is inevitable until such time as a single master race dominates the entire world and everyone is assigned his daily task by an arrogant self appointed Fuhrer. The second—the Marxian philosophy says that class warfare is inevitable until such time as the proletariat comes out on top everywhere in the world, and can start building a society without classes. The third—which we in this County know as the Democratic Philosophy denies that man was made for war, whether it be war between classes and asserts boldly that ultimate peace is inevitable, that all men are brothers and that God is their Father.

This statement of our distinguished Vice President will be accepted unanimously by the great majority of the people of the world as a great truth. However these philosophies are not new and we are face to face with the naked fact that these philosophies cannot live together in a world of lasting peace. We fought a world war 20 years ago, believed that the blood shed, the lives lost, the children made orphans, the gigantic debt incurred would be an unforgettable lesson. We achieved military victory, but we know now that we lost the peace. Sir Norman Angell in his recent book "Let the People Know" asks this question—This is a war to make the world safe for Democracy, so was the last, but it did not do it. Why should this one?

America is a great nation composed of great people of countless races and nationalities, and we must realize that this greatness that is our heritage likewise carries greater responsibilities, and unless we use our power in defense of the weak, soon the weak will be strong, and the strong will be weak. Certain truths must be self-evident. First, world peace cannot be achieved by demanding that all nations embrace our form of government, the form of government must be determined by those who live under that government. Second, race is unimportant, equality of the individual must be substituted for the idea of dominate race. Third, political states like individuals, must be willing to co-operate and demand that slavery of all forms be forever abolished, and that imperialism and militarism be completely destroyed. "Where there is no law, there is no freedom." It therefore follows that laws enunciated and enforced by those political states that believe in a lasting peace must be resident in some international or world forum, strong and powerful enough to punish any nation or group of nations that would seek again to plunge the world into another needless war.

Unless we are vigilant, there will arise in our midst after we have achieved a military victory over the Axis, groups of persons who by wrapping themselves around our constitution will attempt to defeat our participation in a world federation. Those who will cry that we should not endanger our freedom by joining with other nations in this undertaking—they are present with us now. No nation can secure complete freedom for itself "Where all demand complete freedom, none in the end has any." France, Great Britain, the United States and all the defeated nations know this today. Will they recognize this fundamental truth when the war is won.

Finally if there is to be a lasting peace, we must join with all political states in compelling obedience to the most fundamental law that controls the destiny of all human beings, it is sometimes referred to as the "higher law," it is a law above our constitution, it is above all the law promulgated by man. Thou shall not kill must be given a new meaning and must have if we are to be saved from another slaughter the collective force of all nations sufficient to repel and to destroy any nation or groups of nations that would violate the natural right of people to live without being butchered and slaughtered.

In 1935 the Emperor of Ethiopia called upon the world in these never-to-be-forgotten words:

Do the people of the world not yet realize that by fighting on until the bitter end, I am not only performing my sacred duty to my people but standing guard in the last citadel of collective security? Are they too blind to see that I have my responsibilities to the whole of humanity to face? I must hold on until my tardy allies appear. And if they never come, then I say prophetically and without bitterness: The West will perish.

Because this nation was weak, small and defenseless, the strong refused to heed his cry. The tardy allies were late appearing, and if after this war we forget this cry and fail to establish a force powerful enough of the nations of the world so that aggression will be outlawed forever, we cannot escape, witnessing and participating in further wars which are inevitable.

Mr. GATES. Mr. Speaker, I am delighted that even though it is in the closing days of this session Pennsylvania has finally awakened to the fact that this resolution is one of the most important pieces of legislation that has come before this House in this particular session. Pennsylvania should have been the first state in the United States to adopt a resolution of this kind, because it was on the soil of Pennsylvania that democracy was born. Through the selfishness and the avarice of a certain group of leaders across the waters they have caused the countries of the world to spend over eight hundred billion dollars, an amount of money that no man's mind can comprehend, and if this war continues, every country in the world will be bankrupt.

I am most heartily in favor of winning the peace and hope in conclusion, Members of this House, when a World Court is once established, in addition to the statesmen of the various countries of the world they will have on that court the religious leaders of the world, that they will take into consideration the Protestant Church of the world, that they will take into consideration the Roman Catholic Church of the world and that they will take into consideration the Jewish Church of the world, and on that World Court the representatives of these great religions shall find their place.

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I was always taught in my youth, and I learned my lesson well, to be thankful for little things. One of the gentlemen who spoke on this resolution said it was a simple resolution, and in its text it is simple, but it takes in a most comprehensive and weighty subject which could be debated today, tomorrow and continuously for days and weeks and still not reach a complete conclusion, so let us each make brief comment and to each other give our brief thoughts so that they may be carried back with us to the end that they may eventually swell into the result that we seek to attain.

One of the previous gentlemen called this a resolution memorializing Congress. As I read the resolution I see no reference to memorializing Congress. We have passed many resolutions in this House memorializing Congress to do many things, such as the Ruml Plan and a lot of other things which are puny and inconsequential when placed along side and compared with the matter contained in this resolution.

I must take issue with the wording of the resolution when it only asks that the Congress and the people of the United States give more thought to a closer association of people. There is no necessity for reminding Congress that our people should give more thought to a post-war problem involving a good and decent peace; I should rather, Mr. Speaker, that this House memorialize Congress in so many words not to give thought to peace, but to take positive action toward planning today the peace of tomorrow.

We well remember that during the course of the last world war too little thought was given to the idea of a permanent peace, too little action rather was taken, so that when the war was won, at least the war of arms was won, Woodrow Wilson was unable to win the peace because a Congress and a Senate refused to win that peace. It left Woodrow Wilson a man broken in spirit and in health and brought on his early and premature death.

I think we should be well aware of our duty today as public servants to encourage our people not to think of what is to happen after the war of arms is over, but today to take positive action, to have positive planning on a world-wide basis, so that when the war of arms has ceased plans which have been formulated and the blueprints which have been drawn can be put into immediate action. I think it is the duty of the two great political parties in America to plan today for the peace of tomorrow, and not just to think of the peace of tomorrow.

I well remember not very long ago when Wendell Willkie, according to the newspapers, went to Chicago to a meeting of the Republican National Committee, and according to the newspapers it is reported that he had to fight to compel that committee to adopt a resolution which was more aggressive in thought than the contemplated action to be taken by the Convention.

I mention that as an instance of what members of political parties can do and should do today to urge those of their own political faith the ultimate goal of immediate planning and immediate action for the drawing of the terms and the plans of a peace which all of the gentlemen before me have so eloquently dwelt upon because we all know, and we know it in our hearts that we all want this to be the last war on earth, because frankly I am fearful that should the penalty of this war not be big enough and heavy enough to lead us into a permanent peace the world must disintegrate and civilization must perish.

Mr. STOCKHAM. Mr. Speaker, it is fitting indeed that Pennsylvania take such steps as we are endeavoring to take here this evening, because out of the turmoil that existed in Europe in the seventeenth century there came a man to the shores of this Commonwealth. That man had vision, that man was prophetic. Among other things he wrote a prophecy which well applies in our world today, a theme written around the walls of the dome of the Capitol Building.

That an example may be set up to the nations, that we may do the thing that is truly wise and just and my God will make it the seed of a nation.

Here are the seeds that have been established even on the soil of this Commonwealth of ours, the way of liberty, the way of life and the way of justice. We must of necessity dare to lead. We are the hope of the world, and in that daring to lead, what we are fighting for today is predicted upon something this great William Penn wrote:

Justice is the end of Government, it is the end of civil society, it ever has been and will be pursued until it be obtained or until liberty be lost in the pursuit.

That is what we are fighting for today, that is what the United Nations are fighting for.

These are black days, that take courage, our brave boys in all parts of the world are fighting for the principles that William Penn himself wrote and prophesied. Dark indeed are the days.

The words were dark and the night was black
And only an owl could see the track
But the cheery driver made his way
Through the great pine woods as if it were day.
I ask him, "How do you manage to see?
The road and the forest are one to me."
"To me the same," he replied, "and I Can only drive by the path in the sky."
I looked above where the tree tops tall
Rose from the road like an ebon wall
And like a beautiful starry lane
Round as the road wound and made it plain.
And since, when my path is dark and drear
And all is blackness and doubt and fear
And the horrors of midnight are here below
And I know not a step of the way to go
Then, oh, then, I look on high
And walk on earth by the path in the sky.

Mr. Speaker, I move the adoption of this resolution.

On the question,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

Mr. WELSH. Mr. Speaker, the resolution before us tonight is a little baby brother of that great big resolution that was introduced in the Senate some time ago that even the Democratic and Republican sponsors were so ashamed of that they put it up in the attic. It contained idealism, far greater idealism, than that advocated by the sponsor tonight in moving for the adoption of this resolution.

It seems to me that it tries to bring about a oneness of thought, a oneness of unity in the world, but that of itself is a thing that has very little foundation to rest upon. I know that the Members of the House want to go on their way tonight. I think I might say much that would contain logic, but I can say nothing more than the words contained in this morning's Harrisburg Patriot, in an editorial which I think explains this thing, and I feel sure that those of you who have read it will recognize in it the real substance of what these idealists are trying to accomplish, and the uselessness of it.

The editorial is written by Mr. Paul Mallon, and it is actuated and prompted by that book written by Wendell Willkie "One World."

Most of you will remember when you were boys you read a book entitled "Around the World in Eighty Days." Mr. Willkie went around the world in forty-nine days, and as a result of that trip he wrote that book which prompted this editorial. I am inviting your kind attention to it. I will read:

Distances never have had anything to do with unity. You may have lived next door to two neighbors for 20 years, barely spoken to one and have become very close to another—but not nearly so attached as to a friend who lives on the other side of town, or perhaps one in Canada or Labrador.

Oneness is made out of something more spiritually substantial than distance. It comes from similarity of ideals, habits, customs, methods of living.

If a Chinese happened to live next door to you and you did not understand his way of life, the proximity would not in itself lead you to be friends. But if you happened to be a fellow Chinese, or a person who knew the Chinese way of life intimately, you might become close friends and might establish a basis of unity.

Nations are only groups of people in a world neighborhood, and always have been. We have lived many years an equal distance from both Mexico and Canada. With Canada, we share a valid bond of friendship; with Mexico, we had our troubles now happily adjusted.

Therefore, Mr. Willkie has erred grievously in his primary idea. He is just plain wrong in his initial assumption that whereas this was many worlds before, the plane has made it one world. It is the same old world, and, as distances have had nothing to do with the establishment of our international friendships of the past, they will have nothing to do with it in the future.

We like people who like us, who share our views, hopes, and expectations, and we will always continue to like such people and dislike others, regardless of how fast a few can fly back and forth.

Mr. Willkie's error is grievous, because if we now base our hopes of peace on a false assumption we will not only be disillusioned sadly, but we are likely to have more international troubles as a direct result, perhaps even war. Only a thoroughly realistic peace can be a lasting peace.

The plane, to be sure, will bring new commercial and military factors into the post-war world. Some say it may be possible for a debutante to order a gown straight from Paris by a mail order catalog for a week-end party.

Many people certainly will fly to England in eight hours. A great many people will use the plane for passenger service instead of boats, and it is possible commercial travel will eventually develop to an extent not known before.

From a military standpoint, it will also be necessary, for our protection, to acquire bases throughout the world from which we may intercept possible air attacks on us.

But these are not the things Mr. Willkie was talking about. He spoke of political unity as a primary assumption, but the prospective use of the plane commercially and militarily does not itself justify such an assurance.

These factors are just as apt to lead to rivalry as oneness. Certainly if rivalry is to be avoided entirely, the world politicians will have to remake human nature, not only here at home but chiefly abroad.

What I would consider more important than Willkie's views is what Stalin thinks about the future use of the plane and its political effect. And those of Mr. Churchill's one British empire.

A few readers accused me of trying to "smear" Willkie. I have never smeared anyone. Smear tactics have been so notoriously pursued in several instances of late years that they should arouse the outraged indignation of every man—regardless of whether the smeared one is right or wrong.

Democracy is a debate in which false ideas should be smeared—never the personal dignity of the individual.

I would say, Mr. Speaker, that this resolution has been in the House for a long time. The resolution I referred to that was in the Senate as you will remember was not printed for public information. The only copies of the resolution that I could secure were those that I tore from a Senate History. This resolution comes to us in the last hours of this Legislature and it seems to me that the people of our Commonwealth should have had an opportunity to see, to read it, to dissect it and to fathom its real meaning, its real intent, and to come forward and speak against the false idealism that it most assuredly brings forth.

It seems to me it is a waste of money for us to print this, it is a waste of money to ask Congress to do anything about it. The time for this type of idealism has not arrived, and I hope that the Members of this General Assembly will vote this resolution down.

On the question recurring,

Will the House adopt the Resolution?

It was adopted.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

SENATE

FRIDAY, May 7, 1943.

The Senate met at 3:00 o'clock p. m. Eastern War Time.
The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE (Charles H. Ealy)
in the Chair.

PRAYER

In the absence of the Chaplain prayer was offered by the Senator from Berks, Doctor RUTH.

Almighty God, our Heavenly Father, we pray that Thy spirit wilt guide us in our work on this day, that we may render the service which is expected of us, and we pray that Thou wilt help us to appreciate the friendships that we have made here, as we are soon to part, some of us never to come back again.

May the memory of those friendships go with us down through the years wherever we may labor, so that they may give us courage and faith to do the work at hand to the best of our ability.

Into Thy hands we give ourselves and the tender keeping of those who are near and dear to us, in our membership, those who are sick and afflicted amongst our families, those who are in the services, give them Thy protection and guidance.

And we pray that when our work is all finished we may finally gather where there are no trials or afflictions, no difficulties, but where the friendships of eternity will keep us together.

We ask it in Thy Holy Name. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. A quorum of the Senate being present the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding session.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding session, when, on motion of Mr. HEYBURN and Mr. THOMAS, that the further reading be dispensed with, and the Journal stand approved.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Before that motion is carried, Mr. President, I should like to say that I have looked at my file of Legislative Journals and find that there has not been a printed transcript of the Journal since the legislative day of April 8; we have not a copy of the Journal since that of April 8. I have been asked for some information by some of my constituents in Philadelphia, and that information is only available if we have a printed record of the meetings. We have not received a copy of the Legislative Journal since that of April 8 and since these are the closing days of the session I think something ought to be done about it.

I know we go through the motions of reading the Journal, but it is assumed that when that is done recent issues of the Journal are before us, but now it is almost a month since we have received an issue of the Journal.

And the question recurring.

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

It was agreed it.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. McCREESH asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. McCREESH. I would like us ask the Republican Floor Leader to please get together with the Republican Senators and also the Democratic Senators, and try to see if we can not get through the Calendar and settle down to business and do some work and get out of here as quickly as possible. It seems to me that we are just wasting a lot of time; we are trying to finish up some time Saturday, and yet every day it is four, five or six o'clock before we get started, so I would like the Republican Floor Leader to please not waste time walking around the corridors, and settle down to business.

LEAVES OF ABSENCE

Mr. Wade asked and obtained leave of absence for Mr. EDMONDS.

He also asked and obtained leave of absence for Mr. ZIESENHEIM.

The Secretary to the Governor being introduced, presented communications in writing from His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, which were read as follows, and referred to the Committee on Executive Nominations.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

RESOLUTION

He also presented extract from the Journal of the House, which was twice read as follows:

WORLD PEACE

In the House of Representatives, May 5, 1943.

Whereas, December 7, 1941, at Pearl Harbor proved America cannot stay out of war because she wills it so; and

Whereas, The radio and the aeroplane have obliterated distances and brought all the world into close and related contact, thereby destroying our former isolation and rendering necessary dealing with global problems as part of our own; and

Whereas, It has therefore become necessary for us to be thinking of world peace because it will be part of our own peace, and we must not be unprepared for that peace as we were for the war; therefore be it

Resolved (if the Senate concurs), That the Congress and the people of the United States give more thought to a closer association of the United Nations to further the speedy termination of the war, and the winning of the kind of peace that will rid the world, once and for all, of the banditry and aggression that have made life intolerable for all peoples who believe in liberty and justice and the dignity of mankind.

RULE 39 SUSPENDED

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Rule 39, which requires resolutions be referred to an appropriate committee, be dispensed with and the Senate proceed to the consideration of the foregoing resolution.

Mr. WOODRING. I second the motion.

Which was agreed to.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the resolution?

POINT OF INFORMATION

Mr. WOODRING. I rise to a point of information, Mr. President.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. The gentleman from Northampton will proceed.

Mr. WOODRING. Do I understand, Mr. President, that we are about to vote on the resolution.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. That is correct.

Mr. WOODRING. On the motion made by the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Heyburn and seconded by me, I am going to vote for this resolution, because in theory and in the largest analysis of the resolution, it is a good thing; it commits our Pennsylvania Assembly to the proposition of a permanent peace.

I am sorry that we do not have any choice in the matter; I am sorry that this is the only resolution on which we as a deliberate body are permitted to vote, because on March 9 of this year there was a resolution presented to this body by Senators Farrell, Carr and myself, and that resolution, Mr. President, was a "do" resolution; it was a positive resolution; it called for a definite principle of government.

What I am about to say against this resolution, Mr. President, I say with great respect to the sponsor, Mr. Stockham, a member of the House; I feel confident from the advice which I have that he takes no pride of authorship in this particular resolution, House Resolution No. 71, but that it was rather penned for him and presented to him, so what I say against the resolution is not directed against Mr. Stockham, the nominal sponsor.

Mr. President, the Stockham resolution on which we are about to vote is a "shall" resolution. It says in substance and principle that we of Pennsylvania shall favor permanent peace . . . period. It does not say we are willing to go out and do anything about securing and achieving that permanent peace and world-wide peace through international federations.

A resolution introduced here in this Senate, and which I am going to call, for brevity, the Farrell Resolution, was predicated upon certain theories of government. It was predicated, first, upon the principle that today we live in a world-wide community instead of a local hemisphere community; it was predicated, secondly, upon the principle that unless there is law in a community there can not be order, and then it pointed out a fact which can not be argued, that we have no international law and we can have law only through a federation of other governments. That resolution, Mr. President, had it been adopted, and by the pressure of adoption of similar resolutions by the several states of our nation, that would have availed us something in the national scene of government at Washington.

We are not permitted to vote on that resolution, so I am going to vote for this resolution, but I am sorry that we do, for a second reason; there are thousands, tens of thousands and literally hundreds of thousands of people in the state of Pennsylvania who subscribed, by the penning of their names to various resolutions of endorsement, to the Farrell resolution. The United Council of Churches of Pennsylvania sponsored it. That organization alone comprises more than two million men and women in the state of Pennsylvania. It, furthermore, was sponsored and endorsed by more than two hundred independent organizations throughout the state of Pennsylvania, consisting of women's clubs, American Legion Posts, Posts of Veterans of Foreign Wars, service clubs such as Rotary, Kiwanis and Lion's, and others.

The people of Pennsylvania, Mr. President, and members of the Senate, speaking with respect to the Farrell resolution, said: "we like it, we think it must come eventually, and we would like to tell Washington that we favor it now."

However, this body, by reason of a majority of a vote, in the Committee on Federal Relations, I am told, said "no, we will not submit the Farrell resolution to the floor of the Senate for consideration, even though the people of Pennsylvania have expressly endorsed it." So,

I am sorry for that reason, Mr. President, that I must vote for this resolution.

Last but not least the adoption of this resolution, while it is intended to call attention of the national government at Washington to our thoughts in the matter, will be of no avail whatsoever, because this resolution lacks in unity, lacks in similarity to the resolutions which have already been and hereafter will be adopted by other states of our Nation. Already North Carolina, Maryland, New Jersey, Vermont and Connecticut have adopted resolutions which embody much of the material contained in the Farrell resolution.

Had our resolution contained that same material, when the men at Washington examined these various resolutions or memorializations they would say, "here, the people all over the country are clamoring with one accord for one type of action to bring about a federation which will effectively inaugurate peace in this world of ours," but by the adoption of this resolution, and then Montana comes along with something else, and New York state adopts a resolution embodying a portion, but too small a portion of the Farrell resolution, we are not inviting from Washington any particular type of action; we are saying that we are an independent type of people in Pennsylvania and we think so and so; California may have a different viewpoint, and as a result, Washington will be in a state of flux, so I can not see that any good will come of this resolution, but I do believe in the plan in its largest aspect and I call upon my colleagues to vote "aye" on concurrence in House Resolution No. 71.

Mr. CARR. Mr. President and fellow members of the Senate of Pennsylvania, to a certain extent I agree with my colleague from Northampton, Senator Woodring, with regard to this resolution. Perhaps the resolution does not go as far as some of us would have liked it to have gone, and yet I am aware of the fact that every great movement in the world, in all its past history, has been the result of the planting of a seed of thought in the mind of some one, and out of that seed of thought has grown something that has been mighty and great.

This country which we enjoy at present; a land of freedom, a land of justice, a land of opportunity, was founded in just that way, based upon a simple desire in the hearts of men for something better than that which they had had theretofore.

Reaching back into the history of the past and taking out of that history the experiences of life, they translate into an immortal document all the experience of the past and give us the guaranty of freedom that we have here in this land of ours.

Now that thought of freedom, that conception of life, that great ideal that possesses us all as Americans, has been challenged. The old theory of the divine right of an individual to rule over and dictate to the rest of the human race has again asserted itself by claiming its superiority over our form of federalization of a community of governments to work out the best of everything for all concerned.

This resolution that is before us today, my friends, simply plants that seed of thought of a new venture in human government, in a place where it may become effective, where, watered by the kindly thoughts of the present generation, or perhaps even the kindly thoughts of future generations, it too may grow and spread until the branches of the great tree that develops from it may enclose under their shade all mankind everywhere throughout the whole world.

We have found in recent years that it is impossible for men to live alone in the world. Our interests are so conflicting and so interlocking with one another that we can not divorce ourselves from any and say "I shall live for myself and for myself alone."

Therefore, we have institutions like the Legislature of the state of Pennsylvania and like the Congress of the United States of America, designed for the specific purpose of bringing into action the concentrated desire and will of a people which could not otherwise be done. We are here today as a component part of that system that has so been set up.

I picked up some years ago a rather amusing little piece of poetry. I am not sure who wrote it—and maybe you would not call it poetry, but just rhyme or verse—but I think from a reading of it that it has some of the homely philosophy of Walt Mason. It is entitled "Bees and Bees-ness," and is as follows:

"BEES AND BEES-NESS"

"Said a poor old bee at the close of day, 'This colony business doesn't pay. I put my honey in the old hive, that others may eat and thrive, and I do more work in a day, by gee, than some of the others do in three. I toil and worry and save and hoard, and all I get is my room and board. It's me for a hive I can use myself, and me for the sweets of my hard-earned self.'

"So the old bee flew to a meadow lone, and started a business all his own. He gave no thought to the buzzing clan, but all intent on his selfish plan, he lived the life of a hermit free. 'Ah, this is great,' said the poor old bee.

"But the summer waned and the days grew drear, and the old bee wailed as he dropped a tear; for the varmints gobbled his little store, and his wax played out and his heart was sore; so he winged his way to the old home band, and took his meals at the Helping Hand.

"Alone our work is of little worth; together we are the lords of the earth; so it's all for each and each for all—United we Stand, and Divided we Fall."

I think that expresses somewhat the situation in which the whole human race finds itself at present, struggling alone, divided one from the other; we have seen civilization come almost to the verge of destruction.

At the close of the last war the hearts of many of us were glad because we thought now it had been proven once and for all that this world was to be a place where there should be peace and contentment and brotherhood and everything that would make our way of life well worthwhile. The disillusionment of the quarter of a century which has passed since then has left many of us with a great deal of sorrow in our hearts, has left us wondering whether after all this human race can find a solution to the problem of brotherhood.

Another poet has written some very beautiful words that I think we could all take to heart as individuals, as well as thinking of it in terms of international existence, entitled "Environment," written by Avery Giles and which is as follows:

"ENVIRONMENT"

"Old Jacob had an extra house for rent,
And when the village real-estate man sent

A would-be tenant up from out of town,
The visitor faced Jacob with a frown.
'How are the neighbors hereabouts?' he said.
Old Jacob's wrinkled face flushed fiery red.
'How are the neighbors where you're livin' now?'
He parried, and the stranger knit his brow.
'Confounded disagreeable, I must say,'
He said; 'that's why I want to move away.'
Old Jacob spat, then slowly shook his head.
'The neighbors ain't no better here,' he said.

"And so the stranger didn't rent the house,
And Jacob kept as quiet as a mouse,
Until another prospect came along—
A friendly man who hummed a merry song.
'I'll bet the folks around here are just grand!'
He said to Jacob, giving him his hand.
'How are the neighbors where you're livin' now?'
Asked Jacob, and the stranger said: 'I vow,
They're people you'd be mighty proud to know;
My one regret is that I have to go.'
'Cheer up,' said Jacob, 'ain't no need for grievin';
The folks around here are just like them you're leavin'!"

I think very largely throughout the whole wide world, if we could dip down into the hearts of those who are not leaders in high places, but the component parts of civilization, we would find that men everywhere throughout the world are very much the same as you and I. Centuries ago there lived a great man, Saint Francis of Assisi, who uttered a prayer that might well be the prayer of every one of us in times like these:

"Lord, make me an instrument of your peace; where there is hatred, let me sow love; where there is injury, pardon; where there is doubt, faith; where there is despair, hope; where there is darkness, light; and where there is sadness, joy.

"O Divine Master, grant that I may not so much seek to be consoled as to console; to be understood, as to understand; to be loved, as to love; for it is in giving that we receive, it is in pardoning that we are pardoned, and it is in dying that we are born to eternal life."

In conclusion let me say just these few words. Patrick Henry, one of the great patriots of our country, said at one time: "I have but one lamp by which my feet are guided and that is the lamp of experience; I know of no way of judging the future but by the past." Certainly, my friends, looking on recent past history, without extending our minds into the dim regions of the past, we see nothing to indicate that there has been failure in human government, that there has been failure to find a solution to the problem of peace and war, and while I should prefer that this resolution had been far stronger than it is, while I may reluctantly believe perhaps it will not accomplish the purpose for which it is intended, yet I accept it as a small evidence of the fact that at last there is an outreaching from the hearts of men towards something better than that which we have been enduring in the past few years of our international history.

I am not, my friends, afraid that there will not be men with sufficient wisdom, that there will not be men with sufficient understanding to meet the crisis at the close of this war as there have been at the close of other wars, and yet I am concerned lest the selfishness that prevailed there, lest the individual desire on the part of certain people to be of prominence in the presence of their enemies and of their allies may again prevail.

To that end I think there is no nation upon the face of this earth so gifted with the capacity for leadership as our own, that there is no nation upon the face of this earth which has a history like ours, whereby we can demonstrate that a federal form of government has worked here in America. Here in this land, composed of men and women of all races, all creeds and all nationalities, the mind of one brushing against the mind of the other oftentimes causes friction but generally result in the end in the production of something that is worth while.

If we have been able to build things up here on this western shore of the world, what reason is there to say that we can not reach out beyond that which we have already done and in the future lay the foundations of a parliament of man, a federation of the whole wide world?

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, after the very eloquent address of the gentleman from Butler, Senator Carr, I hesitate to impose myself upon this body. We have before us a resolution that is short and very direct and I think it covers the situation very well.

We are indebted, I believe, or I feel so at least, to the men and women who have taken of their time to come here to express their ideas on this all-important problem. The gentleman from Northampton, Senator Woodring, for whom I have the greatest admiration, has drawn a comparison between this resolution and another which we considered in committee. He has gone so far as to state the vote in committee—and I think that is quite unfair for the simple reason, if for no other, that we are told that there are some 144 peace plans of one kind or another before the National Congress.

This resolution, I repeat, is very direct, very short and very easily understood, and our vote for this resolution—and I am pleased that I have the privilege of voting for it—is simply an expression of this body stating that we believe that the time has arrived when this problem must be seriously considered.

For the benefit of my colleagues I am going to read some short excerpts from a publication that I find on my desk, and I am sure that there are copies on the desks of others. It, too, is short and very direct and very enlightening. I feel that we members of this Legislature are brought into contact with many other state problems, and my conversations with other members of this Senate would indicate that they like myself have not made a complete and all-inclusive study of this international problem, and therefore, this book I think will be very beneficial. I am going to read from Chapter 3, entitled "External Requirements for Prosperity."

"Our domestic prosperity has a direct relationship to the prosperity and well being of the rest of the world. Developments over the last forty years in the fields of communication and transportation have substantially changed the relations that existed between the various countries. Current thinking must keep pace with this change in conditions."

"OBJECTIVES OF THE PEACE"

"Broadly stated, the objectives of the United States and its associates are:

"(a) that the world should not again be plunged into a war;

"(b) that the peoples of the world should have an opportunity to live out their lives in peace and to achieve prosperity under institutions of their own choice; and

"(c) that to accomplish these two objectives some framework should be established through which the political and economic relationships between nations of the world can be developed and maintained on an orderly basis."

On the question of "How to meet the problems of the peace," the article goes on to state:

"It is obvious that we can have a better opportunity for development and maintenance of a sound internal postwar economy in the United States if we can find some reasonable solution for the important and complex international economic problems of the postwar period.

"It is clear that these problems can not be solved all at once. No fiat can serve, however ingenious and clever it may be. What is needed is continuous cooperation among peoples, undertaken on a permanent basis. Some experimentation is inevitable. New situations will call for new solutions. Both methods and measures will have to be changed from time to time. Nothing short of organized effort on a permanent basis and of a continuous nature will suffice for meeting the needs of the twentieth-century world

"It seems equally clear that only by concerted international study and action can these problems be met without widespread difference and discord, and with consequent unsettlement of world relations that would inhibit orderly international development and orderly development in each country involved.

"The needs of day-to-day living bring us face to face with the problem of international organization. Fortunately a rich experience is at hand for us to draw upon. Numerous international organizations have existed for generations, and in such fields as patents, copyrights, and protection against counterfeit currency the American business man is in daily dependence upon their work. The World Court and the Pan American Union have had a useful stabilizing influence which may be extended into the future. In other words, common cooperative effort among the peoples of the world represents no bold innovation. It can proceed in the future in directions which experience already indicates."

Mr. President, one further paragraph I shall read and then I will be through.

"It has been argued that the terms of peace should be made to wait upon the completion of that task, and that the launching of a new international effort to cooperate in maintaining world order should be postponed until passions have cooled and judgments have sobered.

"We believe, on the other hand, that if the war is to be followed by an attempt to provide a basis for continued world peace this attempt cannot be postponed until the world is restored to something approaching 'normal.' It should begin while power is still lodged with the nations who have carried through the military struggle, before the people of those nations have lost their interest, before other people have begun their obstruction. It should be carried on while the work of reconstruction is in progress. A long armistice might mean an extended period of disorder. In order to facilitate a rapid development of peacetime economic stability, progress, prosperity, and constitutional government, peace terms should be negotiated as soon as possible after military hostilities cease."

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I remember very vividly being in France when Woodrow Wilson was sitting at the peace table. I can remember, as if it were today, the ambitions and the desires of those men who had worn the uniform, not only of America but of England, of France, of all of the other allies, that at that peace table a real victory would be written.

I can remember the night in the hotel lobbies of Paris when we learned that in America a body of Senators had wired to that peace conference that they would not go along with the high ideals and the ambitions of Woodrow Wilson. I can remember sitting at a table that night with a boy who had lost an arm, and another boy who had been gassed, and I remember the words uttered by the boy who was gassed—he said: "Well, that is the reward for the living death that I know I am facing."

We came back—yes, many members of this Senate were in that group that came back—hoping and praying that wars would be ended for all time, because the soldiers were proud, they thought they had won a victory—and they had on the battlefields—but they learned that although men had died, although victory was won, and although the soldiers had won the victory, greedy, selfish politicians and greedy interests had lost the peace, and today we find the sons of those very boys who came back in 1918, marching off to fight another war and to win the victory that their fathers thought they had won. Members of the Senate, that would never have been if the same movements that are started today in this Senate had been started back before the war was won in 1918.

Although I believe this resolution is not positive enough I subscribe to it because I believe it is a step in the right direction, because it is serving notice on the sons of those boys, who are now fighting the war that their fathers fought in 1918, that they will not be cheated out of their victory, that this time when the war is won by the soldiers it will stay won.

The only contribution that we of this older generation will give history is that in the years to come, when history is read, this generation will be either blessed or damned. We will be blessed if we meet the issue and sit around the table and make a just peace; if we do not do that, generations to come will damn us for neglect of our duty.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, everybody feels as if every speech made now delays the moment when we will be able to kiss goodbye to the dying minutes of this Session, and usually one would hesitate to rise on the floor of this Senate and speak, but I am one of those who believe that every man in this Senate—certainly when he has the time to think about it—feels that he would like to be certain that this war will mean the end of all wars, and so I give credit to all of us for having that desire, but I am afraid we will have to criticize ourselves for not going beyond the desire.

Of course, I am going to vote for this resolution, because it says what I believe, that we should look quickly to the time when we shall have peace, and permanent peace, but this is an innocuous resolution because it is just like a creditor who sends a debtor a notice: "on the fifth of the month your note will be due" and the debtor writes back and says "Yes, we ought to think about it because something ought to be done about it." That is what this resolution is saying: "We ought to have peace and we ought to think about it."

I can appreciate the attitude of mind of those who object to the resolution in its present form, because a number of us might feel that you can not now make a blueprint for what should be done in the future, and that this resolution itself is in the nature of a blueprint, but there is one thing we all must agree upon, we must firmly resolve upon principles, because without principles there can never be a world peace, because on principles depend permanency and, therefore, I criticize this resolution and ourselves because we have not devoted any time in this session to agreeing upon principles and putting those principles into concrete form and saying, "these are the principles upon which we must base the future peace."

You will remember that when Woodrow Wilson got into the last war he stated the objectives of the war and when the war was about ended he made and stated the principles of the peace, and you will remember that we had a number of innocuous resolutions in Congress, something like this, and destructive arguments were advanced against the suggestions made, but not a single constructive idea was advanced by those who opposed Woodrow Wilson's fourteen points.

We are doing the same thing today. We are saying, yes, we ought to have a peace and yes, we ought to think about peace and we are saying yes, we ought to be good neighbors but they are words and phrases, nothing more.

I shall vote for the resolution, but I am kind of disappointed that the real objective of this Session has never come to light.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the resolution?

It was agreed to.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the House of Representatives accordingly.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. COX asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. COX. Mr. President and members of the Senate, in 1941 the Legislature created the Anthracite Subsidence Commission and gave it power to investigate the subsidence of land in the anthracite region of Pennsylvania, with the thought in mind that such an investigation could produce legislation which might have the effect of remedying the subsidence of land.

The members of the Senate on that commission were Senator Stevenson, Senator Watkins, Senator Thomas, Senator Coleman and myself.

For two years we gave our time and our efforts to that investigation. We made three separate trips to the hard coal region; we went down into the mines; we visited persons whose homes were destroyed by subsidence caused by mining in the anthracite region. We gave hours and days of our time listening to the advice of engineers with regard to this tremendous problem, and I regret to say that it is necessary for me to take the floor of this Senate and raise my voice in indignation because of the fact that the program which the Anthracite Subsidence Commission recommended to this Legislature has been sabotaged in the House.

Coming as I do from a land far from the anthracite subsidence region, I was appalled at the tragedy I found in that district, with its beautiful mountains completely denuded and stripped of coal, with huge areas of culm extending to the very doors of residences in the little boroughs and towns in that region.

I felt that our committee had something to offer as a solution to the problem of subsidence of land, and so did every other member of that subsidence commission, and we came back to the Legislature and we presented a program. We suggested, first, that we set up an Anthracite Subsidence Commission, in the Department of Mines and Mining, and that we give to that commission the power to make a careful study of the problem of flushing which seems to be the only solution to the prevention of future subsidence. The bill introduced had an appropriation of $50,000. Here the other night we sat on the floor of this Senate and we gave millions of dollars away by votes of "aye," "aye," "aye," and yet this Legislature has told the people of the hard coal region that we are not willing to appropriate $50,000 to try to find a solution to their problem.

The other bill—a House bill, incidentally, before talking about that bill, may I say that every member of this Senate voted for the first bill concerning which I speak, which bill was sponsored by Senator Coleman, Senator Stevenson and Senator Watkins. The other bill, which was introduced in the House, provided for a tax of two cents on a ton of coal, that money to be appropriated to the Anthracite Subsidence Commission in order to carry on its duties of investigation; that bill is dying in committee.

I am just wondering what the people of the anthracite region think of the government of Pennsylvania today. When we first went into the hard coal region we were met with skepticism. People came to us and they said, "Your commission is just another commission, there is nothing you can do, there is no solution to this problem; as long as you have coal mining you are going to have subsidence."

The members of the Committee felt there was something they could do, and yet today I have got to admit utter defeat of every ambition that this commission had in regard to a solution of this problem.

As we traveled around in our journeys, we had hearing after hearing, where the people affected by subsidence could come to us and tell us their problems and give us their solutions. In the borough of Shenandoah I saw one of the saddest sights I have ever seen in Pennsylvania. I saw a section of that city, in the very heart of its business district, where ten city blocks had literally moved. In an adjacent township I saw a junior high school split to the very center; when you stood in the center of it, you could see the sky. I saw a beautiful brick high school, probably costing a quarter of a million dollars, which today stands idle because the people of that community know there will be further subsidence and perhaps their children might be caught in the subsidence.

We visited the borough of Pittston, we saw subsidence there, and two days after we left the borough of Pittston another subsidence occurred, and that will continue and continue until some solution is found to this problem.

I admit the undertaking is a great one. Unfortunately, in the hard coal area they are dependent almost entirely on mining for their living. Our commission immediately found this to be a problem: if we increased the cost of coal, then we stopped mining, and if we stopped mining the people could not make a living.

The attitude of the coal companies from the very start was "there is no solution to this problem, make your investigations and go back; you will find that that is the truth." The attitude of the coal companies was one of absolute reliance on the law. It is true in Pennsylvania that it is possible that a man who owns land be directed to give to some other man the right to permit his land to fall into mine caves; that is the law, and the coal companies are right when they rely on the law.

In Scranton, Pennsylvania, at a hearing where the coal companies were represented, this statement was made—I will never forget it as long as I live, because of the cruelty of its implications, and this is a paraphrase of that statement, and I am quoting:

"All I have heard since I went on these hearings—was the question of human rights. Gentlemen, there are no human rights involved; this is merely a matter of one man owning property and another man owning property, and the second man wants to take away from the first man the right to use property, in a legal way, to which he is entitled," and that symbolizes the attitude.

I say to the people of the anthracite region today, you can thank those influences for the destruction of the program which was sponsored by our commission. In our studies we found that there would have to be complete co-operation between the coal industry, as such, the local communities, the state of Pennsylvania, and the government of the United States, in order to accomplish anything of importance. We were told that the cost of flushing and the filling of voids was a tremendous cost, so tremendous it would be impossible to compel a mine operator to flush the land from which he had taken the coal. We went into that, we had meeting after meeting in which we had flushing experts, in which they discussed the method of operation and the cost of operation, and we had their viewpoint against facts and figures submitted by the engineers of the coal companies, and so we felt that this was a long range program which could not be settled in one day, or one week or one year, but in order for this problem to be carefully studied there had to be set up by the Commonwealth a commission to study it, and we recommended to you that you set up that commission.

Every man of this Senate who was present voted in favor of our program but the program died, and so today, after all the work, after all the hopes of the people of the anthracite region, we can only say to them today that the government of the state of Pennsylvania says to them "let it slide," and I protest against such an attitude in government.

I have sat in my seat and perhaps I have had on my countenance an aspect of complacency, but inside I have been burning over many of the things which have happened in this Senate during the three sessions I have sat here, the utter disregard of the very things that make life worthwhile, and I know I am not the only one who has that attitude. I know on both sides of this Senate there are people who feel as I do, and I hope that the Governor of Pennsylvania will understand what I am talking about and he will say to the members of the Anthracite Subsidence Commission "I will use all my power and all the force and all the prestige of my office to help you come to a conclusion and a solution of your problem," which is not just one of mining coal.

We are told by the coal interests that coal supplies are rapidly running out and then when they are gone, what is going to happen to this huge population in that region?

On one of our trips to Wilkes-Barre we ran into a delegation of Rotary clubs, Kiwanis clubs and other service clubs who had been to Washington to see if they could not induce some industry to come into the hard coal region, and, of course, they got the answer, "how can we erect huge and expensive plants when we do not know whether those plants will sink into a void beneath the land?"

The people of the hard coal region have a problem and I assure you that it is to my great regret and the regret of this commission that our program has been sabotaged and we must say to the people of the anthracite region "you were right; we were just another commission."

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. WALKER asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, this seems to be the afternoon for it and I do not blame the Senate chamber for gradually becoming vacant. I sympathize with the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Cox. It has been my observation that here in the Legislature you do not get all you expect and you do not expect all you get.

I would like to make a comment about legislative action because I think there is a principle involved, and I want to discuss the principle involved. I would like to forget the personalities of those who sponsor bills and just try to bring to the attention of the Senate the things that are occurring, because there are a whole lot of speeches made on the floor of this Senate about preservation of this great Republic and keeping the home fires burning, a lot of speeches that are so corny that it takes ration points to get them out of the grocery store.

On January 25, 1943, I introduced a bill at the request of the Pennsylvania Bar Association. That bill was not thought up overnight; it was the result of an investigation which had been made by the Committee on Judiciary General of the Legislature in 1941. A sub-committee of the Committee on Judiciary General spent a lot of time on it, we acquired a lot of data, and we introduced a resolution in 1941 calling for an investigation of the rules and regulations of these bureaus, boards, commissions and departments that are cluttering up Capitol Hill, and we got an astonishing amount of information. The Pennsylvania Bar Association continued to conduct that investigation and as a result of their investigation they drafted a bill which was known as the administrative agency act, which attempted to curb legislation by bureaucracy.

We have heard a lot of stories about bureaucracy, there have been a lot of speeches made and there have been a lot of columns in newspapers and magazines and periodicals, and we have grown indignant over the fact that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and also the government at Washington is being run by various departments and bureaucracies; we have said that we ought to do something about that situation because it is unAmerican, it is not Republican, it is not the American way of life, it is not our representative form of government, and huge benefits would result if we changed all that. And then, Mr. President, we get a chance to strike a blow for freedom, we get a bill that curbs bureaucracy, it passed this Senate on March 16, by a vote of 38 to 2, it went over to the House and was referred to the Committee on Judiciary General on March 22, 1943.

Now, Mr. President, from the day that bill was introduced the pressure from all those bureaucrats on Capitol Hill could be felt; you could just feel a gradual lessening of enthusiasm among the legislators on Capitol Hill because of the fact that they were being harassed by every bureau, board and department on Capitol Hill to kill this bill.

After a lot of hard work and after a lot of genuine skull-drudgery and log-rolling, we got the bill out of the Committee of Judiciary General in the House and out on the Calendar, and there it was exposed to that subtle legislative trick known as "kissing it to death." Everyone fell in love with the bill, they fell in love with it so much that they wanted to get their fingerprints on it, so they introduced amendments and it became so cluttered with amendments that the only thing left in the bill that you could recognize was the number of the bill and the name of the sponsors, and finally it was so loaded down with amendments that it bent in the middle, and then last night it was recommitted to the Committee on Judiciary General in the House, and there, you and I know what is going to happen to the bill—the bureaucrats have won another victory.

Mr. President, it is not important that Senate Bill No. 53 be passed, it is not important that I suddenly become the father of a piece of legislation, but the important thing is this, that if we are opposed to bureaucracy in Pennsylvania, if this Senate and if the House and if this representative form of government is opposed to bureaucracy, then why do we not do something about it? We sit idly by and we are smug and complacent and we let these bureaucrats here on Capitol Hill slam the door closed on the only piece of legislation that would block legislation by bureaucracy.

No longer do I want to hear any of these so-called enemies of bureaucratic form of government make speeches against that form of government, because there is one thing that has no place at a time or in a place like this, anything that smacks of hypocrisy, and if we are against bureaucratic government we ought to put a curb on it; if we are going to let our government be run by these smug, complacent, self-sufficient bureaucrats who were created by this very Legislature, then we ought to abandon a representative form of government and let those bureaucrats take care of our government.

It is not important, Mr. President—I am repeating because to me this is a serious proposition—it is not important that this bill be passed. The important thing is this, that year after year after year, when the public has caught up with us and put us out of public office, there will be attempts made to curb the authority of these bureaucratic boards and commissions on Capitol Hill, but you are going to find that it will be too late, because you did not stop them in their infancy.

Senate Bill No. 53 has been killed by these legislative bureaucrats, and you and I are responsible for it, because we are letting them get away with it and in time to come you will be sorry you did not put a stop to it.

They took over Washington—they did something the British could not do, they captured Washington and bent it to their will, and they will keep doing that for a long time, and now they have moved up and they did something else the British army could not do, they have captured Harrisburg, and they are going to hold it as long as you and I will be simple enough to let them get away with it.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. COLEMAN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. COLEMAN. One of the most vicious practices in America, guided by a group of unscrupulous individuals which threatens the successful termination of the war, is the so-called black market. I believe that Pennsylvania ought to take cognizance of its responsibility to handle the rationing program in this Commonwealth.

I co-sponsored a bill with Senator Woodring and Senator Cox which would have had the practical effect of curbing black markets in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. These bills were reported out of committee, had several readings on the Calendar, and last Monday afternoon by a solid Republican vote these bills were recommitted.

Those who spoke against the bills, with daring candor, admitted that their purpose was to kill the bills. The arguments against the bills were many and varied. For example, one of the Republican Senators said there was no necessity for it, but I on the contrary say there is absolute necessity for such legislation. One gentleman doubted its constitutionality, and another one said that he thought we were interfering with something that was purely a Federal function.

Today, Mr. President, I picked up the Pittsburgh Post Gazette and my attention was called to a heading which reads "Governor Joins Dewey Campaign." Clothed in such terms of ambiguity, and having in mind that the Governor of the state of New York has presidential aspirations, maybe that has more than usual significance. Reading further I notice "Black Market Drive Planned By Martin" and again in a subtitle "Republican Vote in Senate Kill Two O.P.A. Bills To Curb Practice," and reading further it states "In response to a call from New York's Governor Dewey, urging interstate co-operation, Governor Edward Martin announced today that he has asked a special committee of state officials to devise a program for wiping out 'black markets' in Pennsylvania. Make-up of the special committee was not revealed by the Governor. It was learned, however, that the Department of Justice and state police have been consulted. The program, the Governor said, will be designed to eliminate 'black markets' and to aid in strict enforcement of Federal rationing, freezing and price fixing orders.

"Without such co-operative state enforcement," says the Governor of New York, using the very argument we used in our pleas for the passage of these bills, said he, "our people will suffer."

I rise today to point out the insincerity of the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania—three days after two bills which would have brought about the desired effect had been killed by the Republican majority in the Senate of Pennsylvania. I heard nary a word from the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania when these bills were before us for consideration; I heard nary a word from any Republican members of this Senate that these bills ought to pass, and I rise this afternoon to protest against this apparent insincerity on the part of the administration.

It obviously makes a difference, Mr. President, who asks for these particular measures. When the request comes from the Republican Governor of the state of New York, the response is "we will do everything we can to co-operate in such a program, Martin commented upon receipt of Governor Dewey's letter," but when the request comes from the Democratic members of the Senate, the result is the recommitting of the bills for the obvious purpose of killing them in committee.

RESOLUTION

Mr. TAYLOR offered the following resolution which was twice read as follows:

RECOMMENDING THAT THE JOINT STATE GOVERNMENT COMMISSION MAKE A STUDY OF THE DISTRIBUTION OF STATE FUNDS TO ALL POLITICAL SUBDIVISIONS AND COUNTIES OF THE STATE

In the Senate, May 7, 1943.

Whereas, The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania recognizes that there should be some equitable distribution of State funds to the cities, boroughs and townships of the first class for the maintenance of their streets and highways in view of the substantial distributions that have been made and are still being made to the counties and the second class townships of the State; and

Whereas, war conditions and the curtailed use of automobiles with the consequent reduction in revenues have rendered it impossible at this session to make any further contributions or to set up any permanent plan of distribution to all the municipal subdivisions which is the objective the General Assembly hopes, ultimately, to attain; and

Whereas, one half cent of gasoline tax is now distributed currently to the counties in addition to the substantial appropriation to the second class townships, and

Whereas, a few of the counties, recognizing the situation, have made an equitable distribution of a part of the funds received from the State among their municipal subdivisions exclusive of second class townships; now therefore be it

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur), That it is the sense of the General Assembly that all of the counties of the State should make a fair and equitable distribution of a portion of the funds received by them from the gasoline tax among their political subdivisions to assist said subdivisions in the maintenance of their streets and highways; and be it further

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur), That the Joint State Government Commission in conjunction with the Department of Highways be, and they hereby are directed to make a study of the distribution of State funds to all of the political subdivisions of the State as well as to the counties with the objective in mind of establishing a permanent and equitable distribution of a portion of the funds of the Commonwealth so that all political subdivisions will receive their fair proportionate share of the funds and thus equitably relieve local real estate of taxation to the greatest extent possible.

Mr. TAYLOR. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Rule 39, which requires resolutions be referred to an appropriate committee, be suspended and the Senate do now proceed to the consideration of the resolution just read.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. Is there objection?

Mr. COLEMAN. If it were not for the fact that the subject matter of this resolution is so important to the people of the cities, boroughs and townships of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, it would be almost laughable.

During the eight years I have served in the General Assembly I have introduced four different—

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. Is the gentleman from Lackawanna objecting to immediate consideration of the resolution, or does he wish to debate the resolution?

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I am objecting to immediate consideration and I am going to give my reasons, if I may.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. If there is objection the resolution will lay over. Does the gentleman from Lackawanna object?

Mr. COLEMAN. Not at all, Mr. President.

RESOLUTION LAID ON TABLE

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I move that the resolution be laid on the table.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. The resolution will be laid on the table.

Mr. HEYBURN. I assume the members of the Senate want the resolution to lay on the table in order that they may read it; is that right?

Mr. BARR. Let it lay on the table.

REPORTS FROM COMMITTEES

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to make report from committee at this time.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. TALLMAN, from the Committee on State Government, to which was referred on May 6, 1943, the following resolution from the House of Representatives reported the same without amendment as follows, viz:

COMPILATION OF LAWS RELATING TO COUNTY AND CITY SEALERS OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES

In the House of Representatives, April 29, 1943.

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the Legislative Reference Bureau of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania be directed to prepare at an early date a compilation of the laws of the Commonwealth relating to county and city sealers of weights and measures, and that said compilation shall be printed as a legislative document, and shall be distributed and sold by the Department of Property and Supplies in the manner provided by law.

A motion was made by Mr. TALLMAN

That Rule 39, which requires resolution reported from committee to lie over for one day be dispensed with and the Senate proceed to the consideration of the foregoing resolution.

Which was agreed to.

On the question,

Will the Senate concur in the same?

It was concurred in.

Ordered, That the Clerk return the same to the House of Representatives with information that the Senate has passed the same without amendment.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to make report from committee at this time.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

An Act authorizing and directing the Legislative Reference Bureau to compile, edit and publish a compilation of laws relating to townships of the first class; and making an appropriation.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Lancaster.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. Will the gentleman from Lancaster permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. HOMSHER. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. HALUSKA. I would like the gentleman from Lancaster to state whether or not under this proposed act the State Department of Public Assistance will have the authority to compel a relief recipient to sign a bond.

Mr. HOMSHER. The same procedure will be followed as has been followed in the past.

Mr. HALUSKA. Will the gentleman from Lancaster tell me whether or not the law as it now stands makes any provision for a bond to be signed?

Mr. HOMSHER. Under an opinion of the Attorney General, it is obligatory upon the Secretary of Public Assistance to require the signing of this agreement.

Mr. HALUSKA. Is it not a fact that on page 6 of the original act, which is now stricken out, section 6 states as follows: "Rules and Regulations. The State Board of Public Assistance shall have the power to promulgate rules and regulations concerning the administration of this act including the establishment of standards of eligibility for assistance and its nature and extent?" Mr. President, the bill as amended takes away that authority to give them power to make rules and regulations, does it not?

Mr. HOMSHER. I fail to understand the question asked by the gentleman from Cambria.

Mr. HALUSKA. The bill now as amended takes away the power of the state board to make its own rules and regulations; is that not correct?

Mr. HOMSHER. The State Board will promulgate general rules and regulations and confer more power and more latitude upon the county boards.

Mr. HALUSKA. Is it not a fact that under the new amendment on page 7 the following will be included "Powers and Duties of State Board of Public Assistance. The powers and duties of the State Board of Public Assistance shall be regulatory and advisory and not administrative or executive."

Mr. HOMSHER. That is correct.

Mr. HALUSKA. That means, to my mind, that they no longer will have the power to make any such rules as to compel relief recipients to sign a bond.

Mr. HOMSHER. That comes under an entirely different part of the general public assistance law and it is not under the public assistance act; it is under the general assistance laws of the state, and refers not only to public assistance but also refers to public assistance of any kind.

Mr. HALUSKA. Does the gentleman from Lancaster think that it is the intent of this Legislature to give additional legislative powers to the state board of Public Assistance?

Mr. HOMSHER. This does not give the State Board of Public Assistance any additional power.

Mr. HALUSKA. Is it the intent to give them any legislative powers?

Mr. HOMSHER. It is not.

Mr. HALUSKA. I assume from the statement of the gentleman from Lancaster that the State Board can not enforce rules of their own and compel a relief recipient or aged person to sign a bond?

Mr. HOMSHER. The State Board of Public Assistance and the State Department of Public Assistance must carry out the law as it is interpreted by the Attorney General.

Mr. HALUSKA. I do not know to whom we give power, the Attorney General or the state board, but if I read the bill correctly it would delegate certain powers to the State Board, and they in turn delegate those powers to the Department of Public Assistance and they in turn delegate powers to the County boards. I find no place in the act where the Attorney General appears.

Mr. HOMSHER. No, Mr. President, the name of the Attorney General does not appear but the Attorney General renders legal advice to the various bureaus and departments of the state government.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President and members of this assembly, up until this time under the laws of public assistance the law now reads that the State Board of Public Assistance shall have the right to make its own rules and regulations and thereunder they have taken upon themselves the power to set forth the procedure where a relief recipient must sign a bond, whether receiving old age assistance or direct relief.

Under this act as I read it I find that that power has been taken away from the State Board, and I insist it is not now the intention of this Legislature to give that board that same power, and they shall be prohibited from further asking a relief recipient to sign a bond. It states very clearly that, "It shall be a policy making body determining the policies and principles of administration upon which public assistance shall be administered by the local boards."

In no place in this act can you find anything dealing directly with a bond. I am opposed to this measure for that reason and for many other reasons.

Other states now have legislation paying to the aged at the age of sixty a reasonable old age pension. This bill remains as it, at the age of sixty-five. This bill compels the thrifty home owner, a citizen, to assign his property to this government for any help that he may receive, but on the other hand the public drone, the man or woman who did nothing and has nothing, gives nothing. We definitely are penalizing the citizens of our Commonwealth who have been good citizens and good Americans. I say it is class legislation and certainly has no place on our statute books and I trust that my colleagues on this side of the Senate and those of you on the other side who believe in humans as humans will vote against this measure.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I know that no amount of talk will change any votes on this bill.

We over here are willing to admit that there are at least two good features in this bill, one dealing with reciprocal agreements between states in the matter of handling transient relief, and the other the outright repeal of a very bad law, the Eckels milk law.

However, Mr. President, under the guise of doing two worthwhile things, we are doing something that is very dangerous. If you will look at the amendments you will see that we are now putting the Department of Public Assistance and the Secretary of Public Assistance, a full fledged cabinet officer, in the position of being only a regulatory officer and an advisory department. You are now giving back to the so-called local boards the right to hire and fire employees. It is another stab, of course, at civil service protection.

I do not care about that, because you all know how I personally feel about security in position, other than by ability and merit. However, we once had local control over relief through the county poor homes and poor boards, and if you want to go back to that, why do you not repeal the act as it now stands on the statute books, and do it openly and above board?

Mr. President and members of the Senate, I have heard the argument that this is for home rule. Charity and relief transcend the home rule policy of government, that philosophy of government that has been demonstrated by the fact that we here in Pennsylvania, although we ask for state rights and demand state rights, have accepted and pled for Federal assistance in the administrative end and in the relief setup in the state of Pennsylvania.

When we were not getting enough W. P. A., I can remember when Governor James accused the Federal Government of sidestepping Pennsylvania's needs because he was a Republican. I did not hear anything then about state rights. The only time I heard anything about state rights was when the Federal Government was building flood control dams, when, over an argument on state rights, we held up the program of flood control in the state of Pennsylvania and caused untold damage in this state.

However, that has nothing to do with this bill. But I warn the members of the Senate that they are voting for a return of the old poor laws. You can call it by any name that you desire, but that is exactly what the amendments to this act do.

I believe it might be all right if you want to have an advisory council here in Harrisburg on relief, on the need of assistance and so forth, the administrative end of it, just a board or bureau as you call them, but why set up a full cabinet office, with no powers other than administrative or advisory, and give back into the hands of the local boards of assistance the very thing that we took away from them when we passed the so-called Goodrich plan or the centralized public assistance program in the state of Pennsylvania?

Every person here knew that the poor house had to go if we were to continue in our forward march; everybody here knows that this is a step backwards in the handling of a delicate problem. We can not vote for this bill because by so doing we further say to the people of Pennsylvania that we members of the Senate believe that a poor individual who happens to own a homestead, has to sign that homestead over to this paternal state in order that they may receive public assistance and relief.

I say that we say that directly, because we are voting for an amended bill with that provision, which no longer requires the signing of bonds, stricken out by a committee of the Senate.

Therefore, Mr. President, although there are two good features to the bill, I can see many bad features and I ask my colleagues who believe that relief ought not be put into the hands of petty politicians back in the counties, who believe that the poor people should not be required to sign a bond, I ask my colleagues who believe that to vote "no" on this bill.

Mr. TALLMAN. Inasmuch as the gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Dent, has gone a little bit far afield in his discussion of this bill, I do not propose to take the time of the Senate in discussing all of the matters that he has raised, but I would like to just touch upon two of the points mentioned by the gentleman from Westmoreland.

In the first instance, I believe, Mr. President, that the gentleman from Westmoreland has misinterpreted—perhaps wilfully, perhaps not—the general intent of the bill in so far as it concerns the power given in the bill to local boards. I think he must understand, and certainly this Senate knows, that the powers given to the local boards under these amendments are within the limitations of the law and are within the limitations of the rules and regulations under which all boards have functioned up to this time.

I think probably we differ, many of us, in our interpretation of home rule, but it certainly is true that within the limitations of the law and within the limitations of the rules and regulations of the department under the law, there ought to be some possibility for local boards to use some discretion in dealing with individual cases, and I dare say to the gentleman from Westmoreland, and I know that he is interested, that under these amendments I believe there will be a better administration of public assistance than heretofore.

I have only one other matter on which I desire to take issue with the gentleman from Westmoreland, and that is his reference to civil service. I think any person who reads this bill will be perfectly satisfied that the powers given to the local boards under the provisions of these amendments have no effect at all upon the civil service status of any employees. They merely have the right to supervise and determine the number of employees that are necessary to carry on the functions of the board, within and under all of the laws pertaining to civil service that now exist, and I think the gentleman from Westmoreland is very badly mistaken when he brings that up as an objection to passage of this bill.

Mr. DENT. Many times in debate upon bills I have heard members of the opposition state that a previous speaker who has different views is mistaken, that he has misinterpreted a certain bill. Let us assume that I believe the gentleman from Lehigh misinterpreted the law. I read in section (b) a thing that I think destroys civil service; he does not think it does that—that is his opinion; I think it does—that is my opinion. I do not wilfully misinterpret the provisions of the act; I interpret them to the best of my ability. If I am wrong, later administration of this act will prove me to be wrong; if he is wrong, later administration of the act will prove him to be wrong.

When I read the words "to determine the number of employees" I say that gives to local boards the right to hire and fire. I may be wrong in that interpretation, but I still insist that is the way I read it, and I say that is the way I believe the framers of this amendments intended it to be read.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

BILLS ON CONCURRENCE IN HOUSE AMENDMENTS

Agreeably to order,

The Senate resumed the consideration of Senate Bill No. 165, entitled:

An Act to amend section six hundred seven, and to further amend section seven hundred one of the act, approved the ninth day of April, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine (P. L. 177), entitled "An act providing for and reorganizing the conduct of the executive and administrative work of the Commonwealth by the Executive Department thereof and the administrative departments, boards, commissions, and officers thereof, including the boards of trustees of State Normal Schools, or Teachers Colleges; abolishing, creating, reorganizing or authorizing the reorganization of certain administrative departments, boards, and commissions; defining the powers and duties of the Governor and other executive and administrative officers, and of the several administrative departments, boards, commissions, and officers; fixing the salaries of the Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, and certain other executive and administrative officers; providing for the appointment of certain administrative officers, and of all deputies and other assistants and employees in certain departments, boards, and commissions; and prescribing the manner in which the number and compensation of the deputies and all other assistants and employees of certain departments, boards and commissions shall be determined," by authorizing the appointment of certified public accountants for the purpose of auditing the accounts of the Auditor General, and requiring the Auditor General to submit all books, records and papers to such accountants

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Will the Senate concur in the same?

Mr. SHAPIRO. I do not know whether the sponsor of this bill intended this or not, but it seems to me that we should not give the power to anyone to investigate the personal affairs of the Auditor General or any other officer of the Commonwealth.

The way this bill has been amended in the House it provides for the appointment of accountants to investigate the affairs of the Auditor General and then the affairs of the Auditor General's Department. If the amendment had not been worded that way, I might have felt I was not right about my reading of this bill, but it provides separately and definitely, first, for the investigation of the affairs of the Auditor General and, secondly, for investigation of the affairs of the Auditor General's Department. It seems to me that is going a little bit too far. In addition to that, this amendment now provides not that the Governor may appoint certified public accountants to investigate the accounts but that he may appoint accountants, public accountants and auditors—the words "certified public" have been taken out of this bill.

There has been a great deal said about this bill, about its political attitude and its political implications, and I hope the members on the other side will not add any more political implications, because that makes it purely a vicious bill, and I am going to ask the members on my side to vote against this, and I hope the members on the other side will vote against concurring in these amendments.

Mr. WOODWARD. I understand that the word "affairs" is put in because that is an accepted word, which has been handed down. It is not an accurate word, and it is unfortunate it should be in there and it is also unfortunate in my opinion, that in the general appropriation bill they have put together the housekeeping for the executive mansion and the expense of paying these private certified public accountants to audit the Auditor General's office. It is just too bad that they are put together but they are.

In answer to a statement made by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro, a former Lieutenant-Governor, Mr. Lewis, who has held nearly every office in the state government—so that there seems to be nothing left for him—informed me that when he was Auditor General, during his career, one bright morning employes of the auditing firm of Main and Company were sent into his office by ex-Governor Fisher to audit his accounts and he said "come in, gentlemen," and he opened all his books, so of course, there is that precedent for this procedure. Personally, I do not see, if everyone else is audited, why this Auditor General should not be audited.

Mr. DENT. I just want to call to the attention of the Senate the fact that they took out of the bill the words "certified public accountants" and put in "competent accountants" and then in line with that they now put into the bill "the affairs of the Auditor General and the affairs of the Department."

I just want to make that one statement and say that this is no longer an administration bill—it is a Gestapo witch hunting bill.

Mr. WOODRING. Mr. President, I will be very brief. In addition to the reasons already advanced for voting against this bill, there is one other very pertinent factor and that is a bill introduced by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart, Senate Bill No. 589, which is in the House on second reading today and which will probably be passed tomorrow. That bill proposes an amendment to the fiscal code and it provides for the auditing of the Department of Auditor General, just as was originally intended in this bill, but instead of examining into the affairs of the person of the Auditor General, the bill introduced by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart, very wisely provides for auditing of the Department of the Auditor General. If the Kephart bill is passed in the House, and it will be if the Majority Party wants it, then this present bill which is being considered now could well be dropped from the Calendar.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate concur in the same?

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, I do not rise to oppose passage of this bill; on the contrary I rise to say a word for the faith that is in me.

This bill, Mr. President, has been known in the Legislature of Pennsylvania as one of the big truck bills and I, in company with a number of other members of the General Assembly, have opposed this legislation. We now are at a place, with the Nation at war, where men who have sat with me and I have sat with them feel that it is our patriotic duty to the country to vote for this legislation, whether we like it or not, and I think it is due to those men and due to myself that somebody should stand on this floor and say that we have not changed our opinions, that we have not changed our principles, but that the Government of the United States says to us that it needs this bill in the war effort, and regardless of our opinions, regardless of our thoughts as to whether the bill is a good bill or not, without any consideration of any kind as to whether we think the department is right when they say that this will help the war effort, if there is a possibility that this bill by any chance would shorten the war five minutes or an hour, or if it would save a single life, or if it would help the President of the United States in his efforts to successfully prosecute this war, I am sure there is nobody within the sound of my voice, Democrat or Republican, who would have it upon his soul or upon his conscience to not further that effort.

Many years ago in one of the towns of Pennsylvania, where there was no way of getting out of the city—there were no roads and the railroads had quit—, the community in which I lived did one of the most remarkable things in road building that I ever heard of. The citizens of Bradford built and paid for a bridge nearly a mile long in the state of New York in order that we might get out of the city of Bradford, and I have a very vivid memory of those times when we were having road meetings and when men of high character and dreams and ambitions were working to help their community and the state of Pennsylvania by building this road. I was very much ashamed, when I became a member of the Legislature, to find that the Legislature of Pennsylvania had come to the conclusion that this was a pact between truckers and railroads, as I had been raised to think that the roads of Pennsylvania belonged to the people of Pennsylvania; I did not think we built them either for the railroads or the truckers.

I want to make my position on this clear, because in the few years I have belonged to this Senate, I have taken a position against this class of legislation, and I have done it because I have believed that the people have a right to the roads, that they were not built as highways or road beds for trucks, and this was not a question between railroads and truckers, but it was a question for the people of Pennsylvania.

We are now in a war and a department of the Federal Government tells us that they need this bill and I feel it is my duty, regardless of what I think, to vote for it, and I sincerely hope that every one within the sound of my voice, if they feel that to be their duty, will vote for it also, in order that it might be said that we did the one thing that the government asked us to do.

I have not felt, Mr. President, that the Legislature of Pennsylvania has made too many sacrifices to win the war. During this last year, some of the most glorious things in the pages of history were done by young men who have been serving their government; young men in the Philippines stood where there was no hope and no help coming, knowing their cause was hopeless, without a chance to do anything, they stood there and fought and fought grimly, dying still unconquered with their faces to the foe, and when I stand in this Legislature and think of the sacrifices they made, I do not think that I have done very much. I am not speaking of anybody else.

I am hoping that in these last couple of days, until we close, we might catch some glimpse of the value put upon the liberty and the freedom of government we have, by those men who are so gallantly laying down their lives for those principles which we take so lightly.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, in the nine years I have spent in Harrisburg I have fought the so-called big truck bill; I have fought this bill not because I favored the railroads or had a hatred against the trucking industry, because that is not the case. The trucking industry of Pennsylvania, I believe, has contributed a great deal in helping to win this war.

Any one who travels weekly the super-highway is impressed with the boys who are carrying to the boats on our seaports the necessary war materials and are getting them there speedily and on time for the departure of the ships.

I believe a great injustice has been done to those who are interested and who have financed and have invested in the trucking industry. I know that those men who have their money invested do not want to take advantage of those who live in cities and compel our real estate taxes to continue to rise and rise for the further maintenance and upkeep of our streets. These truckers pay taxes, they pay driver's licenses, owner's licenses, and gasoline taxes, but due to some reasons unknown to me, this Legislature has never made a proper distribution of this high tax that the trucking industry pays. I do not think it is fair to permit the small home owners of our cities to pay each year enormous sums for the upkeep of our streets. If that is allowed to continue I want to repeat what I have said before, this is the only industry in which the real estate owner has been subsidized.

I believe if the Chairman of the Committee on Highways was fair and wanted to do the proper thing, he would have had reported out of the Committee on Highways that bill which would give the cities a fair share of the taxes that the trucking industry is now paying to the state. When this is done I do not believe any city or county officials will object to this type of legislation. I am voting for it this time because I believe it is necessary in the war effort. For another reason, I would have liked to have voted for it at the first session I was in Harrisburg, because I do not believe in trade barriers, between states or between countries, but I have been forced, like many others, to vote against this bill, not because we have an interest in railroads but because we have an interest in the little home owner.

Now I know, after talking to some of the officials of the trucking industry, that my request will be answered, that they will not devote all their energy, all the ability they have shown, to seeing that the taxes they are now paying are properly distributed and that the cities of Pennsylvania get their proper share.

I want to point out to the members of the Senate—I do not believe that the Assistant Secretary of War knows this—that Pennsylvania is the only state in the forty-eight that does not send back to the local municipalities a share of the gasoline tax, the drivers' licenses and the owners' licenses. In Ohio one-third is sent back, in Maryland, one-third is sent back, and the same is true of New Jersey as well as the state of New York.

I ask, during these dying days of this Session, that the Chairman of the Committee of Highways report out the bill giving back to the local municipalities a share of the tax paid by the trucking industry, so that we can maintain our streets without going back to the little home owner and raising his real estate taxes.

Mr. SNOWDEN. Mr. President, as Chairman of the Committee on Highways, while we were considering House Bill No. 634, there was a great deal of material which came to that committee, or rather which came to me, and I turned most of it over to the committee for consideration. The majority of this material, of course, was objectionable, but in the last few days of consideration there were two items which came to this committee in the form of telegrams from officials at Washington that had a great deal to do with the final decision on this bill, and I am going to present these two telegrams to the Chair with the request that they be included in the Journal.

"Washington, D. C., May 3, 1943.

"Hon. John Snowden, Chairman, Senate Highway Committee," Capitol Bldg., Harrisburg, Penna.

"HB 634 which would bring Pennsylvania laws covering weights and sizes of motor vehicles into closer uniformity with laws of surrounding states would remove barrier to transportation which has impeded vital war traffic. Passage of this bill would make possible more efficient use of existing transportation facilities in furtherance of war effort. War Department favors passage of this bill. Would appreciate your active support.

ROBERT P. PATTERSON,
Under Secretary of War."

Washington, D. C., April 30, 1943.

"Hon. John G. Snowden,
Chairman Senate Committee on Highways, Capitol Bldg., Harrisburg, Penna.

"We have been following closely House Bill 634 pending in your Legislature which seeks to provide for increased truck loads in Pennsylvania. The terms of this bill are entirely desirable and we feel that if this legislation becomes law it will remove a trade barrier which has existed in your state and which has impeded the free flow of war traffic. Appreciate your active support.

JOSEPH B. EASTMAN, Director."

I should like to say just a word further, Mr. President, concerning the statement of the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Holland, with reference to House Bill No. 835. The gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Holland, has made a statement apparently that is misleading to the public, to this extent, that they are not getting back any money from any of these licenses or any of this revenue, but if the gentleman from Allegheny will look at the record he will find that in several instances a great deal of this money has gone back. I am not in a position to say what the percentage is, as the question never came up before, but it runs into a good many millions of dollars, and I feel at the present time and under present conditions we can not afford to deplete the motor license fund any further at this time. However, I do want to assure the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Holland, and my other colleagues in this Senate, that there is an honest effort being made to work out an equitable plan whereby all of the different agencies in this state will be taken care of in a proper appropriation, not later than the next Session. That is rather a disappointing statement, two years from now, but two years roll around rather quickly, and I feel we would rather do it in a logical, fair and businesslike manner two years from now, rather than jump in now and deplete this fund, and I feel and believe the majority of those who have studied this plan believe that if adopted today, it would not provide a fair distribution of these funds.

Mr. MAILERY. Mr. President, I read a communication from the War Department stating that this legislation that we are now considering is imperative in promoting the war effort. I come from a railroad town and I want to say that there is no group of civilians who are endeavoring to contribute to the war effort more than the shop men and the railroad men of Blair County, Pennsylvania. There is no absenteeism there. I know that the railroad men are reporting to their work half an hour ahead of time, in order to make certain that they will be there on time.

I am going to support this bill because in this session of the Legislature I want to do everything that I can to bring this terrible war to a speedy and successful end.

Mr. MCGINNIS, Mr. President, I have a great pride in many things that have come out of Washington in the last ten years. The New Deal has done a bold and courageous thing and I am very happy today that word has come out of Washington to this Senate that has broken the stranglehold the Pennsylvania Railroad has had in this state for fifty years.

The trucking industry is a new industry comparatively—it was only a few years ago that trucks came out on our highways, and today there is not a hamlet or a crossroad that does not have fresh fruit and vegetables every morning. Over the highways you see freight moving—you call them box-cars but they are filled with goods that some souls need and want some place.

The worst thing that could happen to America would be to put barriers around our states; that is one thing that has made America and the United States—traffic has moved across state lines just as free as airplanes pass over state lines and as railroads go through and over state lines, and if we ever in this country put any barriers around this state of Pennsylvania and make an island or desert out of it, it will not be for the good of Pennsylvania. If the states around Pennsylvania can build roads and highways which can support these trucks and our roads can not or do not, we ought to build better roads and better bridges. If other states all around us have good roads and allow these trucks carrying certain weights to travel over their highways and deliver goods and if they must come to our borders and then unload, do you know what happens? They go around Pennsylvania now, in around Ohio, in around through New York State; we miss the gasoline tax; they have to make longer hauls; it is interfering with the free movement of goods, and anything that will put a barrier around this state will hurt us.

I am glad at last to find that here in Pennsylvania the march of progress is going on and that we have at last in Pennsylvania, for awhile at least, a bill that allows free movement of goods from any state in this union to come through our state.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, I am sorry to see this matter put on the basis suggested by the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator McGinnis, because I do not believe it should be on that basis and I feel that the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator McGinnis, is mistaken.

The people of Pennsylvania have built these roads and they are entitled to the use of them. We can not argue against this bill because the government says we need it in the war effort and every patriotic citizen says "if the government says it needs it, we will not even argue whether the government is right or wrong." When this bill passes there may be many men who will sit here and vote "aye" but they will not vote "aye" because of the big truck argument made by my colleague, the Democratic Floor Leader, nor because of any of those considerations, because the New Deal would have to be a lot more potent than it is before it could change Tom Wilson, if it were not for the fact it is my patriotic duty to vote for the bill. I am going to vote for it and lots of other men sitting here are going to vote for it, but I want to say to the Minority Leader that it would not be out on the Calendar even for consideration if it had not been for the fact that this is now on a very high level and it is our duty to vote for it, and I hope the membership of this Senate will vote for it and support the government and the President and the War Department when they say this bill is necessary and I think that is the duty of legislators and that is the basis on which I shall cast my vote, and not because of the beautiful thoughts expressed by my friend from Allegheny, Senator McGinnis.

Mr. GOURLEY. Mr. President, for the same reasons so ably expressed by the gentleman from Blair, Senator Mailery, I shall vote "aye" in support of this bill.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

BILL ON SECOND READING AMENDED

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 842, entitled:

An Act to amend section one to further amend section five and to amend section six of the act approved and twenty-ninth day of April one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 551) entitled "An act prohibiting the employment of miners as herein defined in the bituminous coal mines unless certified by a miners' examining board providing for the appointment of such boards and defining their powers and duties providing penalties and making an appropriation" by increasing the number of apprentice miners permitted to work with one miner redefining the word "miner" and reducing the number of years of experience necessary to qualify an apprentice to take examination for certificate

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. LETZLER. Mr. President, it is my intention to offer amendments to House Bill No. 842 but before doing so I desire to make a brief statement.

The amendments I am about to offer, on behalf of the gentleman from Cambria, Senator Haluska, and myself, are as a result of a conference which took place between a sub-committee of the Committee of Mines and Mining, consisting of the Senator from Cambria, Senator Haluska and myself, and the Secretary of Mines and Mining, Mr. Maize and representatives of the United Mines Workers, and as result of that conference these amendments were prepared.

I am very happy to say that we all believe the amendments are constructive and all parties in attendance at the conference were very much pleased with the result of this arrangement.

Mr. LETZLER on behalf of Mr. HALUSKA and himself offered the following amendments:

Amend Sec. 1 (sec. 1) page 2, line 21, by striking out the word "of" where it appears for the second time in said lines, and inserting in lieu thereof the word "or"; Amend Sec. 1 (sec. 1) page 2, line 28, by underscoring the word "also"; Amend Sec. 1 (sec. 1) page 3, lines 1 and 2, by underscoring all of said lines; Amend Sec. 1 (sec. 1) page 3, line 2 by inserting after the word "faces" the words "and motormen"

They were agreed to.

The section was agreed to as amended.

The second section was read.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. LETZLER on behalf of Mr. HALUSKA offered the following amendments:

Amend Sec. 2 (sec. 5) page 4, lines 18 and 19, by striking out the bracket before the word "the" in line 18 and after the word "bituminous" in line 19; Amend Sec. 2 (sec. 5) page 4, line 19, by striking out the bracket before the word "of" and after the word "Commonwealth".

They were agreed to.

The section was agreed to as amended.

The third section and title were separately read and agreed to.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to, as amended,

HOUSE BILL No. 517, PRINTER'S No. 768 CALLED UP

Mr. WOODRING. Mr. President, I call up at this time, out of order, House Bill No. 517, Printer's No. 768, on page 21 of the Second Reading Calendar.

BILL ON SECOND READING

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 517, entitled:

An Act to further amend section one of the act approved the twenty-eighth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and seventeen (P. L. 645) entitled "An act making it unlawful for any individual or individuals to carry on or conduct any business under an assumed or fictitious name style or designation unless upon the filing of a certificate to that effect in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth and of the prothonotary requiring county commissioners at the expense of the county to provide books for the entry of such certificates fixing the fees of the Secretary of the Commonwealth and prothonotary and providing penalties" by requiring notice of intention to file such certificates to be given by advertisement and the filing of proofs of such publication.

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. WOODRING. Mr. President, I am about to present amendments to House Bill No. 517, but inasmuch as the amendments are rather lengthy and the membership will probably not get a clear idea of what they endeavor to do, I should like to offer a short explanation.

This is the Fictitious Names Act. The original act, in its present form, now calls for newspaper publications in connection with the registration of fictitious names.

I have spoken on the floor on former occasions concerning a desire to include corporations within the scope of the Fictitious Names Act and these amendments will do that. I have pointed out my reasons for that desire previously. I have no particular corporation in mind, to favor or to harm, but I do think the people of the state are entitled to know who is doing business in our communities and these amendments would accomplish that purpose.

Mr. WOODRING offered the following amendments:

Amend Sec. 1 (sec. 1) page 2, line 16, by inserting after the word "individuals" the words "and no corporation"; Amend Sec. 1 (sec. 1) page 2, line 19, by inserting after the word "designation" the following: "or in the case of a corporation other than its proper corporate name"; Amend Sec. 1 (sec. 1) page 2, line 20, by inserting after the word "same" the words "or the proper officers of the corporation"; Amend Sec. 1 (sec. 1) page 2, line 24, by inserting after the word "persons" the words "or corporate officers"; Amend Sec. 1 (sec. 1) page 3, line 2, by inserting after the word "business" the following: "or the name and registered address of the corporation"; Amend Sec. 1 (sec. 1) page 3, line 18, by inserting after the word "person" the following: "or corporation"; Amend Sec. 1 (sec. 1) page 5, line 10, by inserting after the word "persons" the words "or corporation"; Amend Sec. 1 (sec. 1) page 5, line 18, by inserting after the word "persons" the words "or corporation"; Amend Sec. 1 (sec. 1) page 6, line 3, by inserting after the word "persons" the words "or the corporation"; Amend Sec. 1 (sec. 1) page 6, line 12, by inserting after the part word "sons" the words "or corporation"; Amend Sec. 1 (sec. 1) page 6, line 15, by inserting after the word "persons" the words "or corporation"; Amend Sec. 1 (sec. 1) page 6, line 19, by inserting after the word "persons" the words "or corporation"; Amend Sec. 1 (sec. 1) page 6, line 22, by inserting after the word "persons" the words "or corporations"; Amend Sec. 1 (sec. 1) page 6, line 23, by inserting after the word "persons" the words "or corporation"; Amend Sec. 1 (sec. 1) page 6, line 28, by inserting after the word "persons" the words "or corporations"; Amend bill, page 7, by inserting between lines 15 and 16 the following:

Section 2. Section three of said act, is hereby amended to read as follows:

Section 3. Any person or corporation carrying on or conducting any business in violation of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or, in the case of individuals and the responsible officers of corporations, by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both, in the discretion of the court.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

(A voice vote having been taken the question was determined in the negative.)

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

It was agreed to.

The second section was read.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. WOODRING offered the following amendment:

Amend Sec. 2, page 7, line 16, by striking out the figure "2" and inserting in lieu thereof the figure "3".

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

(A voice vote having been taken the question was determined in the negative.)

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

It was agreed to.

The title was read.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the title?

Mr. WOODRING offered the following amendments:

Amend title, page 1, line 1, by striking out the words "section one" and inserting in lieu thereof the words "sections one and three"; Amend title, page 2, last line of section one, by inserting after the word "publication" the following: "extending the provisions of said act to corporations; and prescribing penalties."

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

(A voice vote having been taken the question was determined in the negative.)

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the title?

It was agreed to.

And the bill having been read at length the second time, and agreed to,

HOUSE BILL No. 135, PRINTER'S No. 335 CALLED UP

Mr. COX. Mr. President, I call up at this time House Bill No. 135, Printer's No. 335, on page 19 of today's Second Reading Calendar, for the purpose of offering amendments.

BILL ON SECOND READING

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 135, entitled:

An Act to further amend section one thousand two hundred five A of the act approved the eighteenth day of May one thousand nine hundred eleven (P. L. 309) entitled "An act to establish a public school system in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania together with the provisions by which it shall be administered and prescribing penalties for the violation thereof providing revenue to establish and maintain the same and the method of collecting such revenue and repealing all laws general special or local or any parts thereof that are or may be inconsistent therewith" authorizing temporary increases in compensation of professional employees of school districts and the discontinuance of such temporary increases without the consent of such employees.

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. COX. I might say by way of explanation that this bill in my opinion is a much needed bill because it gives authority to school districts to make temporary increases in wages during the period of war necessity and provides that after the necessity is over such increases may be taken away.

My amendments are very brief and simply provide that when the time comes to make this decrease the decrease must be uniform, which means, of course, that such an increase could not be taken away from either one or two or more persons and permitted to others.

Mr. COX offered the following amendment:

Amend Section 1205-A (Sec. 1) page 3, line 20 by inserting after the word "section" the following: "Any discontinuance of any temporary increase granted under authority of this paragraph shall be made uniformly as to all members of the teaching and supervisory staff who have received such temporary increase."

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that House Bill No. 135 on second reading, go over in its order, temporarily, in order that we may consider the amendments offered by the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Cox.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

SENATE BILL No. 345, PRINTER'S No. 359 CALLED UP

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I call up at this time Senate Bill No. 345, Printer's No. 359, on concurrence in House amendments and suggest that the Senate non-concur in the amendments by voting "no".

BILL ON CONCURRENCE IN HOUSE AMENDMENTS

Agreeably to order,

The Senate resumed the consideration of Senate Bill No. 345, entitled:

An Act to further amend the act approved the first day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 1168) entitled "An act to protect the right of employees to organize and bargain collectively creating the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board officers of the State government and courts providing for the right of employees to organize and bargain collectively declaring certain labor practices by employers to be unfair further providing that representatives of a majority of the employees be the exclusive representatives of all the employees authorizing the board to conduct hearings and elections and certify as to representatives of employees for purposes of collective bargaining empowering the board to prevent any person from engaging in any unfair labor practice and providing a procedure for such cases including the issuance of a complaint the conducting of a hearing and the making of an order empowering the board to petition a court of common pleas for the enforcement of its order and providing a procedure for such cases providing for the review of an order of the board by a court of common pleas on petition of any person aggrieved by such order and establishing a procedure for such cases providing for an appeal from the common pleas court to the Supreme Court providing the board with investigatory powers including the power to issue subpoenas and the compelling of obedience to them through application to the proper court providing for service of papers and process of the board prescribing certain penalties" further regulating the right to and procedure on appeals to court

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Will the Senate concur in the same?

And said bill having been read at length the third time, On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent at this time to offer amendments.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

The Clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend the Title, page 2, line 12, by adding thereto the following: "and changing the name of Pennsylvania Motor Police to Pennsylvania State Police;" Amend Section 1, page 6, line 8 by striking out after the word "Pennsylvania" the following: "Motor", and inserting in lieu thereof the following "State"; Amend Section 1, page 6, line 15 by striking out after the word "Pennsylvania" the following: "Motor", and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "State".

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now reconsider the vote by which House Bill No. 723, entitled:

An Act to amend sections one, two and three of the act, approved the fourth day of May, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-seven (P. L. 727) entitled "A supplement to the act, approved the twentieth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen (P. BILL ON SECOND READING AMENDED

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 723.

The first section, Section 1, was read and agreed to.

The first section, Section 2, was read.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. HEYBURN offered the following amendments:

Amend page 3, section 2, line 18, by striking out after the word "investigators" the word "and"; Amend page 3, section 2, line 19, by inserting after the part word "praisers" the following: "and expert appraisers"; Amend page 3, section 2, line 20, by striking out after the word "laws" the balance of the line as follows: "[Whenever occasion]"; Amend page 3, section 2, by striking out lines 21 to 27 inclusive.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

Mr. WOODRING. On the question of adoption of these amendments it seems to me that the amendment to Section 2 should not be adopted because it provides for the appointment of expert appraisers

I think under the present administration in the Auditor General's Department no expert appraisers have been used. I think heretofore some expert appraisers have been used and they cost the state of Pennsylvania and the taxpayers of this state an unconscionable sum of money. I know of one estate where the appraiser received $50,000 for his work; I know of another estate where the appraiser received $25,000 for his work.

It seems to me, with the experts that we have in the department which will hereafter carry on this work, whatever that department may be, trained men, regular employees accustomed to this type of work, it seems to me they can go out and do the work for which the Commonwealth properly pays them, but it is not necessary that we go out and get expert appraisers and saddle the cost for those appraisers on the taxpayers of this Commonwealth and I suggest, therefore, that the amendments to section 2 be voted down.

All such reductions shall be uniform on the same percentage basis.

Section 5 In addition to the increases required by this act the board of directors (or board of public education) of each school district is hereby authorized to grant temporary or emergency increases in salaries to members of its teaching or supervisory staff for any period up to and including the thirtieth day of June one thousand nine hundred forty-five and to discontinue such increases at the end of the period for which the same were granted any law to the contrary notwithstanding and any temporary or emergency increases heretofore granted by any school district and the discontinuance thereof at the end of the period for which granted are hereby ratified confirmed and made valid notwithstanding the fact that the same may have been done without previous authority of law.

Section 6 The provisions of this act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment.

And said bill having been read at length the third time,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. HENRY I. WILSON. Mr. President and gentlemen of the Senate, before the question of whether this bill shall pass third reading is submitted to this Senate, I wish to make a few remarks.

It will be well remembered by the members of this Senate that a few weeks ago, when oratory was very plentiful upon the floor of this Senate, the Senator from Jefferson made a few remarks on the idea that if it was going to be wholesale, that he might take a part in it.

I want to say to this Senate, and the remarks I am about to make are based upon quite a long experience that I am afraid not only the members of the Senate but perhaps of the House and citizens generally in this state do not realize the importance of not only this measure but similar measures, on the idea of the formation of groups not only in this state but in every state in the Union. I wonder if you have noticed how this has grown in recent years. I wonder if you have noticed what the result is and its application to questions that are financial. There is not anything about this bill excepting a financial problem. There is not anything about any of the group bills excepting financial problems. The groups of this state are making themselves felt.

I wonder how many letters you have received from your constituents on this particular bill. I wonder how many telegrams you have received in the nature of complaints. That is their perfect right, but the question of how far you dare go and not disturb the value of a dollar should be considered at this time.

I want to take this bill and tell you why it is here. It tells you that in order to provide for the maintenance and support of a thorough and an efficient public school system, to meet the increased cost of living during the present emergency, and to enable the teachers of this Commonwealth who are paid in the low salary brackets to maintain for themselves and their families a decent standard of living, the salaries of the following members of the teaching and supervisory staff of each school district are hereby increased.

Now, does that not mean that the value of the dollar has changed? Of course it does. If you read the papers today, Mr. President—take the situation as it is in Washington, and only those of us who lived during the seventies and eighties can personally understand the full meaning of the word that comes out of Washington today, can appreciate the dangers with which we are confronted.

Today there is a certain purchasing value so far as the dollar is concerned. Upon what is that value based? I claim that there is not anything behind the dollar today or any other day except the faith of the people. There is no more specie back of it than there was after the Civil War.

What happened after the Civil War? The value of the dollar went up as high as $3.40. That was a terrible time. There came a time later when we resumed specie payment and what does that mean? That means there is a certain value in metal. At that time it was gold and that happened in 1878. There are few people now living who know what that meant. It took a number of years to stabilize. If this thing goes on, each group trying selfishly to dictate, under the guise of equalizing their efforts in business, labor or otherwise, where will it end? There is a certain purchasing value today of a dollar. Next week it may only be about half as much or in three months it may only be half as much. That may happen at any moment.

It is my own personal opinion that this country is passing through the most dangerous period that it has passed through since the Civil War. It is my opinion that this is the most important session of the Legislature since the Civil War. It is my opinion that few Senators or members of the Assembly realize the danger in the devaluation of the dollar.

Now, Mr. President, of all the groups that come before us for recognition, there is no question but that the teachers have come to be first, and on account of their profession and on account of the things that are set forth in this bill they have about the best argument. It is unfortunate that there are certain members and Senators who believe that the very outside figure should be given not only to them but to others in the different groups; it may be in labor, it may be in the business field; each group hopes under the guise of equalization with other groups that they can get some advantage here.

I have not the slightest doubt but that there are people on the floor of this Senate who feel the bill as amended by the Senate and which probably will be passed is too small. There are others who feel it is too large.

Whichever way this bill is passed, and I assume it will be passed, whichever way it is passed, supposing the value of the dollar changed inside of six months, where would you stand, if it were made possible or made the subject of a special call, if they wanted to increase the values to keep up with the so-called necessity of equalizing each with the other?

The truth of the matter is that a great many of us want to stand in well with groups who are asking for special favors. As an example, I want to show you how these groups forget about it. These groups have written you hundreds and thousands of letters. We have a group known as the farmer's group and they want their interests protected; we have all the groups who are receiving help and they want themselves protected; we have groups who look after certain charities which want their matters protected; we have groups which represent certain funds that need help and they want protection; we have all kinds of groups coming here and, of course, they know just upon whom to call to get what they ask for.

Here is a sample: I have just received a telegram from my district and this is from a man who is engaged in teaching, a man I have known, and a very competent man. What would you think if you received this telegram: "Teachers in despair over your failure to pass salary bill; if you return without favorable action you share with others the ill will of every teacher in Pennsylvania."

This man is a splendid citizen. This man is receiving money for teaching and this man, without coming to the Capitol and without raising his right hand, and without ever having served in these halls and assuming responsibilities, says, "if you do not do thus and so you will receive the ill will of every teacher in Pennsylvania."

Well, that is unfortunate language to use. It shows you what that particular group thinks, how they have been instructed on what to do. You depend upon them to support you when you run for the Senate. I am wondering just how far this thing is going to go. For one, after having raised my right hand, I want to make the statement that we are in a very dangerous condition financially, and overnight the greatest crisis this country has ever seen financially might come. All you need to do is to take the figures in your bank book and find out how they are investing your money and what they are doing to do with it.

I wonder just what position we must take for the future. For myself, I am up here making these statements so they will go back home, because I claim, no matter what I do here, it is not done in fear of such telegrams or such letters as this, but because I thought it was the only thing to do.

I am going to vote for this bill as it has been arranged and take the chances, but I do not know what the effect of it will be. To permit a bill that carries an outlay of $24,300,000 as a bonus, if you please, in order to equalize, as they call it, the salaries of people in accordance with the figures therein set forth, is certainly a very serious matter and I know only that it happens to be a dare for every other group to come along.

Washington is in that same trouble this very day. I have only to take your local paper here and this local paper says, coming from Washington, "Storm gathers as the War Labor Board fights Inflation Move." What is inflation? Of course, inflation is a change in the purchasing value of a dollar, and this is what it says, in part:

Storm Gathers As WLB Fights Inflation Move

"The War Labor Board—a key bulwark of President Roosevelt's hold-the-line order against inflation—was being propelled rapidly today toward a new stabilization crisis.

"Its three-man panel continued hearings in the coal wage dispute which threatened war production with last weekend's walkout, but the United Mine Workers who defied its jurisdiction made no pretense of seeking either representation or participation.

"And elsewhere the signs of storm multiplied."

Here is the President of the United States warning the people of these things. What is going to happen? If this gets away from him and faith is destroyed, you have a financial crisis, and that nobody can appreciate except those of us who have been through them. I feel, while we may pass this bill in some form tonight, the school teachers and every other group who are going to receive or who have received favors from this Legislature at this Session of the Legislature should be told that the end is very near, when none of these groups will be able to have other favors extended to them, if the signs from Washington are such that the value of a dollar may not safely be disturbed much more.

Also, whatever we do for this particular group is not done because of the threats or the intimidations that are offered or the influences that are brought to bear, but because we conscientiously believe it is our duty.

Now, why do I feel it is our duty? For one, of all the groups that are organized in this country, the salvation and the safety of the future depends more upon that group known as the school teachers than upon any other group. We look forward to having school teachers developing human character, honesty and integrity, and in all my long lifetime and in my judgment there was never a time when the influences of a splendid school teacher upon the personal development, the development of moral character, stability and good citizenship, depended more upon them than at the present time.

I want to make the public statement that since 1935 I have been disturbed about the changed attitude of so many splendid people. It seems to me so many people are thoughtless and ask more than that to which they are entitled. We must depend upon the school teacher to teach these young people to be self-helpful and to believe in the character and have faith in the government of the United States, to defend it not only on the field of battle but from a beneficial standpoint, and those members of the Senate and those members of the House and those people who may belong to unions and those people who may have great industries, who forget that there will come a time after these hostilities have ceased when their businesses must resume, they will come to a time when we will need people to be encouraged to go ahead, and when that time comes we must have a sound foundation financially. Banks can not be closed, business can not be stopped, there must be an incentive to go on.

What is wrong? What I criticize is that anybody, political or otherwise, who comprise all these groups, unions if you please, or the employers, all together, if you please, controlling prices, ceiling prices, any of those things taking place, is a bad thing for the people and, therefore, what we ought to strive to do is to encourage people to engage in business after the war and to encourage employers and employes to seek a meeting of minds; their minds must come together and there must be encouragement, and those people who say one group is an enemy or another group are pursuing the wrong course, in my judgment, that should not be.

Employers of this state have no better friends than good honest employes and good honest employes are entitled to every courtesy and every aid they can possibly be given:

and on the other hand I say that employes have no better friends than good honest employers and the people who are willing to sacrifice their savings and to plan and to work and to get together to make success for the future.

I feel we should not allow a bill like this to be enacted without putting something on record as to how we feel about these matters, and I feel we ought to take it back home to prove that the powerful action of groups did not make a very favorable impression upon us. However, I say they should write and tell us how they feel, and we should listen to them patiently, but to keep paying attention to the idea of how much power they have, politically or otherwise, encouraging them to believe that some one is their enemy and we are not doing enough, is a mistake. I do hope we will forget our politics, I do hope we will take action along those lines, and I do hope we will sit down together and have faith that will take care of the value of the dollar after this thing is over.

What you are going to do now is to assume the responsibility of it, of course you are, but I hope you will not go back home and say "see what I did for you and what I tried to do for you and the other political party tried to do thus and so" and you try to play politics.

For example, if you knew some of the trouble confronting us, if you knew some of the dangers that were ahead of us and which in all probability may occur here, you would be simply astounded, you would say it could not be, but just wait.

With these few words I want to say to you that I am going to support this bill.

Mr. COX. Mr. President, this is not a political or economic harangue. Before I make my few remarks I want to say to you that I am going to vote for this bill and I certainly hope that every one in the Senate will vote for it.

It is unfortunate that the gentleman from Jefferson received the type of telegram that he read, and I hope that he does not imply that the contents of that telegram indicates the type of personality that the teachers of Pennsylvania have. I attended an open hearing on this question, and I, and other members of the Senate who were present were very proud of the fine personal representation of school teachers from every section of Pennsylvania.

In the three years in which I have been in the Senate, I have never seen a group present their case to a Senate committee as thoroughly, as honestly and as impartially as that group, and so we can not condemn the sixty-two thousand school teachers in Pennsylvania because of the actions of one teacher from the senatorial district of the gentleman from Jefferson. It may be, however, that I can sympathize with the feelings of the gentleman who sent that telegram; it may be that he is one of those under privileged school teachers who has loyally stuck to his job through the years at a salary so insignificant as to make it almost difficult for him to support himself and his family. It may be that is the answer, that was the psychological motive back of the telegram which the gentleman from Jefferson received.

Mr. President, if the gentleman listened to the previous debate on this question on the floor of the Senate, if he is conversant with the facts relative to salaries of teachers in Pennsylvania, the gentleman from Jefferson knows there are thousands of teachers whose salaries are absolutely inadequate, and the gentleman knows the absolute necessity for the passage of this bill.

If I were a newspaper man and if I were to caption the remarks of the gentleman from Jefferson, I am afraid, at the beginning of his speech, I would have been forced to caption it "The dollar versus the educational system of Pennsylvania," because most of the contents of the speech of the gentleman from Jefferson referred to devaluation of the dollar, but then as the gentleman went along I found that my initial thought was wrong, as the gentleman from Jefferson stated he agreed there had to be assistance for the school teachers of Pennsylvania, and it now resolves itself into this difference between the ideas of the gentleman from Jefferson and my own; we differ as to the amount, we differ and we always will differ as to what the real wages of a school teacher ought to be, not on the basis of a gratuity that we are offering to them, but on the basis of the real wage that they should receive and should have received long ago, and as I have indicated before, the tragedy to me is that tonight, on the next to the last night of this Session, we should be talking about giving a gratuity to the school teachers of Pennsylvania, when we could well be talking about establishing a salary system that would be adequate and would properly compensate these people for the fine, splendid, and loyal jobs they have done.

The gentleman from Jefferson mentioned politics. He said that we on this side should be very hesitant in going back and telling the school teachers we did this for them. I might tell the gentleman, with all the many years of experience which he has had in the legislative halls of Pennsylvania, that he knows more about politics and loyalty to a political party than I ever will know, and the gentleman well knows that when any party assumes leadership of a great state like Pennsylvania, that party has to answer for the things it does do or the things it does not do.

The Governor's budget and his recommendations indicate that he would like to cut taxes in the amount of approximately $1,000,000. His budget also indicates a surplus of funds available and unobligated of $12,000,000; this represents approximately $52,000,000 which could be used for the purpose of increasing salaries of teachers.

Therefore, I say to the gentleman from Jefferson that the gift we give tonight to the school teachers of Pennsylvania is not a gift of sacrifice, it is not a gift resolving from the necessity of taking funds from other necessary needs in Pennsylvania. I say to the gentleman that before the Governor or this Legislature should cut any tax, it has to do the job that must be done; it has to take care of the institutions of our state which must be taken care of, and this is certainly one of them.

We have today a formula for determination of wages, a War Labor Board formula, and that formula is figured on the basis of fifteen per cent, and yet in the bill which we are considering tonight, the teachers in the high brackets receive an increase in compensation of three per cent, and I say to the gentleman does that look as if the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in passing this bill was being spendthrift in the desire to help the teachers of the Commonwealth?

This probably will be the last opportunity I shall have to say anything on the floor of this Senate during this term of my office, relative to a problem concerning which I have always felt deeply, and that is my reason tonight for making the few remarks I have made.

I agree with the gentleman from Jefferson in his statement that the salvation of this state depends upon the school teachers of Pennsylvania, that the school teachers of Pennsylvania are the public education system of Pennsylvania; it is the loyalty of the school teachers of Pennsylvania and their willingness to stick to their guns that is going to result in a tremendous change in our system of education in Pennsylvania in the after-the-war years. We, who are close to the situation, realize that the education our boys and girls get today is inadequate to prepare them to meet the economic needs of their earning a living.

Mr. JONES. Mr. President and members of the Senate, in the words of the gentleman from Cumberland, Senator Wade, this is a good bill. It is a new idea in the maintenance of public schools.

The Governor, on January 26, 1943, when the Senate and the House of Representatives were jointly assembled to listen to his address, made this statement, "Revision of salaries of teachers, if found to be necessary, should have the careful consideration of the Legislature."

In conformity with that suggestion a committee of the House and a committee of the Senate have for weeks labored to produce a bill that would be satisfactory and workable, without putting too much of a burden upon the taxpayers, and after many conferences and many compromises this bill was produced and it is a good bill. The idea of a special appropriation in this emergency, or in any emergency or at any time when it is necessary, is a good idea.

It was under an act of 1921 that teachers were first given minimum salaries. The salaries then established have been continued virtually in effect in all the schools of Pennsylvania, from that day hence, and until 1941 there was no change except in the fourth grade schools, where the minimum salary was raised from $800 to $1,000 per annum, with increments of $50 per annum every two years.

All other workers in all other industries or employment have been increased in great proportions. In the state government there has been a uniform increase of fifteen per cent; in the county government there has been an increase of fifteen per cent; in the county from whence I come and in the state government a like increase has been provided, and it is justified not only by the increased cost of living, but because of the fact that there is a five per cent Victory Tax and there is a ten per cent requirement for bond purchases, for the purposes of prosecuting the war, and so this increase which is a trifle less than fifteen per cent, or $200, is a justified increase.

Over the years there have been many problems studied for the purpose of working out a program for salaries for teachers. We know that in many districts, particularly in the anthracite, the tax millage is limited by law and it has reached its maximum, so that the teachers can not obtain an increase from that source, and on the other hand, in the other districts where it has not reached the maximum fixed by law, taxes for school purposes have reached a point where they exceed all taxes combined, and they impose upon real estate in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania an enormous burden which can not be met by those properties and consequently, in Luzerne county two years ago, when we had our first treasurer's sales, there were seven thousand properties listed for sale because people could not meet their taxes, particularly school taxes.

And so it is that the money must be obtained from another source, and the only other source available is from a state appropriation, and mark you, these teachers that are paid perhaps less than the common laborer in a defense plant are paid, are individuals who have gone to public schools for twelve years and then have gone to a preparatory school, a normal school or a college and have equipped themselves and fitted themselves for the work they were to perform in their future lives. Their families sacrificed and paid the money for their education and then they went about training boys and girls, forming the destinies of men and women of the future, molding their minds and making them more useful and happier citizens for their future lives.

This they are doing for less than what common labor is paid in a defense plant and if we are going to continue good citizenship, then it shall be necessary that the state of Pennsylvania make the appropriation that is necessary to take care of the increase.

When it is said there has been pressure used because sixty thousand voices cry from the wilderness, as it were, for this aid, I say to you that simply shows necessity, necessity for the appropriation, and I say to you again that this is a good bill, an advancement in the idea of government and a fine way of continuation of a fair, reasonable and just education and maintenance of the public schools.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Lancaster.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Lancaster permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. HOMSHER. Mr. President, I will.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Lancaster tell me whether it is not true, if the provisions of this bill are complied with, by full payment of the salaries provided for in the bill, it will require $26,776,000.

Mr. HOMSHER. Mr. President, the amount of money that will be required is at this time indeterminable, because we do not know how many teachers will be on the staff and entitled to receive the benefits.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, assuming that there are 61,270 teachers on the staff, according to figures which have been prepared, it would cost in the neighborhood of $27,000,000, is that correct?

Mr. HOMSHER. Mr. President, it would take about $26,700,000 based on prior school years, but if we take into consideration the 1941 drop in teachers it would take in the neighborhood of twenty-four million and some hundred thousand dollars.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, does the gentleman from Lancaster know how much money has been appropriated for this purpose?

Mr. HOMSHER. Mr. President, the amount of money especially appropriated for this purpose was $24,300,000.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I am not going to make any political harangue about this bill, but I should like to make some observations from facts and figures which are in the budget and before us, because I do not think even the Republican Senators have been aware of the difficult financial situation.

I think this legislation is coming to us in a very unhappy way, first, because it was practically forced to be brought to this Legislature; secondly, it was probably prepared without consultation with the Governor of the Commonwealth; thirdly, after it was prepared, the pressure that was brought from all sides has sort of hampered clear thinking on it.

I should like to present to you for your consideration some facts which are not only important to this bill but also important in connection with what we are doing here.

In the first place, you will remember that the politics of this situation can be left out, because both sides promised the school teachers they would get an increase. I do not think it is any crime when school teachers come to us and say, "if you do not carry out your promise you will have to account to us," because that is the democratic form of government. We make promises, we represent people, and if they do not like our behavior they have a perfect right to say "we will not send you back" so I have no quarrel with that.

The next thing is that when we make a promise, we should not make it unless we are sure we can carry it out, and if we do and then find we can not carry it out, that is our fault and not their fault.

First, can this be carried out? When we came here we were told it could not be carried out because there was no money. I am not going to argue that we can give them this increase and at the same time give a reduction in taxes. I think the taxpayers are entitled to a tax reduction just as much as the school teachers are entitled to an increase in salary. I say the money was there, because the Governor has in his budget admittedly a surplus of $11,900,000. In addition to there being a surplus of $11,900,000, the Governor said if we passed the net corporate income tax bill it would allow a change in the method of computation and he would be able to give a reduction to the taxpayers, from seven per cent to four per cent, and he would be able to get $20,000,000 more money. That $20,000,000 plus $11,900,000 is $31,900,000. We have passed that tax law and, therefore, there is available $31,900,000.

Therefore, I see no reason why there should be in this bill this provision which appears on page ten of the bill which reads as follows: "If it shall appear to the Superintendent of Public Instruction that the moneys appropriated for the fiscal biennium 1943-1945 are insufficient to reimburse the school districts in full for all increases required to be made hereunder, he shall notify each board of school directors (or board of public education as to the amount of such deficiency. Such notification shall be given on or before the thirty-first day of December, 1944. The board of school directors (or board of public education) of each school district may thereupon reduce the increases provided for by this act to an extent necessary to meet the reduction in the reimbursement by the Commonwealth. All such reductions shall be uniform on the same percentage basis."

We have to live in the hope some teachers will drop out, in order to be able to give the amounts which this bill provides, and unless they do drop off it is inevitable the amounts they get will be reduced, because we have already allocated in that budget only $24,300,000. Was that fair and was it necessary, because there is $31,900,000 now available.

Let me give you some more figures—I will not give you the details; I will give them to you in aggregate. I have prepared a statement showing the total amount of receipts already received by the state government up until the first day of May, 1943. These are not my figures, these are the government's figures—they are not my guess, so I say to my colleague from Schuylkill, Senator Watkins, he can not cut them in half and take fifty per cent.

The total amount of anticipated revenues for this biennium—and when I speak of this biennium I mean ending May 31, 1943—was $429,000,000. The amount anticipated to be received during the eleven months, that is, up until the first of May, was $381,000,000. That means that if we had collected $381,000,000 we would have the right to anticipate the difference between $381,000,000 and $429,000,000, which is some forty odd million dollars.

Instead of collecting $381,000,000 in the last eleven months, we have already collected, according to the records of the Auditor General's office, taken from the various departments, to be exact, $412,324,519.68, which is a total of $30,630,000 more already collected than anticipated, and you will find the anticipated figures in the budget, which we got when we came here.

That means that to that $30,000,000 you must add collections next month, $40,000,000, so you ought to have and will have $70,000,000 left over out of the budget for this biennium, if the receipts anticipated and set up as anticipated for the month of May will be here and they will be here, because they will come in on the same basis.

This does not, however, include another $7,000,000 which is lying over in the Liquor Control Board, because in those figures there is only included, not the profits of the Liquor Control Board, but the amounts which are stated as due from the Liquor Control Board and put in its treasury, that is, $41,000,000. However, there is $48,000,000 profit up until the first of May. The amount of business done—and this may amaze you—the amount of business done by the Liquor Control Board in eleven months amounted to $222,000,000, and a further figure that may amaze you is that out of that $222,000,000 the Liquor Control Board has already made a profit of $70,000,000 and there will be at least another $10,000,000 worth of business, so that you will have at least $3,000,000 or $4,000,000 in addition to that.

It is well to remember that $70,000,000 figure, because of some of the things that have occurred in connection with the Liquor Control Board and the work it is doing. Here is a business that made $70,000,000, after payment of all of its expenses. I cite and press it and stress it, for the reason that is the same business that had that quarrel we read so much about in the papers concerning salaries of its clerks, who were getting somewhere between $20 and $25 per week. That ought to be impressive to us; that ought to tell us we are not being furnished with all of the information necessary to enable us to act fairly and avoid unnecessary criticism.

The next proposition I want to make is that if there is $70,000,000 surplus in this year's budget—$70,000,000 in the budget for this biennium—at least $70,000,000 and I say at least $70,000,000, because this budget anticipates the collection of $84,000,000 in net corporate income taxes, and I say it will exceed that by at least $6,000,000—so there is at least $70,000,000, and we are saying to these school teachers, who number 61,270, only 2,400 of whom receive $3,000 and over; 13,000 at least who receive less than $1,100; 16,000 who receive less than $1,500; 15,000 who receive less than $2,000—we are saying to them, when we have $70,000,000 in the budget this year, and next, because I am including the $30,000,000 that the Governor says we will have from the income tax—no, I am not including that—there should be added to that $70,000,000 the $30,000,000 available in next year's budget—the $11,900,000 surplus and the $20,000,000 we have gained by the change in method of computing corporate income tax—making a total of over $100,000,000 available in the next two years.

We are saying to those teachers we are not sure we can give them even this amount we are giving them in face of the fact we are running a business in which we are making $70,000,000 in two year's time, and in face of the fact we have increased people in their salaries in every county by the provisions of House Bill No. 2, the Boyd bill, paying $400 additional to people we know do not have the training these teachers have, and in the face of this very startling thing I discovered in the last two or three days—just listen to these figures: in one department in this Commonwealth the salary of a person who started in 1939, August 1, was $3,600 and today it is $7,500; the salary of a person in the same department who started at $1,140, today the salary of that person is $1,860; the salary of a person who started at $1,000 has been increased to $1,584; the salary of a person who started at $1,300 has been increased to $2,100; a $2,400 salary has been increased to $3,350. Total salaries amounting to $42,120 have been increased to $57,290.

In another section of that same department salaries that began at $1,140 today are $1,860; salaries that began at $2,400, today are $3,400; salaries that began at $1,300, are today $1,900; salaries that began at $1,600 are today $1,900. Total salaries which were $17,700 today amount to $22,620.

If you will read House Bill No. 1101, as I figure it, there is an increase of $200,000 more to the Department of the Auditor General over the budget recommendation, but that only means $25,000 because he got $175,000 less last year and there was subsequently given to him an increase.

The Governor's department is granted $25,000 more than he asked.

An increase of $355,000 is given to the Department of Agriculture. Every department under the budget has been given increases, down the line. You can see them as I have tabulated them.

I say to you, members of the Senate—I am going to vote for this bill—but I am saying to you at the same time I do not think we are doing proper thinking or that we are taking proper action. I am confining myself to teachers alone and I say if you think you are carrying out your promise, that is one thing—I do not think so—if you think you are doing the best you can, I think these figures show you are not.

If you think you are establishing or building up the future of the schools, in which you want to be taught the very thing you said should be taught tonight in one of these bills we passed, by people who will be able to impress upon students the importance of the subjects you are asking them to teach, if you think we can build up our school system with teachers who could do these things, by this kind of a bill, I am afraid you have not reasoned this proposition properly. It is distinctly class legislation. To my mind it is not the type of legislation we should pass in these troublous times.

Mr. WATKINS. Mr. President, I do not want to talk in terms of ten, twenty, thirty or forty millions of dollars—you might think it amusing in view of the program being put on here—but I do want to say a few words in answer to some of the statements of our distinguished colleague from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro.

In the first place, as I have said before, the matter of the budget is in the hands of experts who put their entire time upon that problem, and the Governor of the Commonwealth can do nothing else but take the figures of men who give their full time, day after day, week after week, month after month, to the budgetary problems of the state, and despite the fact the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro, quoted many figures here tonight, we still, however, must remember he is a busy attorney from Philadelphia who must take care of his clients and he, therefore, could not possibly give the time to this matter the budgetary experts have given to it, and the record shows it is full of Senator Shapiro's sincere inaccuracies.

With regard to the problem of the teachers, this bill before the Senate was worked out primarily by a committee in the House who sat down and worked it out with representatives of the teachers themselves, together with the budget officers of the state. It was estimated, in the way the budget officers have figured out all the items in the budget, to cost $26,000,000 and some dollars, which was based upon the teacher load for the year 1941-1942. If the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro, was figuring that he would, of course, take the present year, and be able to prove by figures it would not cost $26,000,000, if he wanted to dispute the Governor's budget.

The House, when they found there was not $26,000,000 available—and the budget officers so stated—the Governor began to figure whether or not the schedule the teachers wanted could possibly be financed for less than $26,000,000.

It was discovered that between the 1941-1942 school year and the 1942-1943 school year there was a drop in the teacher load of between 1,100 to 1,200 teachers, during the current year, and according to information received from the Department of Education that fall-off will continue, that is, especially in the areas between Allegheny county and Philadelphia—schools are being consolidated—because of the war and other reasons in certain counties, the school population is falling off and the number of teachers in the next two years will continue to decrease, by at least 1,100 or 1,200 or more.

Then the House Committee figured that the total cost would be in the neighborhood of $24,000,000 to carry out the schedule as recommended by the teachers themselves.

The Governor then was able to determine, with the assistance of his budgetary officers, that instead of $23,400,000—making that much available to the teachers—he was able to raise it to $24,300,000 and if that is appropriated it is the opinion of the Committee from the House and the opinion now of many members of the Senate, that the $24,300,000, taking into consideration the drop in number of teachers in the next two years, will be ample to pay in full the schedule set up in the bill.

The Governor, again talking the advice given to him by his budgetary officers, and in order to make sure, included in the bill a clause which states that in the event the fall-off does not meet the anticipated fall-off, then, of course, there would have to be a cut in payments to the teachers, but that cut will come in the last part of 1944 and the Legislature will be in session in January of 1945, so that if it does develop by January, 1945, that $24,300,000 is not sufficient, the Legislature being in session, it may meet that problem when it arises.

You know it is amusing for me to sit in my seat and hear the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro, complaining about the budget, both for this year and the next biennium, stating there are going to be big balances and big surpluses and yet I remember two years ago I sat in my seat here and heard the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro, complaining about everything the budget officers did, there was going to be a big deficit at the end of the year—it was not so long ago that everything was going to have a deficit. I think it is very fine—ever since Governor James was Governor, and now Governor Martin—instead of hearing the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro, complaining about the budget officers, complaining about mistakes and deficits at the end of the year, now the gentleman from Philadelphia has the budget officers making a different kind of mistake, and now we are going to have a big surplus at the end of the year.

That shows good housekeeping, because the surplus will go back to the taxpayers in benefits they will receive, and I want to assure the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro, and the Democratic Senators on the other side, that Governor Martin and the Republican Party have fulfilled their pledge to the school teachers of Pennsylvania in the bill we are about to pass tonight.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I am trying not to make this a political speech and I repeat that I did not use my figures in the statement I made; and to assure the gentleman from Schuylkill the figures I quoted were taken from the budget prepared by Governor Martin, I ask leave to offer them as a part of the Journal.

I also would like to say, in giving these figures I am not criticizing anybody nor am I complaining about the budget service, I am merely pointing out the surplus; last session I did not complain about the budget deficit, but the Governor called us budget guessers because we said there would be more money than he said there would be. In talking about budget makers, I would like to leave this one thought—if you will look at this bill you will see that it provides that this money shall be paid at certain periods and it also gives the school districts the right to borrow money on bonds to meet the necessary payments.

Outside of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh all but $2,750,000 goes to the other school districts; in other words, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh get $2,750,000, so let us say that roughly $20,000,000 goes to outside school districts. They borrow this money at an average of five per cent, they pay $1,000,000 a year interest; since they probably will only have the money in use over the two year period half the time, they pay $1,000,000, and then the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania taxes them four mills on the bonds they issue to secure this debt, and then we come along and give the impoverished school districts, as we did this year, $980,000 to make up their deficits.

If that is good budgeting and if that is good financing, I do not know, because it seems to me, at the same time that we are telling them to borrow money we pass a law allowing the State Treasurer to invest his surplus funds in government bonds, so that he can get more money than the one per cent or less he gets from the bank, and at the same time we pass a tax anticipation note law, authorizing the Commonwealth to borrow money to meet its anticipated expenses, pledging its anticipated revenues.

It does not take a financier or mathematician to see how silly that kind of budget making is. If the budget makers would have suggested to the Governor, instead of borrowing the amount he thinks he needs, if he borrowed an additional $10,000,000 each year to pay this money as it became due, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania—not the school districts but the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania—these budget makers would have had another million dollars at their disposal. That can not be denied.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. Does the gentleman from Philadelphia wish the figures he has submitted to be included in the Journal?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Yes, Mr. President.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, my colleague, Senator Henry I. Wilson, was lamenting the fact that there are pressure groups in this state and all over the country that have grown powerfully strong in the last ten years and have endeavored to exert their influence in the legislative halls.

I think tonight we have an excellent illustration of why we should not condemn the pressure groups, but instead should condemn certain of our own members who always, it appears, on questions of this kind, instead of trying to sell the principle of what is being done as being the best that can be done or should be done under the circumstances, takes the position of trying to arouse passions and desires and who, acting by innuendo, if not directly, state that what is being done is not nearly enough, or that there should be a lot more done.

Our colleague from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro, asked the question as to whether or not we think we are keeping our promise and our agreement with the school teachers. My answer to him in that respect is that the gentleman from Philadelphia does not need to worry, it is our promise and not his promise; and since we think we are keeping our agreement we are willing to rest on that basis with the school teachers.

I want to say that it may be—I am not certain—that out in our section we have a different type of school teacher than Senator Shapiro has down in Philadelphia—if he is saying what they think—because the teachers with whom I have talked in our section of the state have been very fair about this matter; they seem to think and feel that we are doing the very best that we possibly can do on a sound financial basis.

Senator Shapiro also wants to know if we are doing the right thing, when there are these astounding millions of dollars which he claims are coming in—and I hope for once he is right, I do really hope that sincerely; I hope he is right in his figures and we are wrong in ours, because it will be fine to have a balance to take care of post-war projects.

Mr. President, the gentleman from Philadelphia also wants to know whether we are doing the right thing in keeping sixty some millions of dollars, as he claims, instead of giving that to the school teachers, and that, Mr. President, is not hard to understand, that a New Dealer can not understand that what we like to do is to keep a little in reserve instead of spending many times more than we can possibly see coming in.

Another thing, Mr. President, I would like to let the other side of this chamber know, is that it is always easy to recommend and to suggest and to spend when some person else has the responsibility, and the reason I say that is this, if we will just review the record we will find that in 1935-1937 the budget set-up for the Department of Public Instruction was $86,000,000; we find that this Governor set up for the Department of Public Instruction $114,000,000, and that, Mr. President, did not include the $24,000,000, plus, that is now being set up in this bill which, added to the $114,000,000 makes $138,000,000 going to the Department of Public Instruction for the purposes of school teachers' salaries and the public schools.

and school districts. That, Mr. President, I think figures in the neighborhood of about 61 or 62 per cent of an increase in just eight year's time—a 61 per cent increase—not in thousands of dollars but in millions of dollars, Mr. President, over $50,000,000 increase, and that by a Republican administration and not the Democratic administration of 1935-1937.

If we take minimum salaries, Mr. President, my recollection is that just in the last regular session, or the one before, minimum salaries were raised from $800 to $1,000, during a Republican administration, and now they are being raised again, by this bill, but they were not raised, Mr. President, during the Earle Democratic administration, the administration of which these gentlemen who are standing here tonight, advocating the payment of so much more, were also members.

But, Mr. President, since they do not have the responsibility, of course it is an easy matter to stand up here and try and incite dissatisfaction in these various groups.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Shapiro,

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I move that House Bill No. 853, on third reading, entitled:

An Act to further amend section one thousand two hundred six of the act approved the eighteenth day of May, one thousand nine hundred eleven (P. L. 309), entitled "An act to establish a public school system in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania together with the provisions by which it shall be administered, and prescribing penalties for the violation thereof, providing revenue to establish and maintain the same and the method of collecting such revenue, and repealing all laws, general, special or local, or any parts thereof, that are or may be inconsistent therewith" by further regulating leaves of absence for professional employees.

be recommitted to the Committee on Education for the purpose of further consideration.

Mr. CARR. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question.

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. COX. I presume, Mr. President, after this motion passes, House Bill No. 853 will be studied very carefully, amended, and reported back in 1945. This is a simple, little bill—it is rather strange any bill should have simplicity but it does—it maintains an idea I think it would be well for the Senate to consider; it provides that any teacher or all teachers in the Commonwealth of second, third and fourth class districts, in case of sickness, will have five days leave of absence with pay and five additional days leave of absence at half pay and in the event of death in the family will have three days.

This bill is in keeping with the trend in industry. The United States Steel Corporation, for instance, in its plants has recognized that people need vacations and certain employees are given seven days and others are given fourteen days.

We realize, in order to continue efficiency, that there are times when people can not work. I am not going to make any argument—I realize the bill is doomed—but I do hope that in 1945 when we come back we will be more generous with regard to the intent of a bill such as this.

I would like to say that I know the necessity for such a bill. It has been argued to me there is not any necessity, because school districts at the present time have the right, if they care to give leaves of absence because of sickness. In my own borough our school board has a program which includes leaves of absence because of sickness, but strange to say, because they are very angry at certain of their teachers who have taught for many years who have married and have refused to quit teaching, they have refused to permit a married woman in their school system to share in that particular program.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, I desire to be recorded as voting "no."

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. The gentleman from Philadelphia will be so recorded.

penditures of the taxpayer for wages salaries commissions or other compensation to all its employees

(3) Of the remaining third such portion shall be attributed to business carried on within the Commonwealth as shall be found by multiplying said third by a fraction whose numerator is the amount of the taxpayer's gross receipts from business not strictly incident or appurtenant to manufacturing in this Commonwealth assignable to this Commonwealth as hereinafter provided and whose denominator is the amount of the taxpayer's gross receipts from all its business

A rule shall not be deemed to be inapplicable merely because all the tangible property or the expenditures of a taxpayer for wages salaries commissions or other compensation or the gross receipts of the taxpayer are found to be situated incurred or received without the Commonwealth

(c) It shall be the duty of the treasurer or other officers having charge of any such corporation joint-stock association or limited partnership upon which a tax is imposed by this section to transmit the amount of said tax to the Treasury of the Commonwealth within the time prescribed by law Provided That for the purposes of this act interest in limited partnerships or joint-stock associations shall be deemed to be capital stock and taxable accordingly Provided further That corporations limited partnerships and joint-stock associations liable to a tax under this section shall not be required to pay any further tax on the mortgages bonds and other securities owned by them and in which the whole body of stockholders or members as such have the entire equitable interest in remainder but corporations limited partnerships and joint-stock associations owning or holding such securities as trustees executors administrators guardians or in any other manner than for the whole body of stockholders or members thereof as sole equitable owners in remainder shall return and pay the tax imposed by this act upon all securities so owned or held by them as in the case of individuals Provided further That the tax of five mills imposed by this section on reports filed for the calendar

(b) The provisions of this act and the exemption granted thereby shall have no applicability whatsoever with respect to the capital stock tax or franchise tax covered by reports filed for any calendar year prior to the effective date of this act or any fiscal year beginning in any such calendar year but such taxes for such calendar or fiscal years shall continue to be collected under the law as it existed prior to the changes effected by this act Nothing herein contained shall be taken or construed to relieve any taxpayer whatsoever from the payment of any capital stock tax or franchise tax interest or penalty due or owing to the Commonwealth under the law in force at the time this act becomes effective

(c) The provisions of this act and the exemption granted thereby shall apply only to reports filed for the calendar year this act becomes effective or for any fiscal year beginning in such calendar year and for each calendar or fiscal year thereafter

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I am not going to take up much time of the Senators at this late hour, but I just want to say that our position in this matter, contained in House Bill No. 1097, known as the manufacturer's tax exemption, capital stock exemption, is one of party policy. We do not believe any particular type of industry or any particular type of business or business endeavor in the state ought to be given advantages not given to others. It is known that because mining industries, for instance, can not be moved from the State of Pennsylvania, they are here because of their nature, they can not be moved, therefore, they are not given the tax exemption that is given to manufacturers.

This is a bill putting the law back into effect as it was prior to the Earle administration. We do not believe this exemption means anything to manufacturers or that the argument that it will help re-establish Pennsylvania become a great manufacturing state means anything, because we believe many other things are taken into consideration when a manufacturing concern decides to establish itself within the confines of our state. We believe our schools, our roads, our utilities, all are matters of consideration when a manufacturing company makes a decision to join our great Commonwealth.

We do not believe the handing out of a five per cent tax exemption is anything but a reward to the Manufacturers Association for its support of certain political parties and candidates. Mining companies, of course, are not given that reward because of the fact, as I said, they can not move their mines. I do not believe manufacturers moved their manufacturing plants since the Democratic administration in this state removed them from this exemption. It is distinctly class legislation. To my mind it is unfair, because only certain types of industries are exempted, so I just want to make the record clear, so far as the Democratic Party is concerned, and its members here in the Senate, that we are opposed to granting the Manufacturers Association any political rewards at the expense of the people of Pennsylvania.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, this bill is known as the general appropriation bill and, naturally, all members must vote for it, but, however, I think it would be interesting to note some of the increases in this particular bill in the administrative offices.

Very often during the late stages of a session, such as we are now entering, members of the Senate fail to look closely at this particular bill. I simply want to say I think this ought to be one of the first bills introduced each session, in order that the members could study the provisions thereof.

Just for the information of the members of the Senate who have not read the bill, I would like to call attention to these particular figures:

An increase of $25,000 is given to the Governor's office, which increase, by the way, is exactly $25,000 more than he requested in his budget message. An increase of $200,000 is granted to the Department of the Auditor General over the budget recommendation. However, this amount is but $25,000 more than was granted during the last biennium, the balance of the increase, $175,000, being the amount the Governor did not include in his budget but which was necessary because of requirements, as experience has proven, to be the amount needed.

An increase of $10,000 is given to the Treasury Department. An increase of $355,000 is given to the Department of Agriculture, which makes this amount the greatest in the history of the state. I might state also that this increase is $210,000 more than recommended by the Governor in his budget message.

The Department of Banking is given an increase of $10,000 over the amount recommended by the Governor in his budget message.

The Department of Forests and Waters receives an increase of $574,000, which is in line with the Governor's recommendation. However, this appropriation is $300,000 more than was ever granted to that department in the history of the department.

The Department of Health receives an increase of $281,000, which makes this the greatest appropriation in the history of this state.

The Department of Insurance receives an increase of $25,000, a very substantial increase in view of the small operations of this department.

The Department of Internal Affairs receives an increase of $150,000 and, like the increase granted to the Department of Insurance, it is difficult to understand the reason for an appropriation which is the largest in the history of this Commonwealth.

The Department of Justice receives an increase of $58,000, making this appropriation the highest in the history of this Commonwealth, by the amount of the increase.

The Department of Labor and Industry receives an increase of $100,000. The increase to the Department of Military Affairs is $438,000, which probably can be justified because of the war effort.

The Department of Mines and Mining receives an increase of $20,000, which is rather difficult to understand, and in this appropriation there is also an increase of $34,000 for salaries and expenses of mine inspectors. This work can easily be explained by increased operation due to war time conditions.

The Department of Property and Supplies will receive an increase of $320,000.

There is a reduction of $188,000 to the Department of Public Assistance for salaries and expenses—you can easily understand that when you passed a bill this afternoon to decentralize activities of the Department of Public Assistance and throwing it back into the local districts.

The Public Utility Commission will receive an increase of $120,000.

The Department of Revenue receives an increase of $92,000 over the last appropriation, which sum will be $387,000 more than recommended in the Governor's budget message.

The Department of State will receive $40,000 more than in the last biennium, which amount is the amount recommended by the Governor in his message.

The amount granted to the Pennsylvania State Police remains the same as in the previous biennium.

The Department of Welfare receives $144,000 more than in the previous biennium, which sum is $86,000 more than recommended in the Governor's budget.

The Milk Control Commission will receive $100,000 more than in the previous biennium, which increase is nearly fifty per cent over the previous appropriation.

In view of these increases I just want to say to you I can not understand the arguments about raising salaries of school teachers $50 in two years.

Mr. CHAPMAN. Mr. President, in answer to the statements of the gentleman from Westmoreland, Senator Dent, I should like to say to my colleagues in the Senate that this is the general appropriation bill for the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Departments of the Government, and also to take care of the interest on the public debt and the public schools of the Commonwealth.

The Appropriation Committee of the Senate is very pro 1 of this bill—it carries appropriations of something like $264,000,000—and after it was completed, with the aid of the budget secretary, we did not find a single mistake.

We think, after a careful study since the beginning of this Session, that every item of increase has been justified in this bill and I, therefore, hope all my colleagues will vote for this bill.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I think I see a little of the old army game in this bill and I would like to call to the attention of the members of the Senate that there is an increase in the appropriation to the Governor's office amounting to $25,000 and knowing that Governor Martin is a pretty good politician I hope that he will cut out that increase when he comes to that item and make that look pretty good.

Ordered, That the Clerk return said bill to the House of Representatives with information that the Senate has passed the same with amendments in which the concurrence of the House is requested.

BILL ON THIRD READING AMENDED

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1111, entitled:

An Act providing for the payment by the State Treasurer of one-half of the amount of the tax on premiums paid by foreign casualty insurance companies, to the treasurers of the several cities, boroughs, towns and townships and for the payment thereof into police pension funds and in certain cases into the State Employees' Retirement Fund for certain purposes.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, before offering some short amendments I desire to make a few brief remarks.

Mr. President and members of the Senate, we are about to consider what in my mind is a very important bill. Upon the police in the various townships, boroughs and cities of this great Commonwealth we, the citizens of Pennsylvania, depend for the safety of our lives and the security of our property.

House Bill No. 1111 endeavors to assist in providing retirement for policemen and with that I am heartily in accord. The bill provides that one-half of the net amount received from the two per cent tax paid upon premiums by foreign casualty insurance companies shall be paid, into the police fund, where a police fund exists, in any township borough or city in the Commonwealth.

I understand the revenue from this tax yields an amount in excess of $1,250,000. However, as the bill now reads, I find that out of this large sum of money not one cent would come to any of the policemen in my entire senatorial district. I have here hurriedly endeavored to calculate what this would mean to policemen in my senatorial district, if there were a police fund in each of the several municipalities.

Mr. President, I estimate if there were such a fund in each of the municipalities, my senatorial district would derive between $25,000 and $30,000 a year, but as I stated, because of the manner in which the bill now reads, my senatorial district will not receive one cent therefrom.

I honestly believe whoever wrote this bill never contemplated it would have such an effect upon my senatorial district and upon most of the senatorial districts in Pennsylvania.

The amendment which I shall present to the Senate, and which I hope will be adopted, merely provides, if and when the municipal retirement bill which was approved both by the House and the Senate becomes law, and the police of any township, borough or city elect by a vote of three-fourths of the members to come into the fund, then the municipal retirement fund will benefit by whatever amount would be payable to any police fund.

Members of the Senate, adoption of this amendment will not detract or take away one red cent from the city of Philadelphia police fund or from the police pension fund of any other municipality.

This bill provides where there is no police pension fund, money that otherwise would go into that fund shall go to the state police. As I stated, I am very heartily in accord with what this bill proposes to do and I hope, while we are at it, we will do a good job and provide for all of the police in the state.

In the fine little borough where I live, in the county seat of Blair County, we have two policemen, and everyone knows those two policemen can not maintain a pension fund.

The city of Altoona, which is a city with a population of approximately 85,000, endeavored a number of years ago to set up a police pension fund, but eventually it went on the rocks.

Those who are conversant with insurance, and I am not, tell me it is necessary for a great many people to join together in order to have the most economic and sound pension system. The municipal employees retirement act was created to provide that very thing and without saying anything more, I certainly hope we will all do what we can for all of the policemen in our great Commonwealth and approve these amendments which I now wish to offer.

I therefore ask unanimous consent to offer the following amendments.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

The Clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend Sec. 1, page 2, line 18, by inserting after the word "township" where it appears the first time in said line, the following:

"In any city, borough, town or township where the police elect to join the Municipal Employees' Retirement System, created or hereafter created by law, the amount received by the treasurer of the city, borough, town or township, as hereinafter provided, shall be paid into the Municipal Employees' Retirement Fund, and shall be credited to the municipal account of said fund for the benefit of the police of said city, borough, town or township who are members of said Municipal Employees' Retirement System;" Amend Sec. 1, page 2, line 19, by inserting after the word "fund" the following: "or in which city, borough, town or township the police have not elected to join any such Municipal Employees' Retirement System"; Amend title, page 1, line 6, by adding after the word "the" and before the word "State" the following: "Municipal Employees Retirement System and in certain other cases into the".

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

They were agreed to.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

Ordered, That the bill as amended lie over for printing on final passage.

BILL ON THIRD READING POSTPONED. CALENDAR CALLED UP

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now resume the consideration of Senate Bill No. 422, on third reading postponed Calendar.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILL ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The Senate resumed the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 422, as follows:

An Act to further amend section one of the act approved the sixteenth day of April one thousand nine hundred seven (P. L. 92) entitled as amended "An act defining the duty of coroners where death is sudden or violent or is of a suspicious nature and character and of police and health authorities in this Commonwealth in reference to the disposition of bodies of persons whose cause of death may be the subject of inquiry by the coroner but where it appears the cause of death is not surrounded by suspicious circumstances" by providing that investigations of deaths caused by accidents shall be made by the coroner of the county in which the accident causing death occurred

Section 1 Section one of the act approved the sixteenth day of April one thousand nine hundred seven (P. L. 92) entitled as amended "An act defining the duty of coroners where death is sudden or violent or is of a suspicious nature and character and of police and health authorities in this Commonwealth in reference to the disposition of bodies of persons whose cause of death may be the subject of inquiry by the coroner but where it appears the cause of death is not surrounded by suspicious circumstances" as amended by the act approved the twelfth day of July one thousand nine hundred thirty-five (P. L. 710) is hereby further amended to read as follows

Section 1 Be it enacted &c That it shall be the duty of the coroner or the deputy coroner of any county in this Commonwealth in all cases where death is sudden or violent or is of a suspicious nature and character to cause a careful investigation of the facts concerning said death to be made to ascertain whether the death was due to other than natural causes and to make or cause to be made such an autopsy as the facts of the case may demand

Whenever death is caused by an accident happening in any county other than that in which the death occurred the investigation of the cause thereof shall be made by the coroner or the assistant coroner of the county in which the accident occurred

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, this bill does exactly what the title indicates. Where death is caused by an accident, the coroner of the county in which the accident occurred does not have jurisdiction and yet the inquest is held and the investigation under the present law takes place in the county where the death occurred, and this changes the law.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

HOUSE INSISTS UPON ITS NON-CONCURRENCE IN AMENDMENTS TO HOUSE BILL No. 711 AND APPOINTS COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, informed the Senate that the House insists on its non-concurrence in Senate amendments to House Bill No. 711, entitled:

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to offer a resolution at this time.

Mr. BARR offered the following resolution which was twice read, as follows:

In the Senate, May 7, 1943.

Resolved, That the Committee on Highways be discharged from further consideration of House Bill No. 835, entitled "An act to further amend section ten of the act, approved the twenty-first day of May, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-one (P. REPORT OF CONFERENCE COMMITTEE ON HOUSE BILL No. 711 was recommitted to the Committee on State Government.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I voted "aye".

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President. I second the motion.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I voted "aye".

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Let me say frankly I do not want the honor or pleasure or credit of doing this and I would be perfectly satisfied if some one on the other side prefers to do it, but I think that this bill should be given a little more consideration.

BILLS OVER IN ORDER

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that House Bill No. 836 on third reading go over in order.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I move that House Bill No. 133, on second reading, entitled:

An Act to repeal the act approved the twenty-first day of March, one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 34), entitled "An act authorizing the judges of the courts of common pleas and orphans' courts in counties of the third class to employ stenographers, typists and clerks to facilitate the business of the courts, and to provide for the payment of their compensation by the county, and validating former employments and payments therefor" go over in its order.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. SHAPIRO. I object, Mr. President, on the ground that House Bill No. 133 has no place on the Calendar. I have previously raised a point of order in connection with this bill and I now ask the Chair to rule on that point of order.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. If the bill is to go over in order, the Chair does not feel that it is necessary to rule at this time on the point of order raised by the gentleman from Philadelphia.

Mr. SHAPIRO. My point of order, Mr. President, is that this Senate can take no action of any kind on this bill, that it is improperly on the Calendar, because a bill containing the same subject matter as this bill has already been voted on twice.

I would not press that motion, to be technical, were it not for the fact that I think everyone here remembers that the President of the Senate ruled, a bill having been acted upon when it was not properly before us, that I could not subsequently raise a question.

Therefore, I suggest to the Chair that he should now rule on my point of order.

Mr. HEYBURN. I think, Mr. President, the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro, has reference to House Bill No. 133 being acted on, and my request is that it go over in order, and, therefore, there is no action taken on the bill.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, a point of order is always in order.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. If the Chair were ruling on consideration of this bill, he would rule, if it is the same or practically the same as a bill formerly considered and defeated by the Senate, that the Senate can not consider it, but this is a motion that the bill go over in order and on that motion the Chair rules that the motion is proper.

Mr. SHAPIRO. May I then suggest to the Chair, for the purpose of keeping the record straight, that the Chair further reserve decision on the bill?

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. If the present occupant of the Chair occupies the Chair when this bill comes up for consideration or passage, he will rule that it can not be considered, if it is identical or practically so with one that has formerly been defeated.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I desire to be recorded as voting "no."

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. The gentleman from Philadelphia ---- be so recorded.

CONDEMNATION OF NAZI RELIGIONS PERSECUTION AND RACIAL HATRED, DEVELOPMENT OF JEWISH NATIONAL HOME IN PALESTINE

In the House of Representatives, May 7, 1943.

Whereas, the persecution and attempted extermination by Nazi Germany of the Jews in occupied Europe have outraged the conscience of the civilized world and emphasized the tragedy of the Jewish problem in Europe, and

Whereas, at the conclusion of the war great numbers of Jews in Europe will find themselves homeless, despoiled and desperately in need of a refuge where they may reconstruct their shattered lives, and

Whereas, pursuant to the treaties of peace terminating the first World War, a Mandate was issued approved by fifty-two nations including the United States, to facilitate the establishment of a Jewish National Home in Palestine; and

Whereas, this policy was concurred in by a Joint Resolution adopted unanimously by both Houses of the Congress of the United States on June 30, 1922 and approved by the President on September 21, 1922; therefore, be it

Resolved (if the Senate concurs), That we of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania express our most profound sympathy toward the victims of Nazi religious persecution and racial hatred; and

Be it Further Resolved, That we urge the fullest cooperation of the United Nations in punishing those responsible for this horrible crime against humanity, and in all alleviating suffering through an international rescue agency; and

Be it Further Resolved, That we favor the continued development of the Jewish National Home in Palestine for the absorption of as many Jews as may be required by the urgent needs of the Jewish people and the full development there of a Jewish Homeland in the democratic world order in accordance with the principles for which the United Nations are now fighting; and

Be it Further Resolved, That a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the President and to the Secretary of State of the United States, the President of the United States Senate and to the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

JOINT STATE GOVERNMENT COMMISSION INVESTIGATES MATTERS PERTAINING TO SENATORIAL AND REPRESENTATIVE REAPPORTIONMENT

Whereas, Ever since the adoption of the apportionment acts of May 10, 1921 (P. L. 449) and May 21, 1921 (P. L. 455), the General Assembly has failed to agree upon a suitable or valid basis of reapportioning the State into senatorial and representative districts and, accordingly, has failed to enact valid reapportionment legislation based upon the last United States decennial census, as required by Article II, Section 18 of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, therefore be it Resolved (if the Senate concurs), That the Joint State Government Commission shall investigate and consider the matters of senatorial and representative reapportionment, and shall submit to the General Assembly, at its next regular session, an equitable plan for such reapportionment, based upon the population of the various portions of the Commonwealth as indicated by the last United States decennial census.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the House of Representatives accordingly.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. McGINNIS asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. McGINNIS. Mr. President, as you may perhaps know, we have as a colleague a Senator who practices legerdemain; tomorrow evening there may be some period during which there might be a lull, and if the Majority Floor Leader second my motion, I will move that Senator Haluska entertain us tomorrow evening.

Mr. HALUSKA. On the motion, Mr. President, I had promised to be at the Kiwanis Club, but tomorrow it is my intention to hypnotize my Republican colleagues. It is too bad this motion was not called for the first week of the Session because if it had been I am certain we would have passed some Democratic bills, but tomorrow I will hypnotize the Republican Floor Leader and the Republican State Chairman and a few more of them and after I am through with them I am sure we will all go home happy.

In the Senate, May 7, 1943.

Resolved, That the Committee on Highways be discharged from further consideration of House Bill No. 835, entitled "An act to further amend section ten of the act, approved the twenty-first day of May, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-one (P. L. 149) entitled 'An act imposing a State tax payable by those herein defined as distributors on liquid fuels used or sold and delivered within the Commonwealth which are ordinarily practically and commercially usable in internal combustion engines for the generation of power providing for the collection and lien of the tax and the distribution and use of the proceeds thereof requiring such distributors to secure permits to file corporate surety bonds and reports and to retain certain records imposing duties on retail dealers common carriers county commissioners and such distributors providing for rewards imposing certain costs on counties conferring powers and imposing duties on certain State officers and departments providing for refunds imposing penalties and making an appropriation" appropriating one-half cent per gallon of said tax for the maintenance construction reconstruction resurfacing and improvement of certain roads streets and bridges in certain political subdivisions" be taken from the table.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, the dying hours of this Legislative Session are not unlike the dying hours of other Legislative Sessions in which I have served as a Member of the General Assembly, in that the hopes and desire and aspirations of millions of people in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania are cruelly dashed against the wheel of callous indifference.

When I came to the Legislature in 1938, the first injustice brought to my attention was the failure of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to return to the various political sub-divisions of this state a portion of the gasoline tax, and so I presented a bill amending the law which returned to counties one-half cent of the tax, and the bill died in committee because of the opposition of the county commissioners in the Commonwealth, who objected to some of the money being taken from them.

In the 1937 Session I presented another bill which would have provided an outright grant from the motor license fund to be distributed to these various political sub-divisions. In 1941 I presented another bill to bring about the same results. All of those measures met the same fate, death by strangulation in committee.

Sometime after the 1941 Session the President Pro Tempore of the Senate was kind enough to appoint me a member of Local Government Commission, an organization whose primary objective is the closing of the gap between old and modern ideas of local government, one of the finest legislative bodies in America.

During that period of time this commission was given the assignment of investigating the allocation of the gasoline tax to the various political sub-divisions, and I was made chairman of the sub-committee to which was referred that very problem. We worked out what we thought was a solution to the problem in the 1941 Session, but made the fatal mistake of selling it to the General Assembly, the agency which had the authority to breathe legislative life into it, but failing to sell the same proposition to the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. When it reached his desk, he vetoed the bill.

In the interval since that time the Local Government Commission continued its study and decided "that it ought to profit by the fatal error made in the 1941 Session, and so we delegated some of the members of the commission to confer with the Governor of the Commonwealth, before a bill was presented to take care of those municipalities which do not now enjoy a share of the gasoline tax. I understand that the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the Majority Floor Leader met with the Governor, advised him of what the Local Government Commission had in mind on this proposition, and he was favorable to it, and up until the beginning of this week I had the distinct impression from everybody who knew anything about it, including recognized spokesmen of this administration, that this Legislature would not die without taking some action on this particular bill.

I listened this afternoon, Mr. President, to the very eloquent, the very forceful speech delivered by the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Cox, about the cruelty of the lobbyists, those who are against the common people, in killing off recommendations of the Anthracite Subsidence Commission, which studied for a period of eighteen months the mine cave problem in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Recommendations were made and bills were presented in the General Assembly, which passed the Senate, but which were cruelly killed in the House of Representatives, and tonight, Mr. President, the men and women in the mine cave area in the anthracite region are standing in the halo of Pontius Pilate, their brows crowned with the thorns of worry, their bodies shackled by the manacles of disorganization, supplicating the members of the General Assembly to lift from their backs their burden of life and relieve from their minds the worry of waking up some morning and finding the life of someone near and dear to them snuffed out by escaping gas caused by subsidence during the night. The answer of the General Assembly to these pleas is the killing of legislation which would have afforded some measure of relief.

This afternoon, Mr. President, the answer to this plea of the people in the various cities in the Commonwealth for a just share of this tax came in the form of a rather ridiculous resolution introduced, I think by the gentleman from Dauphin, Senator Taylor—and I want to read one or two extracts from that resolution.

First of all the resolution starts out by saying that the Commonwealth recognizes that something ought to be done about it, and then in the second whereas clause it reads: "Whereas, war conditions and the curtailed use of automobiles with the consequent reduction in revenues have rendered it impossible at this session to make any further contributions or to set up any permanent plan of distribution to all the municipal sub-divisions which is the objective the General Assembly hopes, ultimately, to attain."

Mr. President, I do not think there is anybody in the Senate of Pennsylvania who will disagree that there has been a sharp curtailment of revenue as a result of gas rationing, tire rationing and various other things imposed upon the motor riding public in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, but I submit to you that there has been more than a corresponding reduction in expenditures by the Motor License Bureau. There has been sitting in this Senate a very fine, a very excellent gentleman, the Secretary of Highways, Mr. Shroyer, who has been an interested spectator here the last couple of weeks and recently he laid off, according to newspaper accounts, six hundred employes because there was nothing for them to do, the materials they needed for the repairing of bridges and roads having been tied up because of priorities.

Then the resolution goes on to say, Mr. President, "Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur) that the Joint State Government Commission in conjunction with the Department of Highways . . ."

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I rise on a point of order.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. The gentleman from Delaware will state his point of order.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, the motion submitted by the gentleman from Lackawanna to discharge a committee is not in order. I read from Rule 43 of the Senate: "No committee shall be discharged from consideration of any measure within ten calendar days of its reference without unanimous consent of the Senate or after such ten-day period except by majority vote of all members elected to the Senate."

Therefore Mr. President, I raise the point of order that the gentleman from Lackawanna is out of order; he is speaking on something not before the Senate.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. When was this bill referred?

Mr. HEYBURN. I think it was referred on Tuesday of this week to the Committee of Highways.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I rise on a parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. The gentleman from Philadelphia will proceed.

Mr. SHAPIRO. The resolution to discharge the committee is not now before the Senate; the motion before the Senate is to take from the table the resolution to discharge the committee.

I inquire whether it is not true, if the resolution to discharge the committee is taken from the table, that then the point of order might be raised by the gentleman from Delaware.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, the gentleman from Lackawanna called the resolution to discharge the committee from the table.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. The Senator from Delaware is in error. There was a motion made by the gentleman from Lackawanna, Senator Coleman, seconded by the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Holland, to take from the table the resolution to discharge the Committee on Highways from further consideration of House Bill No. 835. However, it seems to the Chair the gentleman from Lackawanna is going far afield in giving his reasons.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I again press my point of order that the gentleman from Lackawanna is out of order, as the Committee has not had the bill for ten days.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. The Chair rules against the gentleman from Delaware on that point. If the resolution is taken from the table the gentleman from Lackawanna may ask unanimous consent for its consideration.

The gentleman from Lackawanna may proceed as briefly as he can.

Mr. COLEMAN. First of all, Mr. President, I want to apologize for inflicting myself—ordinarily I am much too considerate to do that—but to deliver this speech tomorrow would be a fatal disaster, because tomorrow will be the last legislative day of this Session and if the Republican members of the Senate see the wisdom of my position and discharge the committee, we would still have enough legislative day to enact into law this bill, hence my speech at this rather unseemly hour.

Mr. President, the resolution submitted by the gentleman from Dauphin, Mr. Taylor, further goes on to say: "Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur), that the Joint State Government Commission in conjunction with the Department of Highways be, and they hereby are directed to make a study of the distribution of state funds to all of the political sub-divisions of the state as well as to the counties with the objective in mind of establishing a permanent and equitable distribution of a portion of the funds of the Commonwealth so that all political sub-divisions will receive their fair proportional share of the funds and thus equitably relieve local real estate of taxation to the greatest extent possible."

Mr. President, I have in my legislative career vigorously fought duplication of effort and overlapping of functions. This resolution would refer to another commission, that proposition that has been so thoroughly studied by the Local Government Commission. Some of the greatest legislative minds in the General Assembly are members of this particular commission. Every conceivable angle of this proposition was studied and thoroughly analyzed and their recommendations were contained in House Bill No. 835.

Mr. HEYBURN. I would like to know, Mr. President, whether the gentleman from Lackawanna is talking on the resolution to discharge the Committee on Highways or what is he talking about?

Mr. COLEMAN. The gentleman from Delaware knows very well there is a definite relationship between the resolution and the subject matter I am discussing—however, if he will not interrupt and will listen I will try to briefly sum up what I have to say.

For eight years, Mr. President, I have spent most of my time in the General Assembly trying to enact a bill of this character. I felt, and had reason to believe, from expressions I got from legislative leaders and administration representatives, that my dream of eight years would be brought to realization with the passage of House Bill No. 835.

Mr. President, this is a rank injustice to the people living in the cities, boroughs and townships of the various counties in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. In the city of Scranton, my home town for example, 38 per cent of the tax paid into the Commonwealth is paid by residents of the city of Scranton, and they get nothing from this particular fund.

I do not feel that I am going to sway any votes, Mr. President, but I had one motive in mind in asking that this resolution be lifted from the table, and that is to get the members of the Senate on record as to how they feel about this particular proposition; and I ask for a roll call.

POINT OF INFORMATION

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I rise on a point of information.

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. The gentleman from Delaware will proceed.

Mr. HEYBURN. I inquire, Mr. President, on what the roll is to be called?

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE. The roll is to be called on the motion of the gentleman from Lackawanna to take from the table the resolution to discharge the Committee on Highways from further consideration of House Bill No. 835.

And the question recurring.

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. COLEMAN and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—14

Bart,	Haluska,	McGinnis,	Shapiro,

With the information that the Senate has passed the same with amendments, in which the concurrence of the House of Representatives is requested.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will read the amendments.

The Clerk read the amendments as follows.

Amend section 1, page 3, line 23 by inserting after the word "therewith" the words "is hereby amended to read as follows"

Amend section 2 page 4 line 28, by inserting after the word "thereafter" the words "upon application of an employer to the Secretary of Labor and Industry with the approval of the Industrial Board"; also page 5 line 5 by inserting after the word "week" the words "provided such employment is directly or indirectly in furtherance of the war effort"

On the question,

Will the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate?

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, we are now asked to concur in certain amendments inserted by the Senate into House Bill 873, which was vigorously opposed on this side when it was on final passage in this House.

This is the bill which provides for the employment of minors for a period of forty-eight hours per week, and it permits the employment of minors on Sundays. The bill was debated at length, and despite the gross defects in the bill it was passed. The amendments now inserted by the Senate, I am happy to say, do to some slight extent conform to the changes that I advocated when it left this House. But it still remains a threat to our child labor laws and still has all the other bad things that were discussed in the debate in the House some time ago.

I urge the Democratic Members of the House and I urge the Republican Members to vote against concurring in the amendments before us now.

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, I want to urge upon the membership on this side of the House to vote to concur in the amendments of the Senate. I must again disagree with the gentleman from Philadelphia. We are not trying in any way to jeopardize the rights contained in the present Child Labor Law. Certainly during this period of emergency, during war time, such legislation as this is urgently needed. Just in this morning's press I find that the Federal government is definitely going to issue orders to go on a forty-eight hour week, and therefore those minors that are employed, and I think there are some in many plants throughout Pennsylvania, of course, will come under that general order. I cannot see, that this will interfere, injure or jeopardize the youth of Pennsylvania during this war-time period.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I ask that the House vote to concur in the amendments of the Senate.

On the question recurring,

Will the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

SENATE MESSAGE

SENATE BILL FOR CONCURRENCE

The clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented for concurrence, bill numbered and entitled as follows:

SENATE BILL No. 368.

An Act authorizing the Department of Property and Supplies, with the approval of the Governor and the Board of Trustees of California State Teachers' College, to acquire a tract or tracts of land for the use of California State Teachers' College, and making an appropriation therefor.

Referred to the Committee on State Government.

RESOLUTION REPORTED FROM COMMITTEE

Mr. LLOYD H. WOOD asked and obtained unanimous consent to report from the Committee on Rules as committed a House Resolution (not printed) and for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, January 18, 1943.

The House of Representatives learns with deep sorrow of the death, on January 1st, New Years Day, of Edward J. Lynett, editor and publisher of the Scranton Times, and one of the most distinguished of American journalists.

Mr. Lynett died at the advanced age of 86 years, and during his long career, he and his newspaper exerted a profound and beneficial effect upon his community, his State and his Country.

Like many other leaders in the anthracite area, Mr. Lynett began work as a slate picker. Later he was employed as a deputy clerk in the Mayor's court, and for a time studied law. However, he soon felt that his true calling was journalism and he obtained a job as reporter on the Sunday Free Press. In a very short time he became the managing editor in which capacity he continued until 1895, when he bought out the struggling Scranton Times.

Under the leadership of Mr. Lynett, the Times developed from a struggling paper with little prestige into a great journal. Under his direction, the Times, always strove to further the best interests of the people of the community and the State. He took up and fought vigorously for many liberal causes. He was one of the early supporters of the cause of the Anthracite Mine workers in the days of the well known leader, John Mitchell, and was himself a leader in granting better wages and working conditions in the printing industry.

He was a Democrat in politics, and loyally supported his party year in and year out. There were times when the party's outlook in Pennsylvania and the Nation was dark, yet the Times, under Mr. Lynett's direction never failed to rally to the Democratic banner.

Mr. Lynett always felt that he and his newspaper had a duty toward his community. For sixty years he worked for practically every movement beneficial to the City of Scranton, and contributed liberally of his personal means, as well as the influences of his newspaper.

While Mr. Lynett was a crusader, he was never a reformer. There was no influence strong enough to prevent him from exposing ill-rule or misuse of public funds. He was a firm believer in an uncontrolled press and kept his newspaper entirely free of outside domination.

By his achievements in his chosen profession, by his participation in community efforts, by his deep understanding of people and their needs, acquired by close association, and by his devotion to whatever task was assigned to him, Mr. Lynett has gained for himself an endearing place in the hearts and memories of his fellow-citizens; therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania notes with profound sorrow the passing of this great and distinguished citizen of our Commonwealth, at a time when City, State and Nation can ill-afford such a loss; and be it further sentatives shall transmit a copy of this resolution to the family of the deceased, conveying thereby the sympathy of the House of Representatives to them in their bereavement.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. COHEN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I have already recounted on several occasions the matter of the Administration's avowals of cooperation with the Federal government on the question of winning the war. I have already charged many times that it was not the purpose and intent of the Administration wholeheartedly to lend its efforts to that purpose. I think that my position was that I was certain that there was no desire for this wholehearted cooperation. A few weeks ago a committee of my colleagues and myself went to the Governor and discussed a proposed platform of the Democratic side in which we asked the cooperation of the Governor. One of the points in that platform was the matter of legislation to assist the Federal Government in the matter of penalties and penal provisions which have to do with black markets.

That proposition was turned down flatly by the Administration, as we all know. We were told that all the items, including our black market provision, were matters that were already taken care of, were in the process of being taken care of or were solely matters for the Federal government.

Upon examining the history of the Senate I find that there were a couple so-called black market bills, so it comes with quite a shock to me today to find in the public press that something has happened which repudiates the Administration's pledge and which gives us now the first concrete proof of what I spoke about and charged within the past few weeks.

First let me say that I noticed in the press yesterday that Governor Dewey of New York was asking the cooperation of Governor Martin to enact certain legislation with reference to black market operations in Pennsylvania which would be in line with legislation already passed in the State of New York, but which they find is not effective unless surrounding states take similar action.

Let me read something that is in the Pittsburgh Post Gazette for Friday, May 7, 1943. The top line, underscored but in smaller type says, "Governor joins Dewey campaign". Well, that is fine. The Governor joins Dewey's campaign, and joins in the campaign against the black market. Then the big headline is, "Black market drive planned by Martin". That's all right too, but it seems to me we should implement that drive. Then, a peculiar sub-heading, which refutes this so-called campaign or black market drive, because it says, "Republican vote in Senate kills two OPA bills to curb practice".

Now, Mr. Speaker, are we getting the same sort of lip service and the same sort of negative action that we suspected was in the making and which we now know is the fact? Does Governor Martin want to continue kidding the public or does he really mean that there shall be legislation to help in the black market situation? I think one of the most important functions that any state Governor has today is to take positive action with reference to the many matters that require cooperation between the various states and the Federal government. I have heard the other side so many times passionately proclaiming that state rights shall not be interfered with, but if the state refuses to cooperate with respect to matters such as black market operations, then what other recourse can there be for the Federal government to control black markets but come over state lines to curb black market practices.

If you are sincere in your declaration and protestation that black markets must be eliminated, and if you are equally fervent in the hope that state rights shall be preserved, then why are you not consistent on the other side, and why isn't the Governor consistent in doing something concretely and doing something on the positive side to show that cooperation?

The Governor has often said and has told me in his office that he is a firm believer in the three independent branches of the government, the executive, the legislative and the judicial, that each has its function to perform and each has its duty to do, that he has no intention or desire to interfere with the legislative branch of the government. He has told us publicly that he has no "must" legislation and that he shall not interfere with our doings, but the public press already told us and we know for a fact that the Governor has at least once taken a hand and directed what should be done in the Legislature with reference to certain municipal authority legislation.

I have always maintained, Mr. Speaker, that the Governor should not have left hands off in the session, that the Governor should have become a leader of the people of Pennsylvania, that the Governor should have made a fighting campaign, and of course we should fight him back if we thought he was wrong, to get something concretely done in this session. I am glad the Governor did take a positive stand on some legislation, but when he tells us now that he plans to do something about black markets, in fact when he is urged by Governor Dewey to cooperate, we find that the House of Lords that sits on the other side of this building kills two bills that were introduced to help fight the black market proposition, then we must come to the conclusion that the Governor is insincere. This is no time to call him a faker, that will happen four years from now, but at least at this time we must conclude that he is insincere, and to say the least that he has no wholesome respect for the will of the people of Pennsylvania in their desire to cooperate with the Federal government. I hoped maybe these things were not true, but I trust that the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette is telling the truth, and I am basing my statement entirely on the accurate reporting in that paper. If OPA legislation is killed then I call on the Governor to do something more than say he is planning a drive. I say to the Governor today that we on this side are ready to remain in session if necessary to enact the proper legislation to implement this drive and to show the people that we mean what we say, and that the Governor means what he says, when he says that he wants to cooperate in every way with the Commander-in-Chief in this battle of ours to hold our domestic lines in shape to cooperate to win the war.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. PETTIT asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, on February 1, Representative Lane and I drafted a concurrent resolution and placed it before this honorable body providing that all members contribute 10 per cent of the salaries received from the state for the purchase of War Bonds. On February 1 that resolution was referred to committee on rules for approval. Nothing has been heard from it since. Consequently Members of the House have not been afforded an opportunity to vote on the proposal.

Our sole purpose in drafting and introducing the resolution was to make a contribution to the victory for which every member of the House hopes and prays. Had the resolution been favorably reported and passed by the House and Senate it would produce some $75,000 for the purchase of War Bonds to hasten the end of the great struggle which is devastating a large part of the world.

In drafting the resolution we thought only of the imperative need for more planes and tanks, ships and guns, ammunition and other supplies to back up our courageous fighting men on the sea, in the air and in the battle lines of the global war forced upon our peace-loving country by the ruthless Axis dictators.

Partisanship was farthest from our thoughts. We were thinking about the intrepid defenders of Wake Island, who held out until their last plane was gone, their ammunition exhausted, until they had exacted the greatest possible toll from the treacherous Japanese attackers of Pearl Harbor. We had in mind the heroic defense of Midway, which thank God, is still in American hands.

We saw again the dauntless courage of American and Filipino troops in the foxholes of Bataan and the caves of Corrigedor and realized anew the need for driving the Jap fanatics out of the Philippines and making good our pledge to return to the islands and do that job.

Our hearts thrilled as we recalled how the United States Marines—our own beloved Devil Dogs—landed on Guadalcanal, seized Henderson Field from the Japs, fought off every counterattack for months and aided our Navy in the glorious victories over the Japs in the South Pacific, the victories of our armed forces and those of our valiant Allies in the steaming jungles of New Guinea, where we, my friends, could not even live unless we had undergone months of most gruelling training to harden us for the task.

We looked over into China, where Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and his poorly armed, ill-clothed and often ill-fed but dauntless army has fought the merciless and murderous Japs for five years, with their principal ports gone, their industries largely eliminated, millions of their civilians, women and children slain. We saw them continuing the fight even with their lifeline—the famed Burma Road—in Japanese hands, aided by the valorous Gen. Chenault and his handful of matchless American flying men. We realized more than ever before that the heroic Chinese defenders are depending upon our aid in full measure to drive out the dastardly enemy and restore China to her own people.

And we looked across the Atlantic, infested with Axis submarine packs through which our gallant fighting men, —their equipment and supplies must pass to take the war home to the unspeakable Hitler who unloosed this unprecedented holocaust upon a peace-loving world. We gloried at the manner in which the war is being taken to Hitler, but recognized that so far we have made only a beginning and that the vast numbers of planes and tanks, ships and guns already produced in the United States and Allied countries must be doubled and trebled, before victory can be ours.

In common with many others we had felt that the comparatively easy victories scored by the United States and her Allies in Algeria and Morocco insured the early elimination of the German and Italian armed forces from North Africa, especially in view of the great victory scored by General Montgomery's magnificent 8th British Army, with splendid American air support, over the Desert Fox in Egypt, Libya and Tripoli. But we soon realized our error, when the weather, the rugged terrain and limited military equipment held up our advance into Tunisia.

We are not unmindful of the great fight put up by our British friends as they stood alone after the fall of France and Belgium and the overrunning of Holland, Denmark and Norway. We felt again the crushing blows struck the British Isles by the Axis airmen, the blasting of homes, schools, hospitals, churches, the death of tens of thousands of innocent women and children, the blotting out of entire cities like Coventry. But we saw the rugged British people carrying on despite shocking reverses—carrying the entire load with the aid of equipment and food purchased in this country until we could train our forces and do our share of the fighting to keep burning forever the Torch of Liberty.

Mr. Speaker, we were not unmindful of the rape of Austria, Czecho-Slovakia and Poland, the overrunning of Yugoslavia and heroic Greece. Numbered among the population of our great State are natives or descendants of every nation subjugated by the Axis tyrants, bent on destruction of everything which liberty-loving peoples throughout the world hold dear. We were moved by the magnificent defense put up by the Russian armed forces and the Russian people when Hitler turned on them only to lose millions of men and billions in equipment. We gloried in the measure of aid the United States has been able to get to Russia despite all the lurking Axis submarines and aircraft could do, but realized that vastly greater numbers of planes and tanks, other equipment and food must reach Russia to insure ultimate victory on the far-flung Eastern fighting front of Europe.

And we saw with growing satisfaction the expanding efforts of American aircraft and airmen in the destruction of German industry and transportation facilities, the wiping out of submarine building yards and hiding places, elimination of airplane plants and all manner of factories in Germany and conquered countries that have contributed to the success of the Axis military machine. With the British, Canadian, Polish, Norwegian, Dutch, Fighting French and other Allies daily increasing their efforts and the strength of their blows, verily the war is being taken to Germany and to much-bombed Italy.

Another thing we had in mind was the presence of boys from Pennsylvania homes on every American fighting ship and merchant ship, in every battle which has been fought on land and sea in the Pacific since Pearl Harbor and in the air over the Pacific and elsewhere. Some of these heroic sons of Pennsylvania are now in their graves. Others have been maimed for life and can no longer fight in the battle lines. Still others, wounded in action, have recovered and have again taken their places among our fighting units on the sea, on the land and in the air. They fight with all they have, often under conditions which we, safe and secure at home, cannot even visualize, for the things which they—and we—hold dear.

These loyal, fighting Pennsylvanians are risking their all for their country calls them—on gale-driven oceans, on burning desert sands, in steaming jungles and in frigid northern climes—as we go about our accustomed tasks untouched by the horrors that have stricken so many peoples. They are our own boys. They fight the good fight for you and for me. They have not let us down. In all conscience we cannot, we must not let them down. In the light of their tremendous sacrifices can we deny them a modest part of the salaries which the state of Pennsylvania—their own State—pays to us as legislators?

We earnestly urge favorable action on the resolution to which I have called your attention. It was introduced in all good faith to encourage and support our fighting men all over the earth and the sky. To be true, as patriotic Americans we have made contributions to the cause. But when we think back over what has gone before and realize what our armed forces have done and must still do to forever end military aggression against unoffending nations and peoples, what we have done in the way of sacrifice seems pitifully small.

Should our friends, the Republican majority, object to action because the resolution was presented by Democrats, we shall cheerfully welcome and support any substitute they may submit that will accomplish the same result or go even further.

We urge that the House of Representatives of this great state lead the way and set an example for the legislative assemblies of other states from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The relatively modest amount of money involved may save the lives of literally thousands of our fighting men. We would not intentionally sacrifice one life unnecessarily.

We were elected by our constituents to represent them in this period of dire emergency. Let us embrace this opportunity to demonstrate to them that we are worthy of the trust reposed in us when Pennsylvania's voters last went to the polls.

It is your war and my war—every American's war. We have not been called into the armed services to fight and bleed and die on far-flung battle fronts. But, as Americans who truly love our country and what it stands for, we have been called to put our every resource behind the drive to destroy those forces which have literally set the whole world on fire.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. LICHTENWALTER asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, just a few minutes ago we heard the Minority Leader of the House make some remarks and attack the Governor of this Commonwealth because of his manner of handling the black market situation and the drive planned, I believe under the direction of the Governor of New York State in his letter to four or five governors of surrounding states.

I have before me now the article from which he received this information and upon which he based his facts to attack the Governor of this Commonwealth.

In reading this article I cannot find any criticism, any remarks that in any way would reflect upon the Governor of this Commonwealth. The Governor has promised his cooperation in this drive against the black market, and certainly I am willing and I know that the majority members of this House are willing, to take the word of the Governor of this Commonwealth when he says he is willing to cooperate and set up a plan and a committee, as is stated in this article in the Pittsburgh Post Gazette.

This article refers to two bills that have been before this House and have passed this House, namely, the bill which will allow the Governor to suspend and take action on laws of our Commonwealth during this war-time emergency, and the other is the power which we have granted by a bill passed in this House to the State Council of Defense which is exactly the same bill, the model bill passed recently in the legislature of the State of New York, which has contained within in it wide power under which the Governor and the State Council of Defense can certainly operate and help curb this black market within Pennsylvania. I certainly do not feel that it is fair to a man who has given the greater part of his life in the service of his country as a soldier on the field of battle, and in civilian life has been a model public servant, serving his Commonwealth in many capacities, to have anyone come upon this floor and make scathing remarks in an attack upon the Governor that he has not taken the proper steps to eliminate and help in this problem of the black market in Pennsylvania.

I for one in the majority in this House want to take issue with the Minority Leader when he says that the Governor is letting the people of Pennsylvania down. If he will follow what did happen in this particular problem he will find that as far as cooperation with the Federal Government is concerned, the Republican party of Pennsylvania has not failed.

When the organization of the OPA was set up there were certain issues from Washington, and the Commonwealth and the states in this Union, and the Republican party in Pennsylvania, in order to conserve rubber and in order to conserve gasoline and the many other things that come under that bureau and agency did cooperate one hundred percent. I want to inform the membership of this House that the Republican party in Pennsylvania and Governor Edward Martin will stand by his pledge and his promise to cooperate with the Federal government and cooperate with the states that have been asked under this program to lend their aid and their effort and their police powers in time of emergency and stress to wipe out black market practices in Pennsylvania.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. LEONARD asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, on May 6, 1943, the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette carried the report which I know is accurate—that a Deputy Attorney General of this Commonwealth has gone into the Court in Allegheny County to block a judicial review of the settlements negotiated by the State Banking Department with men in debt to the depositors of closed banks.

It seems to me significant that this action by the State Department of Justice follows by only a day or two the revelation that the Attorney General of the Commonwealth was the beneficiary of one of these settlements.

Judge Ralph H. Smith, of the Common Pleas Court of Allegheny County, refused to accept blindly the settlements shoved across his desk for approval of officers of the Commonwealth. He appointed investigators who would develop the facts.

One of these investigators disclosed that Hon. James H. Duff, Attorney General of the Commonwealth, erased a $110,000 indebtedness to the closed Pennsylvania Trust Company for a little more than $15,000. This settlement was made only a few weeks after Duff took his seat in the Governor's Cabinet.

Today, Mr. Duff's Deputy Attorney General—the state's employee but Duff's representative—is in Court attempting to strip Judge Smith of his right to investigate further Duff's settlement and the other settlements of which, we, and the Courts, know nothing.

I say to you, Members of the House, that this settlement—following as it does upon the heels of other settlements involving high officials of the state and important leaders of the Republican party, is surrounded with circumstances which demand investigation.

Instead, the Attorney General of the state is trying to smother inquiry. He must have his reasons for wanting to conceal these settlements from an honest Judge and a concerned people.

Many people in my district lost all they possessed in the failure of the Pennsylvania Trust Company. They want to know whether this State Administration is going to see them deprived of all hope to recover even a pittance so that favored individuals with political power, big salaries and other income, may negotiate settlements out of keeping with their ability to pay.

It is the duty of the House to see to it these facts are unearthed—not buried. I therefore present the following Resolution:

The SPEAKER. This is not a privileged resolution and will be filed with the Clerk under the rules.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. SALUS asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I have sat here during this session and been a sort of freshman, been just a young fellow again in this hall, and not taking it upon myself to enter into any debate. The only time that I have appeared on this floor has been when I have been asked questions, but I have sat here and have heard myself and my companions on the Republican side abused time and again for no reason whatever. Let Hans Breitmann, who went to Kansas to see what he could hear, I came to this session by the good will of my constituents to see what I could hear, and I have heard and seen here what I have never heard or seen before. I have listened to a campaign of abuse without any background, without any foundation and without reason. This state of Pennsylvania and the great United States are built, not by fault finders but by path finders. I look back and see that in the last fifty or sixty years we have had two Democratic Governors, one, Robert E. Pattison, when I was a child and the other one George H. Earle. I do not propose to find any fault with Mr. Pattison because I don't remember. I don't want to make any complaint about Mr. Earle, because I want to forget, but it strikes me that in all the years that I have been in politics the campaign of our Democratic friends has been a campaign of vituperation and fault finding. Fault-finding has never built anything, but the people of Pennsylvania must either be on the majority side a brilliant people or an extremely ignorant people, because they have consistently, with large majorities in all but eight of the sixty or seventy years, time after time, elected a Republican governor. When Mr. Earle was Governor of Pennsylvania the only Democratic Governor in my time, there were four years of service, good, bad, or indifferent,—I do not propose to talk about them because I want to forget them. It so happens that Governor James was elected on the Republican ticket and I have heard all kinds of charges, almost all the offenses in the criminal code of 1860 charged against Governor James. They were charged in the campaign in every little borough and village and city throughout the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, but the result was that I believe the intelligent people of Pennsylvania were not affected by the villainous campaign arguments of our Democratic friends and Governor James was elected.

We recently had an election when one of the world's heroes was a candidate for Governor, and that is our present Governor Martin. No man in his honest conception of what Governor Martin stands for can say aught but that he is one of our nation's heroes. He has given the greater part of his life to the military services of Pennsylvania and of the United States.

During his campaign Governor James was villified from corner to corner throughout Pennsylvania, and if you would listen to the speeches of our Democratic friends, he has been born with horns. But what was the result? Pennsylvania citizenship know now as they will know in the future when Governor Martin's term is up, that all these vituperations were but political propaganda and not being able to push that down the throats or into the minds of the citizens of Pennsylvania, they elected Edward Martin the Governor of the Commonwealth on the Republican ticket.

I believe, Mr. Speaker, that the best campaigners or the best assets that not only the Republican party had, but the citizenship of Pennsylvania had, was the Democratic organization and its campaign orators and its platform. I just can't understand why all these complaints are being made as to what this Republican Legislature has done in this last session. I for one cannot recall a single piece of progressive legislation presented in this House by any member of the Democratic party. If they had a program why not put it on the floor of the House and give us a chance to see whether you knew what they were about. We hear much about a committee that walked over to the Governor's office, and there tried to entrap him into some political propaganda for the purpose of campaigning, and gave him fourteen points or eleven points, whatever they were, and wanted him apparently to go along. I don't know what they were; but the chances are that they were propositions that they wouldn't agree to themselves if they were in power. In other words the whole thing sums itself down in my mind, to this,— and I find no fault with my Democratic friends, I find no fault with anybody; I never find fault with any man who stands up for his party, I glory in the fact that he is loyal, but it all comes down to this proposition, that the majority of the voters and the citizens of Pennsylvania elected a Republican Governor, and the Democratic minority feel that they should rule the Commonwealth.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. COHEN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I am sorry that we have gotten into a political harangue, but I do not think the record should be left unclear as to the statements made by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus. He asked for the program of the Democratic party. If the gentleman will consult the record of the House he will find that such a program was introduced, that it was never let out of Committee, and he will find further that certain resolutions were introduced and motions made to discharge committees and that the majority laid all those deliberations on the table. He will find further that when we called on the Governor with our eleven points we merely asked for consultation. We got an absolute refusal and a definite slap in the face as to any possibility of discussing these things with an idea of getting anything done. I think, that the record ought to be clear and Mr. Salus should be apprised of those facts.

BILLS ON SECOND READING

The SPEAKER. Senate Bill No. 243, Printer's No. 194;

Senate Bill No. 602, Printer's No. 341; and

Senate Bill No. 433, Printer's No. 448

were passed over at the request of the SPEAKER.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 305, entitled:

An act to further amend the act approved the thirtieth day of May one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 115) entitled "An act to provide for the permanent personal registration of electors in cities of the first class as a condition of their right to vote at elections and primaries and their enrollment as members of political parties as a further condition of their right to vote at primaries prescribing certain procedure for the conduct of elections and primaries and the challenge and proof of qualifications of electors and prescribing the powers and duties of citizens parties bodies of electors registration commissions commissioners registrars inspectors of registration and other appointees of registration commission election officers municipal officers departments and bureaus police officers courts judges prothonotaries sheriffs county commissioners peace officers county treasurers county controllers registrars of vital statistics real estate brokers rental agents certain public service companies persons firms and corporations operating vehicles for moving furniture and household goods and boards of school directors and imposing penalties" by changing certain provisions of said act relating to removal notices and eliminating electors' rights to file removal notices in certain cases.

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. WELSH. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate a friend of long standing, chairman of the Election Committee, the gentleman from Schuylkill, Mr. Watkins.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Schuylkill permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WATKINS. I will, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. WELSH. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman feel that the personal permanent registration is a good and worthy thing in Pennsylvania?

Mr. WATKINS. I do to a certain extent, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. WELSH. Would the gentleman say that the act of 1937 providing for personal permanent registration was a step in the right direction?

Mr. WATKINS. I believe it was, but there are always some corrections that can be made, Mr. Speaker, when we see abuses.

Mr. WELSH. Can the gentleman state whether Senate Bill No. 305, now before this House is part of his party's policy for the present session of the General Assembly?

Mr. WATKINS. I wouldn't say it is a part of the policy of our party. It is up to the majority of the House as to whether they agree to that.

Mr. WELSH. Does the gentleman feel that the present registration commission in Philadelphia is doing a good job?

Mr. WATKINS. Well, personally, Mr. Speaker, I couldn't state that I know much about the condition in Philadelphia. This bill has to do entirely with the Philadelphia district, and I would rather have the members of the majority from Philadelphia answer that question.

Mr. WELSH. Can the gentleman state whether or not any member of the commission in Philadelphia has expressed public or private dissatisfaction with the law as it now stands?

Mr. WATKINS. I have heard complaint from Philadelphia, that is correct, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. WELSH. Does the gentleman feel that the expression of the Chairman of our City Registration Commission, that he had nothing to do with the draftsmanship of Senate Bill No. 305, is sincere?

Mr. WATKINS. Well, I am not in position to judge that, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. WELSH. Does the gentleman have any knowledge of the fact that two members of the Commission in Philadelphia have publicly expressed their opposition to Senate Bill No. 305, and that the chairman further indicates that he was unable to make a unanimous statement on that question, and the division was not along party lines?

Mr. WATKINS. Well now, Mr. Speaker, what does the gentleman want me to answer? Does he want me to make a statement or answer a question?

Mr. WELSH. I simply want to know whether the gentleman has any knowledge of that fact.

Mr. WATKINS. Now, I wouldn't have any knowledge of that, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. WELSH. Has the gentleman any knowledge of any requests having been made to his committee of the General Assembly which had Senate Bill No. 305 before it—any requests made for public hearing?

Mr. WATKINS. Yes, I had a few requests, but the requests were made at a time when a public hearing was impossible under the conditions.

Mr. WELSH. Does the gentleman think it is a fair provision of this bill, that change of address cards are allowable within the city divisions but not from any other ward or section of the city, that is from one ward or section to another?

Mr. WATKINS. In that respect, Mr. Speaker, if that was back home in Schuylkill County, yes, I am one hundred per cent for it, and I think perhaps Philadelphia should be too, because I do think there can be deviation in registration that is done that way.

Mr. WELSH. Does the gentleman feel that even though this bill relates primarily to Philadelphia, and inasmuch as we are now engaged in a great effort to win the war, with our industrial plants working overtime and the men in those plants, doing their utmost, whether or not it is a hardship for these men to be obliged to travel long distances to register a change of address in order to become qualified electors.

Mr. WATKINS. Mr. Speaker, I understand under this act they do not have to travel long distances. They are going to have registrars sitting throughout the different districts of the city.

Mr. WELSH. Mr. Speaker, I hardly recognize that in the present bill.

Mr. WATKINS. It is in the bill Mr. Speaker, making provision about registrars.

Mr. WELSH. Will the gentleman point out where and in what section that will be found in Senate Bill 305?

Mr. WATKINS. That is not my particular job, Mr. Speaker, to look after that thing.

Mr. WELSH. Mr. Speaker, I thought that inasmuch as the gentleman was Chairman of the committee that he had a complete knowledge of the bill.

Mr. WATKINS. I have a fair knowledge of the bill, Mr. Speaker, but I really feel that since it is a Philadelphia bill, if the gentleman wants any further information on it he should take the word of the majority of our party in Philadelphia, and I will yield to Mr. Tahl or whoever will talk on the bill. I think they can clear that up.

Mr. WELSH. Mr. Tahl, have you any knowledge of that feature in the bill?

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Tahl, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. TAHL. I will, Mr. Speaker. Mr. Welsh is well aware of the fact that we have traveling registrars, and that has been done for several years. There is no difficulty for anyone registering in his own neighborhood. The gentleman knows that.

Mr. WELSH. That was a practice put into affect before this amendment was made, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TAHL. There is nothing in this bill, Mr. Speaker, that would prevent or prohibit the Commission from continuing this practice.

Mr. WELSH. Is it not a fact, Mr. Speaker, that the percentage of failure of these change of address cards to reach their destinations has been comparatively small.

Mr. TAHL. I take into consideration, Mr. Speaker, common knowledge, that many cards were lost, and those were people who thought they were properly recorded and felt that they were properly recorded but found that they were unable to vote on election day.

Mr. WELSH. Mr. Speaker, has the gentleman read the report of the Commission submitted to Governor Martin early this year?

Mr. TAHL. I have had no opportunity to read it at length because of the pressure of legislative business.

Mr. WELSH. Mr. Speaker, the Commission made a lengthy report to the Governor which pointed out that as a result of the system they now have they have reduced the number of errors to a very insignificant minimum.

Mr. Speaker, has the gentleman any knowledge as to how far that has been reduced?

Mr. TAHL. I know that the Commission has done very excellent work and I have no doubt that the Commission will continue to function efficiently.

Mr. WELSH. Mr. Speaker, can the gentleman give me any solid reason why these change of address cards should be eliminated?

Mr. TAHL. Mr. Speaker, I think it is going to help to make it certain that every person that moves will be in the binder. As it is, on election day they have to give the card to someone, and if that particular someone is not available to turn in the card, then they are unable to vote.

Mr. WELSH. Mr. Speaker, hasn't the last provision in the bill providing for a receipt by mail materially reduced absence from the polls?

Mr. TAHL. That helps a little, Mr. Speaker, but I think we ought to take steps to make sure that every person who wants to vote should be in the binder.

Mr. WELSH. It seems to me, Mr. Speaker, that the fact that it is not in the binder was due to reasons other than the change of address cards.

Mr. TAHL. In many instances, Mr. Speaker, the cards were not returned to the Commission, and therefore they did not have the change of address, and they could not vote.

Mr. WELSH. Well, Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman feel that the elimination of these cards will improve the situation.

Mr. TAHL. I believe it would, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. WELSH. Does the gentleman not believe that it would not work any hardship on any person in the outlying sections of the city?

Mr. TAHL. Mr. Speaker, I think that in view of the fact that there are permanent registrars in the various districts, I do not believe there will be any hardship, particularly when the registrars sit until eleven o'clock.

Mr. WELSH. Then they have the so-called traveling registrars, of which I believe there were forty. The gentleman would have them take the place of the change of address cards entirely. Mr. Speaker?

Mr. TAHL. Mr. Speaker, I think the change of address card would record those removals correctly, and then there would be no question but that the person who wishes to vote would have his name in the binder.

Mr. WELSH. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman know any other county in Pennsylvania that has had trouble to the extent that they would advocate the elimination of these cards?

Mr. TAHL. That is the practice in Schuylkill County, Mr. Speaker. I heard Mr. Watkins say that that is the practice in Schuylkill County.

Mr. WELSH. But, Mr. Speaker, Schuylkill County doesn't come under the act which we are discussing.

Mr. TAHL. I know, Mr. Speaker, but the gentleman asked me if I knew any other county where they have trouble and would advocate the elimination of the cards.

Mr. WELSH. Mr. Speaker, would the gentleman say that the cards are working all right in Allegheny County?

Mr. TAHL. I couldn't answer anything about Allegheny County, Mr. Speaker. I am not familiar with it. Is the gentleman familiar with it?

Mr. WELSH. I understand, Mr. Speaker, from what I have read and heard that it is all right, no complaint.

Mr. TAHL. Mr. Speaker, we can only judge by the conditions as we find them in Philadelphia, and this bill only applies to Philadelphia.

Mr. WELSH. Mr. Speaker, is the gentleman acquainted with the personal registration in the city of Camden, just across the river from us?

Mr. TAHL. I am not familiar with Camden's conditions, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. WELSH. Is the gentleman aware, Mr. Speaker, that they have had personal registration in New Jersey for many years?

Mr. TAHL. I happen to have but very little experience with New Jersey law.

Mr. WELSH. Mr. Speaker, don't we usually compare our own state with surrounding states when we come to adopt any particular system?

Mr. TAHL. It's all right to do that, Mr. Speaker; no harm to do that.

Mr. WELSH. And in that case, Mr. Speaker, would the gentleman not place any particular value on that point, because he never thought of comparing us with New Jersey?

Mr. TAHL. I only said, Mr. Speaker, that I haven't studied the New Jersey registration law.

Mr. WELSH. Mr. Speaker, I believe the gentleman would admit that the same principle applies, would he not?

Mr. TAHL. I only say, Mr. Speaker, that we have enough to do in Pennsylvania without interfering with the Camden situation.

Mr. WELSH. Would the gentleman not say that this registration act is a sort of political weapon now being used in Philadelphia?

Mr. TAHL. No, I say no, because this applies just as well to both parties, and I don't see where you can point to anything in the act which gives any advantage to one party over the other.

Mr. WELSH. Wouldn't the gentleman say, Mr. Speaker, that inasmuch as the great number of people in Philadelphia are eager and desirous of registering and voting, would there not be a possibility under this bill that many of them will be eliminated?

Mr. TAHL. I can't agree with that, Mr. Speaker. I know that anyone who wishes to vote,—and the polls are open up to ten o'clock,—within a reasonable distance of the home, I don't see that there is any trouble about it.

Mr. WELSH. Mr. Speaker, what would happen would be that these people would have to go down to the City Hall Annex and take one of these ground floor elevators to the seventeenth floor.

Mr. TAHL. The gentleman means the fourteenth floor, I believe, does he not? I would say this, they can do that on the particular day that is fixed for registration in a particular community.

Mr. WELSH. I presume that the gentleman has been there when the Commission's office was taxed to its capacity.

Mr. TAHL. I was there on numerous occasions, yes, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. WELSH. Would the gentleman admit, Mr. Speaker, that at many times it was very hot and stuffy, and he would not like to be obliged to wait in the crowd for a long time?

Mr. TAHL. I told the gentleman before, Mr. Speaker, there is no need for that. They can go to the neighborhood registrar when he comes there.

Mr. WELSH. Mr. Speaker, the law has always provided for a time for them to use a change of address card. Wouldn't that be a relief? Wouldn't it be one advantage to them to be able to continue the use of the card?

Mr. TAHL. There is no need for them to wait until the need for the card comes up. If they are interested in being good citizens they will not wait for that time, they will register when the registrars are right there in their own neighborhood and ready to take care of them.

Mr. WELSH. Mr. Speaker, is it not a fact that the present act is very similar, that is the present amendments which we are considering, to a bill that was introduced in the 1941 session of the Legislature?

Mr. TAHL. The gentleman knows I was not here in 1941.

Mr. WELSH. Did the gentleman ever read the history of the House?

Mr. TAHL. Well, I wasn't following the history of the House at that time.

Mr. WELSH. What about the session of 1939, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. TAHL. In 1939 I was here, yes, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. WELSH. Does the gentleman recall, Mr. Speaker, at that time that the bill passed the House and Senate?

Mr. TAHL. What bill is the gentleman referring to, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. WELSH. For the purpose of eliminating the change of address cards in cities and counties of the first class, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TAHL. Mr. Speaker, I think experience has shown that the card system is a source of a great deal of trouble to the voters who are not in politics. Those who are in politics have no trouble.

Mr. WELSH. That doesn't quite answer my question, Mr. Speaker. The question was does the gentleman recall that act as having passed the House and Senate?

Mr. TAHL. I do not have any recollection of that, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. WELSH. Well, has the gentleman not heard of it in the newspapers?

Mr. TAHL. I might have read it, Mr. Speaker, but I don't just recall.

Mr. WELSH. Does the gentleman not recall in his legislative and political career that some time or other that great Governor that my friend Mr. Salus referred to a few moments ago vetoed a bill that carried the very provisions that the present bill carries?

Mr. TAHL. Is the gentleman referring to Governor James?

Mr. WELSH. Yes, that is right, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TAHL. I suggest, Mr. Speaker, that the gentleman get hold of the Governor's veto messages.

Mr. WELSH. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman mean to tell me that he is absolutely ignorant of the fact that Governor James said in his veto message that it was entirely uncalled for and unwarranted and entirely too expensive to eliminate?

Mr. TAHL. Now, Mr. Speaker, that may be; I don't recall that, but I say this, with all due deference to Governor James, we know the conditions in Philadelphia as they exist today and this bill has reference to present conditions. There is no use to horn in with Governor James' fight about conditions in Philadelphia. He is not a resident there, while we are, and we know the facts, we know the conditions.

Mr. WELSH. Mr. Speaker, regardless what the gentleman says about Governor James not being a resident, I will say this, that he was not totally dumb; I talked to him many times and I think he knew what he was saying.

Mr. TAHL. Does the gentleman admit that he was a great Governor?

Mr. WELSH. I will admit he was a great man, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TAHL. I am glad, Mr. Speaker, that one Democrat at least has admitted openly that Governor James was a great Governor.

Mr. WELSH. I say a great man, Mr. Speaker. He was no dummy. Is the gentleman aware of the fact that the Committee of Seventy in Philadelphia condemns this bill?

Mr. TAHL. Mr. Speaker, I ask the gentleman, does he admit that this present Commission is a very good commission?

Mr. WELSH. I do, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Tahl, wish to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Welsh?

Mr. TAHL. I do, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Welsh, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WELSH. I shall.

Mr. TAHL. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman agree with me that the present Commission in Philadelphia is doing a very good, excellent and efficient job?

Mr. WELSH. That is right, Mr. Speaker, and my feeling in that matter has been confirmed when I realize they said that they could not go along and support the present bill.

Mr. TAHL. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman admit that when the Committee of Seventy made an open charge in court that the Commission is inefficient that the facts did not substantiate that charge?

Mr. WELSH. That is right, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TAHL. That is all, I thank the gentleman.

Mr. WELSH. Mr. Speaker, I realize that anything that I might say would not be conducive to persuading my Philadelphia Republican friends into the notion or conception that the change of this present law, the law of 1937 together with its amendments of 1939 and 1941 would in any wise turn them aside from the rash step they have conceived and which they intend to take. However, this one thing is certain, that they are not doing it to help the citizens of Philadelphia. They are aiming it at the thousands of persons from the interior of Pennsylvania who have come into our great city for employment for the express purpose of contributing their part toward the National defense and war effort. These people are the ones who are going to be compelled to submit to the indignities, and inconvenience caused by this act. These people are the ones who are going to suffer, because our real honest-to-goodness Philadelphians rarely change their addresses, but those who come from other parts and seek to settle and make their homes in places that conform to their desires and wishes, they are the ones that are going to be subjected to this inconvenience—I was going to say indignity, but Mr. Tahl almost fell of his chair when I mentioned that word before.

I say that this bill does not provide anything of good for the citizens of Philadelphia. I can think of nothing more explanatory of this than to explain or cite a few expressions contained in the report of the Commission given to Governor Martin at the beginning of this year. I would like the Members from upstate particularly to recognize the colossal job that must be done by the Registration Commission of Philadelphia. I want you to realize that on the surface it might appear to be the elimination of a factor which would relieve them of certain responsibility, but in this case they very clearly indicate that the change of address cards have not been a factor in their troubles. From the time the registration commission was instituted in Philadelphia they have been under fire, they have had considerable trouble, but at the present moment through good hard work, persistence, understanding and cooperation, the Commission is better off than ever. They do not ask for this change. During the year 1942 the registration commission,—and I am quoting from their reports,—like in every activity in our daily lives, has felt the impact of the war. The lives and habits of our people have been changed and it has been necessary to meet new situations. The demands of the war have made it difficult for the Commission to obtain necessary equipment and in some instances essential supplies. A serious problem has arisen as to the best means of protecting the right of franchise of those in military service in order that their names may remain on the registration list. The present Registration Commission has exerted every effort to obtain the names of all those who have gone into the armed services, but the many draft boards and the state draft board are now so overwhelmed with work that no accurate list seems to be obtainable nor is it possible to obtain from official sources those who have volunteered for the military services. Nevertheless, the Commission is doing its utmost, with the cooperation of the newspapers, canvasses made by the principal political parties, general public information and the extensive use of its own inspectors, to have the military registration affidavits kept up to date. Every effort has been made to encourage registration at military camps, but the natural preoccupation with the war has not made it possible to obtain many new registrants from this source. Upon receipt of personal application the total number of registrations sent to persons in military services for the year 1942 was ninety-four. The housing situation, due to the war has brought about a considerable change in the moving habits of the populace. More people are moving from greater distances into the metropolitan area of Philadelphia, and likewise many are moving out of the city. It is anticipated that in the ensuing year fewer persons will move within the city due to the housing shortage. The Commission believes that it is alert to those new problems and it is exerting a maximum of effort to cope with them.

The commission goes on to say that the travelling registrars are highly successful. It cites a number of figures which I do not care to bore you with at the moment. Its great effort has been to remove ineligible. Thousands of persons have been carried on the lists after death. Thousands have been on the list not for one year or two years, but in some cases I have known dead persons have been carried on the lists for four years. The present law provides that the Bureau of Vital Statistics shall cooperate with the Registration Commission in this respect. In many cases in the past years this cooperation has not been forthcoming. For that reason in my opinion, the Commission was not always to blame, and in many instances where the change of address cards were involved, the Commission's blame was not total. In many cases where persons had moved from addresses where they had never voted and sought to change their political or voting status they simply filed the change of address cards. This has made a great troublesome problem and I believe the Commission has reduced that to a minimum, and has accomplished that in a manner that has reduced the volume of clerical work to say the least. I say that this bill has no justification. I hope that the members from all over this Commonwealth will realize that this is simply an effort to destroy the rights of citizens coming into Philadelphia, and I do hope and I do feel that the Members will see that in the proper sense. I believe this bill is unnecessary and I want to move that this bill be recommitted to the Committee on Elections.

MOTION TO RECOMMIT

Mr. WELSH. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be recommitted to the Committee on Elections for the purpose of further study.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. SALUS. Mr. Speaker, on this motion am I allowed under the Rules to state why I am opposed to this motion?

The SPEAKER. The gentleman may state why he is opposed to the motion but may not debate the bill.

Mr. SALUS. Then, Mr. Speaker, I ask the Republican Members of the House to oppose this motion, and at the proper time I will answer, not only to their satisfaction, but I think to Mr. Welsh's satisfaction that this is a good bill.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Speaker.

So the question was determined in the negative and the motion was not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

Messrs. TATE and SCANLON offered the following amendments:

Amend Sec. 1, page 2, line 1, by striking out the words "Section twenty-one" and inserting in lieu thereof: "Clause (b) of section three."

Amend Sec. 1, page 3, by inserting between lines 6 and 7, the following: "(b) The commission in each year shall designate the place or places in each or any ward to be used as registration places, which shall be not less in number than one-half the number of election districts within such ward, and shall appoint two or more registrars for each such registration place as it may deem necessary, who shall sit at the registration place to which they are assigned at least four days in each year for the purpose of registering qualified electors. Not more than one-half of the number of registrars appointed for each registration place in each year shall be members of the same political party. All registrars appointed shall be qualified electors of the election district or ward for which they have been appointed, shall be of good moral character, shall not have been convicted of any crime, shall be able to read English in an intelligent manner, and to write legibly, and shall be familiar with qualifications of electors and duties of the registrars. Such registrars shall be empowered to register the qualified electors of such election districts or wards, and, in so doing, to administer oaths and affirmations, and shall perform all other duties imposed on registrars by this act and by the registration commission.

Each registrar shall receive as compensation ten dollars ($10.00) for each day during which he is engaged in the active performance of his duties as registrar. The commission shall designate the duties to be performed by each such registrar appointed by it. The said registrars shall be appointed in the manner as hereinafter provided in subsection (c) of this section."

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I rise at this time in support of the amendments sponsored by my colleague from Philadelphia, Mr. Scanlon, and myself, to Senate Bill No. 305. The previous history of this measure, in spite of protests from responsible persons and organizations of the city of Philadelphia, seems to indicate that it is being speeded through these halls for final enactment. Although this fact is recognized regretfully, I respectfully request the indulgence of the House in these late days for the serious and fair consideration of these amendments.

This is strictly a Philadelphia bill which involves the people of the city of Philadelphia alone. This is because our permanent personal registration law is separate and distinct from the law in other sections of the state. In no other political subdivision of the Commonwealth is a measure of this type proposed. In other sections of the state the registration commissions do everything in their power to facilitate exercise of the voting franchise.

Even in Philadelphia the present Registration Commission has ardently and sincerely sought to encourage the exercise of the voting franchise. They have administered the filing of close to one hundred thousand change of address requests with efficiency and dispatch as late as the year 1942. Thus, I cannot in all frankness understand the reason for this measure. Certainly it is consistent with American principles to encourage and facilitate a free exercise of the voting franchise so long as it is exercised. I cannot at this late date see why the Members of the General Assembly should leave as many as one hundred thousand citizens of the city of Philadelphia unattended and unnoticed in this General Assembly.

Since registration is a condition precedent to the voting franchise it must equally be encouraged by facilitating the administrative machinery which at the same time protects the franchise.

I appeal especially today to those of you from other counties who are principally interested in only those problems affecting your own counties or problems of the administration during these closing days of the session. I am just wondering how you would feel if so many people in your county were similarly affected.

Recognizing that this measure will pass, I submit that the amendments now being considered will provide a much needed service to the citizens of Philadelphia who have moved or will move during this year and in the future. During these trying days the majority of the people of the city of Philadelphia are engaged in important war work, these people in a great number of cases have moved to outlying sections of the city to be near their work. For instance in the year 1942 as many as 96,580 people filed change of address cards with the registration commission in order to qualify for their voting franchise, and it can safely be said that during the year 1942 our war industries program was only beginning to gain momentum. At the same time I am reliably informed that just as many more people have moved during this year to be near the war plants.

The measure now before us without these amendments will serve to disfranchise these people, who not only are engaged in important war work in the great war plants of the city of Philadelphia, but are the fathers and mothers, brothers and sisters of those fighting on the land, on the sea and in the air. Without these amendments they will be required to spend as much as three hours in transportation and many more hours waiting in line on the fourteenth floor of a building in the central city of Philadelphia known as City Hall Annex, where the corridors are badly crowded and where the elevator service is pitifully inadequate.

And again, because the Commission closes at the early hour of 4:00 p. m., many of these people will not be able to register to vote because they can get away from their work in the evenings only. If they desire to register they must take time off from necessary war work, and these cases multiplied many times will cause a serious blowup in production schedules.

Under these amendments we as representatives of the people of the city of Philadelphia and especially those in the outlying sections seek to facilitate the protection of the voting franchise of those who have moved. We intend to make it possible for the people affected, that great group of the citizens of Philadelphia who will want to vote, to register in their own neighborhood on at least four days in each year. This will not entail any additional expense on the part of the Commission because the travelling registrars can rotate in the various communities on four regular days in each year instead of two regular days. At the same time the registration places will be convenient to the prospective electors.

I appeal to you in the interest of these people of the city of Philadelphia whose destiny today is in your hands. If you are fair and give serious consideration to these amendments you will vote "aye" on these amendments.

Much has been said about the use of travelling registrars, that they can handle this situation. I have had a great deal of personal experience in this respect, but I contend that they cannot adequately handle it if the change of address cards are eliminated. These amendments will expend that system to take care of these hundred thousand people. They can sit four days each year and at more convenient places.

Mr. TAHL. Mr. Speaker, all I want to say is that these amendments should be voted down for the reason that we have the practice of travelling registrars, and there is no need for any amendment to the act. I ask that the amendments be voted down.

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I think the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Tahl, is a little bit unfair in his statement. We admit that travelling registrars can handle this situation, that probably is correct, but we also contend that we ought to expand this system of travelling registrars to permit them to sit four separate days each year, at convenient places in the local communities, which would be near to these people who may be disfranchised under this proposed measure.

AMENDMENTS WITHDRAWN

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my amendments to the other sections of the bill.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

Messrs. CHUDOFF and LEVY offered the following amendments:

Amend Sec. 1, page 2, line 1, by striking out the words "Section twenty-one" and inserting in lieu thereof: "Clause (b) of section three."

Amend Sec. 1, page 3, by inserting between lines 6 and 7, the following:

"(b) The commission in each year shall designate the place or places in each or any ward to be used as registration places, and shall appoint two or more registrars for each such registration place as it may deem necessary. Not more than one-half of the number of registrars appointed for each registration place in each year shall be members of the same political party. Upon presentation of a petition to the commission, signed by at least twenty qualified electors of the city, accompanied by the written consent of the owner, president, manager or superintendent of any firm or business engaged in the production of war material or supplies, or of the authority having supervision or jurisdiction over any Federal, State or city housing project, requesting that registrars shall sit at such place of business or at such housing project for the purpose of registering qualified electors, the commission shall designate at least two days within each calendar year, and appoint at least two registrars to sit at such business place or housing project on such days for such purpose. All registrars appointed shall be qualified electors of the election district or ward for which they have been appointed, shall be of good moral character, shall not have been convicted of any crime, shall be able to read English in an intelligent manner, and to write legibly, and shall be familiar with qualifications of electors and duties of the registrars. Such registrars shall be empowered to register the qualified electors of such election districts or wards, and, in so doing, to administer oaths and affirmations, and shall perform all other duties imposed on registrars by this act and by the registration commission.

Each registrar shall receive as compensation ten dollars ($10.00) for each day during which he is engaged in the active performance of his duties as registrar. The commission shall designate the duties to be performed by each such registrar appointed by it. The said registrars shall be appointed in the manner as hereinafter provided in subsection (c) of this section.

Section 2. Section twenty-one of said act, as amended by said act, approved the thirty-first day of July, one thousand nine hundred forty-one (P. L. 710), is hereby further amended to read as follows:"

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. CHUDOFF. Mr. Speaker, my amendments to Senate Bill 305 have no political significance. I would like the Members on both sides of the House to listen carefully to my explanation of the amendments. I would like to remind the Members on both sides of the House that Philadelphia composes one-sixth of Pennsylvania, and that in state-wide elections one-sixth of the people of Pennsylvania are counted in the state-wide vote as coming from Philadelphia.

Pennsylvania has always been considered the arsenal of the United States, and in turn Philadelphia has often been referred to as the arsenal of Pennsylvania. My amendments simply provide that the Registration Commission by and with the consent of the owners of plants manufacturing war materials in the city of Philadelphia, and by the consent of the superintendents of the state, city and Federal housing projects of this city can send into those projects and into those war industries travelling registrars two times a year. If there is anything political about these amendments, to allow registrars to go into the war plants and housing projects, I for the life of me cannot see it. I might say that since Pearl Harbor Philadelphia has expanded its war industries. Some of the plants that were in Philadelphia have grown to tremendous proportions; others have been established in the form of new enterprises. I might say that some of these plants of which you are aware, the Quartermaster's Depot, Philadelphia Navy Yard, Cramp's Shipyard, the New York Shipyard across the river, which draws lots of its personnel from the people of Philadelphia, Bendix, Midvale Steel Company, Westinghouse Electric, General Electric, and I could perhaps go on for five or ten minutes citing the plants in Philadelphia that are manufacturing war materials for our boys now engaged in active service.

As a result of this expansion of war industries Philadelphia in order to meet a housing problem has built and the Federal government has built many housing projects. This expansion has not taken place in the congested districts of Philadelphia; many of these plants are miles away from City Hall, and the Federal government and the city housing authorities, realizing that all time must be conserved for the purpose of feeding war efforts, have built these housing projects in isolated places of the city, near the workers' place of work. I have taken time, Members of the House, to make research into the number of housing projects in the city of Philadelphia, and with your kind indulgence I want to read the number of them:

There are in Philadelphia thirteen defense housing projects, all built in outlying sections near these war industries. They are known by proper names, such as Hill Creek, which is out near the Lawndale section of the city, an isolated section of Philadelphia, and contains two hundred fifty-eight dwellings: Tasker project, covering twenty-one acres, serving the war industries in south Philadelphia, contains three hundred fifty units: The Packer project covering an area of thirty-six acres, which serves south Philadelphia and the Philadelphia Navy Yard, has seven hundred housing units: Oxford Village in Northeast Philadelphia covers thirty-nine acres and serves war plants built in northeast Philadelphia and has six hundred fifty units: Richmond Street to Balfour Street project covers twenty-one acres and has two hundred fifty units. This, gentlemen, serves Cramp's Shipyard: Tacony Street to Bermuda Street project in Philadelphia covers an area of fifteen acres and has two hundred fifty units: Juniata Street to Cayuga Hunting Park, forty-nine acres and has seven hundred fifty housing units. This housing project serves Budds and the Midvale Steel Company. John Weldon Johnson project at 25th and Norris Street, which presently has five hundred thirty-five units and is located in my legislative district and is planning on expanding to take in another one hundred units: Tosler Home at 31st and Norris has one thousand units: Richard Allen Home at 1015 Parrish Drive has thirteen hundred twenty-four units. Passayunk Homes at 3100 South 23rd Street serves the Quartermasters Depot and Navy Yard and has one thousand units: Abbottsford Home, Hend and Abbottsford Avenues, has seven hundred units and serves Budds, Midvale Steel Company and Bendix: Bertram Village, at 54th Street and Elmwood Avenue has five hundred units and serves the workers in General Electric and Westinghouse Works in South Philadelphia: Oxford Village at Oxford Avenue and Conley Street has two hundred units.

It might have been boring to listen to a lot of statistics on the number of units and acres covered, but I want to let you gentlemen know the problem that exists in Philadelphia. Now, what has happened in Philadelphia? The people who live in the congested districts in Philadelphia who are now registered under the permanent registration act have no leisure time; they are working either ten or twelve hours a day in the endeavor to produce the war materials which are so essential. Now, they are working, of the registration commission of the city of Philadelphia were allowed to send into these war plants, by and with the consent of the owners of these plants, registrars to register these people, they would have to take very little time from their work, from the very important work that they are engaged in for the purpose of registering. Maybe they could get a few minutes off to go to the place where these registrars sit for the purpose of registering electors. Also if there wasn't time for them to register at their work, coming home to their housing projects in the evening, being very tired from putting in twelve hours work at the war plants, it would not be necessary for them to travel a distance of maybe five or six or ten blocks, or even in some cases a mile from their homes to the registration place; they could simply go into the auditorium for the purpose of registering for the purpose of being allowed to vote in the coming election.

I submit to you if you will go through history you will find that it has always the policy of this Assembly in its wisdom to bring about legislation that would make it easier and less difficult for a person to vote. Voting, Mr. Speaker, is constitutional. However, in order that frauds may not be perpetrated on the electors of this Commonwealth, the General Assembly of this Commonwealth has set up a registration system that if you are not registered you cannot vote. I submit registration is far more important than voting, because you must be registered to vote. If you will look into our past legislation, as I said before, you will find that we have always endeavored to make it easier for a person to vote. We had in this Commonwealth at one time an obnoxious poll tax, and in order that the citizens of this state would have the opportunity of casting their vote without paying for the right to do so, the poll tax was eliminated.

When it looked as if many of our boys and girls would be taken into the armed forces of the United States this Assembly allowed the members in the military service to register and vote by mail, so I submit to you, if you will carefully consider my amendments you will find nothing political about them. All my amendments provide for, gentlemen, is that if a person is working in a war plant and is willing and able to register to vote, he will be given that opportunity in that plant, to register at that time. If he doesn't have that opportunity while at work, he may come to his home in a housing project in Philadelphia and go to the auditorium of that housing project or such place as may be set aside for that purpose and register to vote. It might be said by some of the opponents of my amendments that they have travelling registrars now. I might say to you, that before the last election the Democratic City Committee in Philadelphia, realizing that certain people lived in outlying districts in housing projects in Philadelphia, asked the registration commission of the city of Philadelphia to send registrars into the housing projects. The commission's reply was "we would like to do it but we do not have the authority."

When the Democratic City Committee was turned down because they did not have the authority, they filed a petition with the court for that purpose, and the court turned down that request. If our amendments are adopted and the bill is passed the Registration Commission will have the authority to register electors in the housing projects.

In conclusion I would like to quote from the report of the Registration Commission of the City and County of Philadelphia to Governor Martin, dated December 31, 1942, which on page 11 reads as follows:

To conduct the affairs of this important office so that no eligible elector should ever suffer the injustice of losing his precious right of voting. In an endeavor to achieve this goal serious difficulties have been overcome. Many remain to be overcome. Yet, the outstanding fact is that approximately one million persons in Philadelphia, of their own free will, without compulsion, have registered to be eligible to vote.

This is from the thirty-seventh annual report of the Registration Commission for the city of Philadelphia.

I want to say in view of the last quotation, I want the Members of the House to forget their political affiliations and vote for my amendments which will give every war worker an opportunity to register to vote and will take practically no time away from this vital production.

Mr. SKALE. Mr. Speaker, I had no intention originally to speak on these amendments. They are not my amendments, but after listening to the debate I could not help but become vitally interested in what was said here and could not refrain from taking the floor and helping to point out to the gentlemen on the other side of the House who are not entirely familiar with the provisions of the bill, its purposes and effects.

I heard it said here this afternoon that fault finding has never helped anyone. Gentlemen, I think that our system of government, our democracy is based primarily upon the fact that we have the right of freedom of assembly where we can voice our opinions to make ourselves heard, and anyone who fosters that opinion or idea that criticism of the activities of public life and people in public life it apparently incorrect, because anyone who adheres to preachings of that type, it can only mean that they fear the spotlight of public criticism. It can only mean the breaking down of the right of freedom of speech and freedom of the press, and it would lead to this practical thing if we were to carry such thoughts to their logical conclusion, that even in the House of this assembly those gentlemen that you see down front, the members of the press, would be barred from these halls.

I know that we don't think that fair, we don't even conceive of such thoughts, but I say to you, gentlemen, that anyone who says that finding fault never helps is certainly thinking along those lines.

Let us for a moment see who is behind this type of legislation. Who are these reformers who are pretending to reform the registration law and Philadelphia politics? When this bill was sent back to the committee in the early part of this week, as I understood for a public hearing, not one who favored this bill appeared before the committee. On the contrary there were persons present who were opposed to this bill. In Philadelphia we are administering the registration laws by a five-man Commission. Few of the members, including the secretary to the Commission appeared before this Election Committee of the House and voiced their opposition. In addition the representative of the Committee of Seventy appeared before the Elections Committee and voiced its opposition, but not one who favored it appeared.

Now, who is the Committee of Seventy? We of Philadelphia and some others are a little better acquainted with them, but some of you gentlemen in the more distant parts of the state, who perhaps, are not quite as familiar with the Committee as we, let me say that this is an organization which is organized by people who are politically independent, and if I am not mistaken, I do not think that there is one member of that committee who is registered with the Democratic Party. It is sponsored and financially kept up through voluntary contributions. It never put forth any political talk; it is composed of a group of persons in Philadelphia who are seeking proper and good government in Philadelphia, and it has carried the fight for good government in Philadelphia for several years.

The representative of that committee appeared before the Elections Committee of the House and opposed this bill because it was not good legislation for Philadelphia.

Gentlemen, even the fathers of the administration in Philadelphia never appeared before this Elections Committee to say that this was good legislation for Philadelphia. I recall during the debate on the Brunner-Ward bill one of the Members on this floor referred to the stench of Philadelphia water reaching far and wide. That could be paraphrased by saying that the stench of Philadelphia politics has reached into every corner of the nation.

They came here and imposed upon you gentlemen not from Philadelphia to pass legislation which is so malodorous that it cannot seek the favorable support even of its proponents, who dare not come out in the light and express themselves.

We also heard some remarks about the existence of travelling registrars. Gentlemen, if I am permitted to use the words of one of the Members of this House, "Let's be fair" about this. We know that travelling registrars were appointed to take care of registrations primarily and would sit in a district taking in two or three or perhaps four very populous sections, and they would hardly handle the people who came before them, because they did not sit frequently enough, and as I want to point out, these registrars take care primarily of new registrations. The change of address cards at these times was negligible. Now, the amendments before us for consideration at the present would establish a means for registrars to be stationed upon the request of persons, and with the consent of the employers. It would never be an imposition upon any agency, upon any industry or upon any group of people, because it would be done at their request and with their consent. I would also like to point out to the Members of this House that the Registration Commission when called upon publicly to express its approval or disapproval of this bill said that it did not particularly care for this bill; not in so many words,—but you gentlemen heard the letter read to you earlier. In any event the definite conclusion was that it was not in favor of this bill. I submit to you, gentlemen, that after all, if this bill becomes law it will be up to the Registration Commission to carry out the duties which are given to it by this bill, and if the Commission is not in favor of it, certainly we don't want to impose any duties upon it which it does not want.

The Commission in its report for 1942 pointed with pride to the fact that it was able to take care of the great mass of removal cards filed with it last year. The total was 96,508, of which seventy-five per cent were filed within thirty days prior to the primary deadline, and within sixty days before the general election deadline. The Commission reported that it was well able to have all the removal cards properly filed and the affidavits brought up to date in sufficient time.

Gentlemen, there is the report that the Commission is satisfied with the present existing law and has not asked for any change. Why should we impose onerous duties upon the Commission when it doesn't ask for them?

I would like to say this to you gentlemen, this bill is very, very important. It may not seem so to you at first, it may seem to you to be merely a political expedient, but, gentlemen, I would like to call to your attention and I would like to read to the Members of this House certain provisions of our Constitution, and I respectfully submit, gentlemen, that we should listen carefully. The preamble of the Constitution reads:

We the people of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, grateful to Almighty God for the blessings of civil and religious liberty humbly invoking his guidance do ordain and establish this Constitution.

Then comes the Declaration of Rights:

Article 1. That the general, great and essential principles of liberty and free government may be recognized and unalterably established, we declare that all men are born equally free and independent, and have certain inherent and inalienable rights, among which are those of enjoying and defending life and liberty, of acquiring, possessing and protecting property and reputation, and of pursuing their own happiness.

Section 2. All power is inherent in the people, and all free governments are founded on their authority and instituted for their peace, safety and happiness.

Then, going to Section 5:

Elections shall be free and equal; no power, civil or military, shall at any time interfere to prevent the free exercise of the right of suffrage.

Gentlemen, there is a purpose in my reading those provisions of the Constitution. We are today fighting a battle to preserve inherent rights which are set forth in the Bill of Rights, in the Constitution of Pennsylvania and in the Constitution of the United States, and we do not desire that any one of those rights, small as it may be, be taken from us. Our dear ones are dying for the preservation of those rights, and here is the beginning of the breaking down of that freedom of democracy.

The sponsor of this bill knows that he cannot do by direct legislation what he is attempting to do by the back door. He cannot directly deprive the people of the right to vote, so he does it by making it difficult for people to vote. Let me say this to you, gentlemen, the Registration Commission in Philadelphia opens at 9:30 in the morning and closes at 4:00 in the afternoon. How many people who are engaged in this war effort or in other types of business, helping directly or indirectly in the war effort would be able to go to the Registration Commission during those hours? Men and women are working hard during those hours, when they should be at their work, and the sponsor of this bill is attempting to deprive them of the right to vote by making it difficult for them, in case they move, to be re-registered from their new voting address.

I say to you gentlemen in all fairness, as men who are elected to pass upon good and proper legislation, that we should consider seriously the effect of this bill, that we should support these amendments which will give to people who are living in outlying sections, businessmen and workers who are unable to appear at the office of the Registration Commission in daytime, and who would by this bill be deprived of the right to vote, let us consider it seriously, let us adopt these amendments so that these people shall not be deprived of their vote.

Mr. TAHL. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the two political speeches made by the gentlemen from Philadelphia I want to say they are not kidding the people of Philadelphia. The people of Philadelphia know that they have every opportunity and every means to be registered to vote. But even if these men were not so politically minded I would still say that these amendments are useless and unnecessary and would impede the war effort, and I therefore ask the amendments be voted down.

Mr. CHUDOFF. Mr. Speaker, I did not intend to rise again to speak in favor of these amendments. I thought

I had covered every point in favor of them. However, when the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Tahl, accuses me of making a political speech, I simply want to say that this bill is a vicious bill, it is a sneaker and a perpetrated fraud on the voters of Philadelphia. This bill endeavors, with the hope of the city chairman of the Republican party in the city of Philadelphia to disfranchise fifty thousand voters in the city. I want to say in answer to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Tahl, that the people of Philadelphia will remember and this bill will come back to haunt them badly in the next election.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. Chudoff and Mr. Skale and were as follows:

AMENDMENTS WITHDRAWN

Mr. CHUDOFF. Mr. Speaker, I desire to withdraw my other amendments to the bill.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

Messrs. CULLEN and HERSCH offered the following amendments:

Amend Sec. 1, page 2, line 1, by striking out the words "twenty-one" and inserting in lieu thereof: "twenty-eight".

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 21), page 3, lines 7 to 25, both inclusive, by striking out all the said lines.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. CULLEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Philadelphia Mr. Thompsn.

Mr. THOMPSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise in defense of these amendments offered by my colleagues Mr. Cullen and Mr. Hersch from Philadelphia. I think their amendments are very simple and they should not take very much explanation to explain them to the Members of this House.

These amendments if adopted would only give the privilege to the people of Philadelphia the electorate to use registered mail to send in removal cards whereby they could be qualified to vote in the next election. I certainly do not agree with the person who raised the question as to the expense of spending twenty-one cents to register a letter whereby the individual would send in the removal card, if it is inconvenient for this individual, working in a war plant, it might save the time and the money that might be derived from his day's work which would be lost if these amendments were not adopted. I think these amendments are much needed for this reason, that while the transportation in Philadelphia is very much burdened, and if the time could be saved that these people would have to use to change their registrations, and they could instead send in their removal cards, we would be able to relieve the transportation of much of the burden that they are carrying now. We would also be able to save thousands and thousands of dollars of the war workers, something that they might be able to turn in for war bonds that will help bring about a speedy victory.

I have heard time after time cries to the high heavens wanting to know what we can do to help the men behind the guns, and I think this is one time that we will not have to listen to the newspapers crying out "What would the boys think of us in Tunisia if they could see what we are doing in Harrisburg?" So I urge every Member of this House to support the amendments.

Mr. TAHL. Mr. Speaker, for the same reasons that have been advanced before on the previous amendments which were voted down, I ask the Members to vote down these amendments.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

So the question was determined in the negative and the amendments were not agreed to.

AMENDMENTS WITHDRAWN

Mr. CULLEN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to withdraw my amendments to the other sections of the bill.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

It was agreed to.

The second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh sections were separately read and agreed to.

The eighth section was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

Messrs. MODEL and DILLON offered the following amendment:

Amend Sec. 8, page 13, line 17, by striking out the words "on the fifteenth day after its final enactment" and inserting in lieu thereof: "six months after the cessation of hostilities in the war in which the United States is now engaged."

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

Mr. MODEL. Mr. Speaker, I realize that I am rather at a disadvantage from the point of view of attempting to get attention at this time, inasmuch as we have had so many proposals of amendments to Senate Bill No. 305, Printer's No. 171. I will, therefore, try to be as brief as possible and get down to the point of my amendments.

On these proposed amendments that have come before the House the majority of this House has seen fit in its judgment to vote them down. That judgment in my opinion is poor and will be proven poor when this bill becomes effective, and that brings me to my amendments. Mr. Dillon, my colleague, and I have introduced these amendments to change the bill in Section 8. The bill in that section provides for the effective date of this bill to be fifteen days after its enactment. The amendment that we offer will make the effective date six months after the cessation of the present war.

In my opinion, the bill itself is discriminatory, unfair and may even be termed unAmerican. It is universally known, Mr. Speaker, or perhaps I should say it is widely known, especially in Philadelphia, that there is a shortage of manpower—more especially with reference to the Registration Commission. It has been the policy of this Commission to have approximately forty roving registrars in Philadelphia, and today I understand the commission cannot obtain experienced registrars for that work.

As a matter of fact, those registrars whom they can obtain I am informed cannot type, which is one of the requisites of a good registrar in accordance with the system set up by the Registration Commission in Philadelphia. Today all of us know that in addition to the very fact that there is a war manpower and womanpower shortage, certainly any and all of us know that there is an even greater shortage with reference to typists. The Government agencies, the Government itself and private industry are taking up the typists just as fast as they can get them, and if the Registration Commission should ask for part-time typists needed as traveling registrars, it is practically an impossibility today.

We have a further reason for feeling that the Registration Commission cannot and will not effect prompt action on this bill before us, because we know that they cannot even get typewriters if they get the man and woman power today. Many of the typewriters that the Commission had before have been taken away from them by the Government for use by the Government.

In addition we know that of those hundred thousand people that have been mentioned on this floor who would be disfranchised by this act, many of those people today are working on shifts which would make it impossible for them to come before registrars if they did have them in their neighborhood.

I do not intend to speak at length on these amendments, I just want to bring to the attention of the Members of this House these additional problems that the Registration Commission in Philadelphia would have if and when this bill is enacted. We know that the Commission cannot in any manner carry out the provisions of the bill before us if it is enacted into law fifteen days after its passage. Now, if the Members on the other side and this side too want to be sincere and feel that they must have this particular bill—and I don't question the sincerity of the sponsors of the bill nor the proponents of it—I only question their judgment—I say that if they want to be sincere and feel that they must have a bill of this type then let them put in these amendments which we are offering and the bill can be carried out in all its provisions by the Registration Commission when the effective date would take place under these amendments.

Mr. TAHL. Mr. Speaker, I want to say to the Members that the argument of the gentleman from Philadelphia, that there is a shortage of typists and they won't be available as traveling registrars, if these people were registered in City Hall the same condition would prevail, so therefore that argument on the face of it shows that so far as manpower or womanpower is concerned it would have no effect. The main purpose of this amendment is to kill the bill and for that reason I ask you to vote it down.

Mr. DILLON. Mr. Speaker, I rise at this time in further support of the amendments offered by my colleague, Mr. Modell, with reference to Section 8 of Senate Bill 305. The previous speaker, Mr. Tahl, just stated that it would be difficult for the Registration Commission in the City of Philadelphia to take care of the registration of the various voters who have to call there at the Commission, and also on removal cards. I don't know if any of the Members on the other side of the House, the majority members throughout the state know what kind of a building City Hall Annex is? It is a building of fourteen stores in height, and on the fourteenth floor of this building are the offices of the Registration Commission. I know during various years when the elections would take place the difficult times that the Registration Commission had to take care of new registrations and also change of address cards. A great confusion arose even when they had to take care of only fifteen hundred or two thousand people in a week's time. If we are going to pass this law we are going to have such large crowds in the Registration Commission office, that it will be an impossible task for them to take care of the crowd that is going to arrive there to have removal cards and notices filed so that they will be eligible to vote at the coming election.

In addition to my reason for arguing that these amendments be supported, my colleague, Mr. Modell, mentioned the fact that the people of Philadelphia are working at such odd hours, odd periods, odd shifts that it will be an impossibility for them to call upon any registration place to have their address changed. I have quite a few friends that I know in the city who one week will be working in the day time and the following week working 4:00 to 12:00 and the following week from 12:00 to 8:00 in the morning, and they are working so hard, that when they come home they are tired and they need to rest when they finish their day's work in order that they may be in good shape to go back in the morning. I think it is a hardship on them if the Members of the House pass this bill. Therefore, I am going to ask the Members to support the amendments offered by my colleague and myself.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

So the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

It was agreed to.

The title was read and agreed to.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. O'BRIEN. Mr. Speaker, it is my desire only to speak very briefly and express my position on this bill even though it is on second reading, but at the same time it gives the Members on the other side of the House a little food for thought between now and final passage of this bill, which I understand will be tomorrow.

This is a most discriminating bill. In all parts of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania every effort is being made and expended to make it easier for people to register and also to reclaim their present registration rolls. The Members of the Legislature in the passage of this bill are discriminating against the people of Philadelphia and making it more difficult for them to maintain their present registration lists.

Many of the previous speakers have pointed out that this may be only applied to those people coming to Philadelphia. I disagree; in the normal transition the people in Philadelphia, as in any other municipality, normally want to improve their situation, and in a great many cases the moment that opportunity presents itself they move to nicer locations, nicer neighborhoods in the city.

This particular bill would also prove a hardship to people who are bettering themselves. We in the northeast section of Philadelphia, where most of the transition is taking place, people bettering themselves and going into newer sections, would be most adversely affected by this particular bill. There are many of those people who never had occasion or never desired to invade the central part of Philadelphia, and it really would be a hardship on those people to cause them to go to the Registration Commission offices, which are located in City Hall Annex in the center of the town.

We have heard during this session many, many Members on the other side point out that the majority should rule. We from Philadelphia have thirty-nine Members of the Legislature representing their constituency in Philadelphia. Twenty-four members of those thirty-nine Members of the Legislature, which you will note is a majority, are opposed to having this foisted on the people of Philadelphia. Those twenty-four members, even though they may not be elected on the ticket that you people are friendly with, at the same time represent not only Democrats in those particular districts, but also Republicans who happen to reside in those particular districts. I might mention also home rule, here are twenty-four Members all representing Philadelphia and a majority of the thirty-nine sitting here representing that county, are all crying in opposition to this bill, and yet you people on the other side of the House, who are in no way affected by this bill are simply putting it down the mouths of the people of Philadelphia.

I might say, Mr. Speaker, that you are not only satisfied to pollute our waters, but here in this House you are polluting our registration act, and only Philadelphia's registration act.

On third reading and final passage I hope to bring to the Members on the other side of the House just how many people and how many associations and organizations are in opposition to this bill.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, I suppose you men wonder why I rise at this time on a bill that is purely a Philadelphia measure. I want to say to you in all fairness I possibly broke some of the rules of this House this morning, during the consideration of the amendments that were offered, by doing a little lobbying on the other side of the House to see if I couldn't have some of these amendments put into this bill.

I want to say to you that I have a dear old uncle down in Philadelphia who has been voting the Democratic ticket for fifty years, and I want to appeal to my friend, Mr. O'Dare, back here, and my good friend Mr. Tahl and Mr. Salus to be fair to this old uncle of mine and not do anything to prevent him from voting.

Gentlemen, let's be fair in this thing. I am appealing here for a dear old uncle who has been voting the Democratic ticket for fifty years, and it would be terrible if under this bill this poor old fellow were out in some war industry plant and didn't happen to get registered. So let's be fair in this thing.

I myself was going to offer amendments for this dear old uncle, but I didn't want to take up the time of the House this afternoon. In closing I want to say to my Philadelphia friends, let's be fair and give my dear old uncle a chance.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I am asking the Members of this side to vote for the bill since we know that the bill has no chance for final passage at this session. However, we want the principle and idea of the bill to be affirmed by this session so that at a subsequent session, once a long range program has been studied by a commission, we may have some expression from this Legislature included in the findings of that commission.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Fox,

So the question was determined in the negative and the motion was not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the Majority Floor Leader, Mr. Lichtenwalter.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Lehigh permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I should like to preface the interrogation by saying that I am not a coal miner and I do not know much about coal mines or coal miners or the unions pertaining thereto, but I intend to find out something about it.

I would like to inquire whether or not the mine bosses, shot firers and so forth who would be affected by this bill are members of the United Mine Workers of America? Are they members of the union?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, I don't believe they are; I am not exactly positive.

Mr. COHEN. I should like to ask the gentleman, Mr. Speaker, whether in the interest of getting the precise information the gentleman would like to yield to some of our coal miners who could tell us? It is important for the balance of the interrogation to know that for a fact, either yes or no.

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I will be very happy to yield to the gentleman from Fayette, Mr. Thrasher, who will be able to answer the question.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Fayette, Mr. Thrasher, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. THRASHER. I will, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman whether mine foremen, assistant mine foremen and fire bosses are members of the United Workers of America?

Mr. THRASHER. I don't know of any, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. COHEN. Does the gentleman mean that none of these persons are members of the union?

Mr. THRASHER. I don't know of any that is a member of the union, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. COHEN. Now, may I continue with the interrogation with the gentleman from Lehigh?

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Lehigh permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I will, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. COHEN. May I ask the gentleman, Mr. Speaker, whether the purpose of this bill is to compel a man who is either a mine foreman, assistant mine foreman or shot firer—whatever he is—to compel him to become an official of the Commonwealth?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I think today they are recognized as official representatives of the Commonwealth.

Mr. COHEN. Then, Mr. Speaker, if they are officials of the Commonwealth why must we have a bill to say they are officials?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Well, Mr. Speaker, I think that is a very good reason for the bill, because we have court decisions ruling that they are officials of the Commonwealth, and yet there is no provision made for it in any act. That is probably a good reason for passing the legislation.

Mr. COHEN. May I ask, Mr. Speaker, having been officials of the Commonwealth either now or under this bill, would they receive any compensation from the Commonwealth, would they be on the payroll?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Does the gentleman mean—

Mr. COHEN. Be on the payroll?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I do not—

Mr. COHEN. Would the gentleman say they are or they are not?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. They are not to the best of my knowledge, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. COHEN. May I ask the gentleman whether or not if a mine foreman presently or shot firer or assistant mine foreman does not want to be an official of the Commonwealth does he have to be one?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I believe that he must, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. COHEN. Whether he wants to or not?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. That is right, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, may I ask the gentleman whether that does not smack at least of compelling a man to do what he doesn't care to do?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. As I repeated before, Mr. Speaker, I believe that there are decisions of the courts of the Commonwealth that definitely put these men in that category, that they are representatives of the Commonwealth.

Mr. COHEN. May I ask the gentleman then if under the present law there are charges made against a mine foreman, assistant mine foreman or shot firer and they are proven to be uncertificated, whether the Secretary of Mines may deprive him of his job and livelihood?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. If he is uncertificated, did the gentleman say?

Mr. COHEN. I am referring to page 6 of the bill, Mr. Speaker, beginning about line 11:

All the provisions of Section 2 to 6 inclusive hereof applicable to proceedings involving a certificated official shall also be applicable to proceedings involving an uncertificated official provided that in the case of an uncertificated official the Secretary of Mines upon finding that the charges have been sustained shall make an order disqualifying said official from holding office for a period of not more than one year.

Would that mean then that he would have to give up the job in the mine?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. He would certainly have to give up his job, Mr. Speaker, I would say under the provisions of this act as a mine foreman or fire boss or whatever position he held.

Mr. COHEN. Will the gentleman inform me if he knows what duties there are of the mine foreman that make it so important as to bring down upon him such a penalty, that if he does not perform duties as required by the act, he shall lose his means of livelihood?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, I believe he is responsible for the safety of the men who work with him, and certainly if he were found guilty of any charges that might be brought against him because of lack of care or negligence on his part, or lack of doing something that might endanger the lives of the men that he has working with him, certainly if these charges are maintained, then he should be punished in some way.

Mr. COHEN. Will the gentleman then tell me that if a mine foreman, an employee of a mine, if he is negligent and does not perform his duties properly, can we agree that it is the employer who should have the right to put him off the job, the man who pays his salary?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. No, I can not.

Mr. COHEN. In other words the official or the operator who pays his salary is limited to paying his salary, but has no power to fire that man from the job, that that must be done by the Secretary of Mines?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. That is right, because the certificate is issued by the Secretary of Mines after certain experience and examination, and certainly the power to revoke or suspend such certificate should be the same power that grants the certificate.

Mr. COHEN. I wish to thank the gentleman very much.

Mr. LEONARD. Mr. Speaker, I oppose the passage of Senate Bill No. 472 on general principles. If I am correctly informed, and I don't for a moment question the informant, because he is a practical man, this bill will deny rights to the supervisors in the coal mines. Why should he be any different from anybody else who is employed in and around the coal mine? Is it because the coal operators want this law to prevent these supervisors who are not now members of the United Mine Workers from organizing? Apparently that is the way it looks. Who is more concerned about the safety in and around the coal mines than the miner himself? I imagine he is the one who is most concerned as to his safety when he is in the mines.

Let us say that a supervisor has been disposed of through the instrumentality of this law, and the miners take it upon themselves that they consider that he has been handed an unfair deal, and stop work; what position does that put the coal operator in, and what position does it put the law in? Who is going to be prosecuted for the stoppage of the operation of this mine?

I said that I opposed this bill on general principles. I am opposed to any legislation that denies any American, regardless of his occupation, his constitutional rights, the right to protect himself in his employment, the same right that everybody else has and especially those in a financial position to do so. This man is an important man in and around the coal mine, and he should not be denied the right to exercise his constitutional privileges, and upon those points, Members of the House, please consider him as an American, just the same as you and I, and entitled to the same rights that you and I have, and vote "no" on this bill.

Mr. PETROSKY. Mr. Speaker, I am not going to prolong the debate on this measure that is before us too long. I simply want to point out to the membership of the House a few items that are certainly germane to the problem that is before us today, and then I am going to let the measure rest. I am going to ask the membership of both sides of this House to express their convictions upon this measure as they see fit.

In answer to the gentleman from Lehigh, Mr. Lichtenwaller, may I personally point out the fact that we here in this House know that at one time the coal and iron police were officers of the Commonwealth, and we know they were paid by the operators, so certainly we don't want to bring back under another heading the problem that confronted the legislative bodies at that time and the problem that confronted the people of the Commonwealth in the practices that were used by the coal and iron police. I feel that that point alone is sufficient to vote down this measure, without regard as to what side of the House I sit on.

In speaking on the legality of this bill may I call attention to the act of 1891, imposing liability upon the owner for the neglect of the mine boss. This measure would take away from the operator entire jurisdiction over the mine boss, and certainly under these decisions that were rendered by the courts of our Commonwealth we are going to make invalid the claim which an injured worker would receive, inasmuch as the neglect of a mine boss under the cases tried was ruled that the operator was not liable. Then who does our injured worker turn to for the compensation that is due him at that time? Certainly he is not going to be able to procure the compensation from the mine boss, and hence under the rulings of the court he will not receive it from the insurance carrier of that operator. The first case tried under the act was that of Durkin vs. The Kingston Coal Company, reported in 171, Pa. 193. The Supreme Court held that the provision of the Act of 1891 imposing liability upon the owner for neglect of the mine foreman was unconstitutional for the reason that the owner was not free to select such servants as he saw fit. In this measure, we provide additional duties and additional obligations for those men who will be made officers of the Commonwealth under the direction of the Secretary of Mines and Mining. Since the owner was not free to select such servants as he saw fit, but was compelled to take a certified man whom the court declared in this case was an agent of the State—and, that is what is suggested in this proposal—his duties were to see that the provisions of the Act of 1891, insofar as they related to him, were properly carried into effect.

May I go further and say that in 1915 the Anthracite Act was amended in such a way as to allow the mine owner free selection of his mine foreman in order to overcome the barriers against recovery mentioned in the Supreme Court decision in the case of Durkin vs. The Kingston Coal Company, 171 Pa. 193. I bring this matter of legality to the attention of the Members of the House because I feel that the membership of the House does not want to place an injured workman into such a position that he will be without that social fund which in the year 1915 was created by this legislative body for the convenience of that injured workman at the time of his injury.

I appeal to you in a nonpartisan manner; I appeal to you in all sincerity for those who are laboring today in the coal mines of the Commonwealth, vote down this measure in the interest of good fellowship to the coal miner of Pennsylvania.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Lehigh, Mr. Lichtenwaller.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Lehigh permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, did I understand the gentleman to say that the reason why he was for this bill, in making these mine inspectors, fire bosses and so forth state officials was due to the safety of the men in the mines? Was that the gentleman's reason?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. No, I did not say that at all, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, I ask the gentleman why he is now asking that these men become state officials?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Well, they are state officials now, Mr. Speaker; they are recognized as such.

Mr. LOVETT. Then why do we need the bill?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Because it will give further cause for dismissal or suspension of a certificate.

Mr. LOVETT. Would the gentleman now be prohibited from joining unions?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I answered that interrogation, Mr. Speaker, I believe, when this bill was on second reading, that there is nothing in the bill that would prohibit them from joining the unions.

Mr. LOVETT. Did I understand the gentleman to say during his interrogation by Mr. Cohen that due to the safety of the miners he thought they should be state officials?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. No, I don't recall that I answered in that manner, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LOVETT. Did the gentleman in any way refer to the safety, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I certainly did, Mr. Speaker, under interrogation as to the certificates; I said that I felt that there should be further cause for dismissal if these men were found negligent in their duties. As I understand, one of their chief duties is the safety of the men working under them, and if negligence is found on their part for any reason that might impair the safety and health of these men, that would be further reason for their dismissal, as far as the certificate is concerned.

Mr. LOVETT. May I ask the gentleman if he would consider that men driving school buses should come under the same category?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I believe they do come under the same category. The Commonwealth issues a certificate in the form of a license, and if the driver of a school bus is negligent in his duties, and injures property or causes loss of life, the Commonwealth has the right of suspension or removal.

Mr. LOVETT. Would the gentleman say that those men are state officials?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. In a sense, Mr. Speaker. They are employes, they are public employes paid out of the taxpayer's money. I would say in a sense they are.

Mr. LOVETT. May I ask the gentleman to be more definite in saying that these men are state officials?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, I think I have mentioned that so often that I do not like to take the time of the House, they certainly are officials and representatives of the Commonwealth.

Mr. LOVETT. Does the gentleman think we need any legislation to assure us of that fact?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I do, Mr. Speaker, and we have the bill before us that will do just that.

Mr. LOVETT. For the bus drivers of school buses?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, I do not think that interrogation is germane to the question at hand.

Mr. LOVETT. Would the gentleman kindly show me where school bus drivers would come under the act?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I don't get the gentleman's interrogation.

Mr. LOVETT. May I make it more clear, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Let us take the mine men and forget the school buses, leave them out.

Mr. LOVETT. Well, I think it is practically the same thing. I do not know why we need an act here for mine inspectors, fire bosses and so forth and not need the same act for the men driving school buses.

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. The trouble over there is that they should be fair.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, I feel that "let's be fair" stands. If these men now are state officials then why do we need the act? If these men are not state officials then why should we pass an act to say to those men "You now have to give up the job you hold and become a state official." It just doesn't make good sense, and I think you men over on the other side should consider that point and vote down this bill.

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask the Majority Floor Leader for just one more question.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Lehigh permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, these mine foremen and so forth, under this bill become state employes, and as such, I understand the gentleman said would not be prevented from joining unions. May I ask then, if the union of which they are a member at any time in the future, near or distant, decides to call a strike, would that not be construed as a strike against the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, which is prohibited by law?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, I do not believe provisions of this act as I have said before, will prevent them from joining a union.

Mr. COHEN. Or striking, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Well, we will decide that when we come to it.

Mr. COHEN. Did I hear the gentleman rightly, Mr. Speaker, when he said he didn't believe they were officials of the government?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I said they were officials of the government, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. COHEN. I thank the gentleman, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LANE. Mr. Speaker, one point I would like to clear up. Fire bosses and mine foremen are now members of organized labor. They have an organization of their own, affiliated with the United Mine Workers of America, but one of the objectionable features that has been forgotten by most of the Members in the discussion of this bill is covered in section one of the bill. I will read it. It says:

Every mine foreman, assistant mine foreman or fire boss under the provisions of the Bituminous Mining Laws or the Anthracite Mining Laws shall represent the Commonwealth in the coal mine or colliery in which he is employed and be deemed to be an officer of the Commonwealth in enforcing the provisions of said Mining Laws and performing his duties thereunder. He shall perform said duties during such times as the mine or colliery in which he is employed is in operation and at such other times as in the judgment of the operator or the Secretary of Mines shall be necessary or desirable to make the mine or colliery safe for operations or to protect the health and safety of the employees of the operator or the safety of the mine or colliery properties.

It is my thought, Mr. Speaker, that this bill makes mine foremen and fire bosses nothing more than yellow dogs, subject to the orders of the boss, and if the Secretary of Mines were so minded he could discriminate against those men for belonging to organized labor. Therefore, I ask the membership to vote "no" on this bill.

Mr. THRASHER. Mr. Speaker, this is a bituminous bill, and I, being a bituminous mine worker, naturally am interested in it. I am interested in the bill only from the safety features included in the bill. It has nothing to do with any of the men in the mines except the mine foremen, assistant mine foremen and fire bosses. They are in authority as I have named them in the mines. I know there are a lot of Members in the House here today that do not understand this bill because they do not understand coal mining.

I heard the Minority Floor Leader acknowledge that he knew nothing about coal mines, and of course, that is to be excusable throughout the whole House. You take the mining law as it exists today, the mine foreman, the assistant mine foreman and the fire boss cannot have their certificates removed except for one reason, and that is drunkenness. The fire boss's duty is to examine the mines. He enters the mine three hours prior to the time the men enter the mine. He sees that the ventilating apparatus is working, that the ventilation is traveling in its proper course, he examines the traveling ways and haulage ways in each and every working place and the abandoned places in proximity to those working surfaces, and he makes a report of the condition that he found the mine in. That is countersigned by the mine foreman. The duties of the mine foreman and the assistant mine foreman are similar in relation to safety. They have in addition to their safety duties the management and operation of the mines. I might say to you here this afternoon in my experience we also had cost sheets to meet. I might say also that some mine foremen and the assistant mine foremen devoted more time to the cost sheet than they did to the safety of the miners.

This bill, if it is enacted into law, will permit the Secretary of Mines to withdraw the certificate of any official violating any of the laws for a certain period of time, and then he can go to court and receive the certificate back again, if he proves himself not guilty. I believe in locking the stable before the horse is stolen. There has been many a miner who has gone to work in the morning and has lost his life; he has left his widow and children. I am interested in seeing those miners go to work and I am interested in seeing the mines put in such a condition that the miner can with safety come back home. If this bill is enacted into law it is going to put the bituminous coal mines into that condition.

In meeting that cost sheet there are many times that the mine foreman or assistant mine foreman has taken a fifty fifty chance, sometimes has gone as far as seventy-five percent in keeping that mine in a safe condition, because he wanted to keep down his cost. Throughout the bituminous region they usually impose that duty on the mine foreman or assistant mine foreman, and the reason they do that is if he keeps the cost sheet low he will make a wonderful superintendent. I want you to believe me here this afternoon when I tell you that oftentimes the cost sheet has been kept low at the cost of life and limb of the coal miners, and I stand here this afternoon in defense of the coal miner.

This is my first session here but I have seen a lot, I have learned a lot. I think I have seen it all now when the United Mine Workers get up and want to defend the mine foremen, assistant mine foremen and fire bosses, whom we all held under suspicion until this afternoon.

Mr. PETROSKY. Mr. Speaker, I would like, if the gentlemen will be fair to answer the remarks of the gentleman from Fayette, Mr. Thrasher.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman has been recognized.

Mr. PETROSKY. Mr. Speaker, I feel that I would be lax in pursuing my legislative duties if I were not to arise at this time and answer several of the statements of the gentleman from Fayette. Inasmuch as I respect the gentleman's position on items concerning coal fields to a certain degree and within a certain scope, I must take this opportunity to say to the Members of the House, unless they misconstrued the statements that were made on the floor of this House by the gentleman, that this measure is one that has been asked for by the rank and file of the miners.

Certainly I must label that approach as being entirely false. I might also say to the Members of the House that today we have in the code provisions which enable any person connected with mining operation or working in the mines to get a citation at the hearing upon any mine foreman, assistant mine foreman and fire boss through the procedure of the common pleas court for neglect of duty, for drunkenness, for failing to report dangerous conditions, for misdemeanor, for infraction of bituminous or anthracite mining codes, if you please.

May I also state for the benefit of the gentleman from Fayette and the Members of the House, each and every person entering the mine, he need not be a mine foreman, shot firer, assistant mine foreman or fire boss, but each and every person, miner, timberman, motorman, entering the mine is liable to the degree that a hearing can be requested and the person can be charged for not reporting dangerous conditions as they see them exist. This liability does not merely fall upon one person. It is certainly not the intent of the code that the liability is not accepted there, and certainly we see that the provisions of the bituminous mining code and the regulations under which they operate are sufficient to take care of these safety conditions. This act is no way places a more effective control over the safety of the miners in the diggings. This act, as stated by the gentleman from Fayette, Mr. Thrasher, affects only the bituminous field. I certainly don't want my intelligence questioned upon a matter of this sort if I did not answer that statement by the gentleman. Certainly no man can show me where this measure is only confined to bituminous mines. It is also effective in the anthracite field as well as the bituminous fields of the Commonwealth.

Again I might say to the Members of the House this has far-reaching effects. This measure here would actually tend to liquidate the union organizations which are today formulated as mine foremen, assistant mine foremen and fire boss organizations, affiliated with the United Mine Workers of America. How? Just in this manner. Once the men become officers of the Commonwealth and are subject to the mercy of the Secretary of Mines and Mining I say that it would be very easy for that person to discriminate against the status of the certificate which either the mine foreman, the assistant mine foreman or the fire boss holds, and with all respect what would ultimately be the outcome? There would be two courses of action for this person and two only. One would be to quit or to renege on his union membership and continue in his capacity as mine foreman or in whatever category he belonged. The other would be of course to repudiate that sort of discrimination and quit his certification as mine foreman, assistant mine foreman or fire boss and then go out and find some other type of work.

I would ask to the gentleman from Fayette whether he is the sponsor of this measure or was ever a miner, isn't this measure sponsored in the interests of the coal operators of the Commonwealth?

Let us not misconstrue the effect of this measure that is before us. Its effects are far-reaching as I have shown the Members of the House. As regards the safety of the miners in the mines of the Commonwealth I can assure the membership of this House if this matter is let alone and is worked out in a proper form, which has materialized in the past three or four months, certainly those mine foremen cannot be discriminated against by the Secretary of Mines and Mining or the operators in belonging to an organization of their own choosing. We do not want to legislate anybody into an organization which they possibly will not honor but let them belong to an organization of their own choosing. Then and then only will they be able to respect and uphold firmly all of the laws of this Commonwealth concerning the safety of those who work in the coal mines of our Commonwealth.

I now submit this to you; you know and I know well that those are the people who need our legislative attention today. Give them your consideration, vote your convictions, gentlemen, and vote down this measure which would be so detrimental to our people in the coal mines of the Commonwealth.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken.

HOUSE RESOLUTION No. 69

Mr. COULSON. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up House Resolution No. 69, Printer's No. 743.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, May 3, 1943.

The people of Pennsylvania, by a majority vote of the electorate, have approved the purchase by the Commonwealth of the few remaining, privately-owned intrastate toll bridges in the state and have authorized the issuance of ten million dollars of bonds for that purpose;

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth, in accordance with that mandate of the electorate, has enacted legislation establishing the procedure by which the necessary bonds can be issued and the bridges can be purchased;

Both the mandate of the people and the intent of the General Assembly have been nullified by failure to complete the process of acquisition of these toll bridges by the Commonwealth;

The continued operation of these toll bridges by private owners prevents Pennsylvania from having a completely free system of highways and bridges, and compels millions of highway users to pay more than a million dollars a year in toll-taxes with no prospect of the bridges ever being freed; therefore, be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, hereby requests and urges the proper executive officers of the Commonwealth to take immediate and appropriate action by which all privately-owned, intrastate toll bridges in Pennsylvania can be purchased with the proceeds of the authorized bond issue without delay, to the end that they shall become free bridges just as soon as the revenues from tolls have been sufficient to retire the bonds; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this Resolution be sent to the Governor, the Secretary of Highways, the Auditor General and the State Treasurer.

On the question,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

It was adopted.

HOUSE RESOLUTION No. 49

Mr. COOPER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up House Resolution No. 49, Printer's No. 760.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 30, 1943.

Whereas, Since the beginning of our Commonwealth, Pennsylvania has kept, preserved and protected the Sabbath as a day of rest and worship, and its General Assembly enacted laws for the same nearly 150 years ago; and

Whereas, It is the earnest and fervent desire of this House to thank our Maker for the spiritual and temporal blessings which have for so many years been bestowed upon our Commonwealth and our Nation; and

Whereas, It is our hope and prayer during this great crisis to invoke divine favor upon all our people and forces at home and abroad so that we may make those costly sacrifices necessary to win this war and secure a righteous peace; therefore be it

RESOLUTION INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

RESOLUTION No. 72.

In the House of Representatives, May 7, 1943.

Whereas, Numerous settlements have been and are being made by the Secretary of Banking as receiver of closed banks throughout the State, with debtors of such banks, whereby such debtors receive full discharge from their obligations in return for comparatively small percentages of the face amounts of their indebtedness; and

Whereas, in two specific cases involving the Pennsylvania Trust Company of Pittsburgh and the Washington Trust Company of Washington, Pennsylvania, certain individuals in high political circles arranged settlement of their indebtedness; and

Whereas, these settlements were not in proportion to their indebtedness and are the cause of public scandal and suspicion particularly on the part of depositors and stockholders whose monies were dissipated; and

Whereas, these depositors and stockholders complain of the grave injustices in giving financial preferences to men in high public places who are enjoying high income from public taxes; and

Whereas, these same depositors, denied the right to reclaim their life savings, cannot understand why a fair government permits such a condition to exist; and

Whereas, it is commonly believed that political influence has been exerted and in one specific case, one individual, active in one of these advantageous settlements to a debtor, has received at the hands of this debtor a high appointment to a judicial office; and

Whereas, this appointment has aroused suspicion and mistrust on the part of the depositors and stockholders who have seen their savings used promiscuously; and

Whereas, little is known of the advantageousness of these settlements, which are not submitted to the test of public opinion; therefore be it

Resolved, that the Auditor General is hereby requested to make a detailed audit and examination of all such settlements and make report thereof to the Senate and to the House of Representatives detailing all settlements made with all debtors of closed banks under the jurisdiction of the Secretary of Banking, during the period of the last four years, showing the original amount of the debt and the balance due thereon at the time of the settlement, the amount of his annual income, the amount for which the debt was settled and a statement as to whether or not the debtor was employed at a salary and enjoyed an income at the time of the settlement; and whether the depositors and stockholders of these banks received their fair and equitable share of the settlement; and that copies of such report be delivered to representatives of the public press, and be it further

Resolved, that a certified copy of this resolution be transmitted by the Chief Clerk of the House to the Secretary of Banking of the Commonwealth and to the Auditor General of the Commonwealth.

Referred to the Committee on Banking.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted:

In the House of Representatives, May 7, 1943.

A very successful and colorful career terminated early Sunday morning June fourteenth for one of Fulton County's highly esteemed citizens and respected resident of McConnellsburg in the passing of Honorable George B. Mellott, three times Democratic Representative in the General Assembly from Fulton County, and a hotel owner and proprietor there for the past twenty-five years. Death came suddenly of a heart attack.

The deceased was born in Licking Creek township, Fulton County, on October 5, 1864. He received his early education in the public schools of Licking Creek township. His early life was spent on his father's farm and in assisting his father in his blacksmith and cabinet shop.

In 1902 he was elected County Treasurer and in 1912 was elected a Member of this House and reelected in 1914. Twenty years passed when he was again elected to the Legislative body and served a term from 1937 to 1938. For twenty-one years he was employed as an appraiser of the Federal Land Bank of Baltimore, Maryland. He was a director of the Fulton County National Bank for the past thirty years.

For many years Mr. Mellott was active in public affairs. He was a life-long Democrat. His generosity in public relations made him an outstanding figure in his community.

He is survived by one son and five daughters and two brothers; therefor be it

Resolved, by the House of Representatives of the General Assembly, that in the death of our former member, the community in which he was born and died, has lost an outstanding citizen and that this House extends to his surviving children its most sincere sympathy; and be it further

Will the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate?

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I certainly would not like to be on the other side of the House tonight, to have to vote on these amendments, because it seems to me the majority finds itself in a rather peculiar position. The other day when we considered a resolution for a constitutional amendment for a bond issue of some $60,000,000 the Majority Floor Leader stated that the proposed bond issue was to retire the bonds of the General State Authority, and upon further questioning stated that the purpose and intent of the administration was to close the affairs of the General State Authority, wind up its affairs and put it out of business.

Now the majority supported that view, and today the majority is put in a position where it must reverse that viewpoint, because by the amendments they are now going to vote for they provide that the Department of Property and Supplies shall have authority, with the approval of the Governor, to enter into an agreement with the General State Authority whereby the General State Authority will construct buildings and other facilities for the use of the Commonwealth, so instead of the General State Authority being put on the downward path and going out of business it is given new life, and the General State Authority hereafter will still function. So it leads me to believe that the other night I was right, when I charged that the only purpose for the constitutional amendment to borrow $60,000,000 to retire the bonds for the Authority was to give an excuse for giving fees to bankers and some corporations for the floating of the new bonds. After all, these amendments and their support by the other side proves the case that the purpose of this legislative manipulation is to pay off some bankers by enabling them to secure fees to issue more securities at possibly higher rates of interest, that the purpose is to take care of those whom the administration seeks to take care of and whom the administration seeks to take care of and whom the administration has been so carefully nursing along for these past years.

I don't know that my position would be too sound if I were to oppose amendments for the construction of necessary buildings for the Commonwealth through the General State Authority but on the assumption that I am protesting against any legislative manipulation of the finances of the Commonwealth, on the theory that I am protesting against the use of refinancing of bonds for profit of special interests, I shall ask the minority to vote against concurring in these amendments.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments made by the Senate?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

ADDITIONAL SPONSORS TO RESOLUTION

Mr. BAKER asked and obtained unanimous consent to have three sponsors present a resolution.

MOTHER'S DAY

Messrs. BAKER, SARRAF and COOPER offered the following resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and unanimously adopted by a rising vote:

In the House of Representatives, May 7, 1943.

No other day set apart for the observance and commemoration of any special event is more worthy of that distinction or more deserving of such observance than the one that is now so close upon us.

On Sunday, May 9th, the Nation will observe Mother's Day.

At no other time since this day was set apart to be devoted to the remembrance of mothers and dedicated to them or since the birth of the Nation, have the mothers of America been more deeply loved and reversed and at no time have they needed and deserved the honor and homage of the Nation more than at this moment.

We are at war with a ruthless gang of world bandits who respect no natural or international rules and the mothers of the Nation with heavy hearts and tear dimmed eyes have watched their sons go forth to war and for the first time their daughters too are entering into this struggle.

The soul depressing effect of war upon mothers has been doubled and their grief and horror and distress has become twofold when they sit and dream not only of sons but of daughters too exposed to the danger and peril of armed conflict.

The deathless love that ever exists in a mother's heart for her child is the deepest, strongest most enduring tie that exists in all the world. The word "Mother" is the name for God in the hearts and minds of children and the soldier on the battlefield, the sailor on the seas and the nurse beside the wounded and dying have her first in their hearts when the skies darken and death stalks on; therefore be it

Resolved, By the House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, that today we can do more worthy things than to pause in our work to pay tribute to those mothers who have wept for us, prayed for us, slaved for us and fought for us, to those who are responsible for our being here and whose deep love guided us securely through the years and in the ways that brought us here to serve our fellow men; and be it further

Resolved, That in these days when worry has supplanted happiness and tears have drowned out smiles for those to whom we now pay the deepest reverence we recall again that beautiful tribute to their bravery by Joaquin Miller:

The bravest battle that ever was fought—
Shall I tell you where and when?
On the maps of the world you will find it not
It was fought by the mothers of men.

JEWS IN OCCUPIED EUROPE

Messrs. IRVIN and LEONARD offered the following resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and unanimously adopted:

Whereas, the persecution and attempted extermination by Nazi Germany of the Jews in Occupied Europe have outraged the conscience of the civilized world and emphasized the tragedy of the Jewish problem in Europe, and

Whereas, at the conclusion of the war great numbers of Jews in Europe will find themselves homeless, despoiled and desperately in need of a refuge where they may reconstruct their shattered lives, and

Whereas, pursuant to the treaties of peace terminating the first world war, a Mandate was issued approved by fifty-two nations including the United States, to facilitate the establishment of a Jewish National Home in Palestine; and

Whereas, this policy was concurred in by a Joint Resolution adopted unanimously by both Houses of the Congress of the United States on June 30, 1922 and approved by the President on September 21, 1922; therefore, be it

Resolved (if the Senate concurs) that we of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania express our most profound sympathy toward the victims of Nazi religious persecution and racial hatred; and

Be It Further Resolved that we urge the fullest co-operation of the United States in punishing those responsible for this horrible crime against humanity, and in alleviating suffering through an international rescue agency; and

Be It Further Resolved that we favor the continued development of the Jewish National Home in Palestine for the absorption of as many Jews as may be required by the urgent needs of the Jewish people and the full development there of a Jewish Homeland in the democratic world order in accordance with the principles for which the United Nations are now fighting; and

Be It Further Resolved that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the President and to the Secretary of State of the United States, the President of the United States Senate and to the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

The SPEAKER. The Chair requests the gentleman from Chester, Mr. Leisey, to preside.

MR. LEISEY IN THE CHAIR

THE SPEAKER (Ira T. Fiss) IN THE CHAIR

The SPEAKER. The Chair thanks the gentleman from Indiana, Mr. Hewitt, for presiding.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. HEWITT. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. HEWITT. Mr. Speaker and Members of the House, during the 1939 session of the National League Baseball, President Frick of the National League had the members of all teams hold quizzes on the rules of baseball, men who had begun in the minor leagues and on up to the championship teams. A careful compilation of those quizzes resulted in the information that only fifteen per cent of the National League players knew all the rules of baseball.

The rules of this House are similar. Many of the Members know nothing about the rules, and a few, I believe, would know them perfectly, but the average Member wouldn't know very many of them.

When you people came to your desks yesterday morning you found on your desks a letter from which I quote the following:

Subscription blank for sample copy of this book will be passed among the members at the closing of the week's session.

I just want to quote a small part of the letter. It says:

A subscription blank for a sample copy of this book will be passed among the members before the close of this week's session.

I wish to call the attention of the House to Rule 95, which says:

No officer or employe of the House shall solicit subscriptions for any purpose, from any member, other officer or employe of the House.

Now, I realize as I said before that some men know the rules and others do not. I am not sure whether the gentleman to whom I refer knows this rule and thought the rest of us didn't know it either or whether he is ignorant of the rule.

However, in order to clarify the matter I would like to make a motion that Rule 95 be suspended for this evening's session by allowing the ushers to pass up the aisles and offer subscriptions to "Poems of Pennsylvania", written and published by Mad Anthony Wayne from Dixmont.

Mr. COHEN. I can understand very well the solicitude of the gentleman who just spoke for the observance of the Rules of the House, but after all, Mr. Speaker, business is business, and after all you remember not so long ago the same gentleman was under indictment and I was for a little while his lawyer. You cannot suspend the Rule and put me out of office as his attorney.

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, I plead guilty to the charge and I would like to have my good legal friend, Mr. Brown, of Allegheny, defend me.

Mr. Speaker, I had no intention of inflicting any poetry upon anybody in this session, but three or four days ago I sat down and wrote, purely for my own amusement a poem. I had no intention of inflicting it upon the Members here, but inasmuch as I have been charged with not observing the Rules of this House, I am going to read what I wrote for my own amusement.

On a Question of Personal Privilege

Mr. Speaker—

I'm a seeker after knowledge. "Why
Does the Chair answer always 'Aye',
And smile as though it were a pleasure
To support each Governor's measure;
Also tell me why F. Lichtenwalter
Is tied up by the very same halter?"

(You'll have to ask the Governor?)

Mr. Speaker—

I'm still a seeker after useful knowledge
In this grand old legislative colledge;
"Why do members make more needless noise
Than a barrel full of boisterous boys;
Why do you have to bang and bang the gavel
To quiet some obstreperous, senseless devil?"

(That's what I'd like to know.)

Mr. Speaker—

I'm not squeaker, but it seems rather queer,
Some of the members are seldom here;
And here's a question I think you can't answer,
Or if you can, you're a smart man, Sir;
"How is it members can draw all their pay
When every week they are stealing away?"

(They couldn't do it anywhere else.)

Mr. Speaker—

I'm getting weaker; and of course I know
You are very glad that this is so.
But if you'll wait a minute or two.
Mr. Speaker, I will soon be through:
"Tell me, will you, why an honest Bill Moves so slowly upon Capitol Hill?"

(Truth crushed to Earth will rise again.)

Mr. Speaker—

O Mr. Speaker, why don't these reporters
Point out to Pennsylvania voters,
How members waste much precious time
By reading dull speeches and duller rhyme;
Why don't the editors start with a riot
Of editorials, to keep us quiet?

(Reporters and Editors, take notice.)

Mr. Speaker—

O Mr. Speaker. On a Point of Information:

"When will House bills go on a ration;
When will loose words and long debate
Be given a ration—Will you please state;
When will this Session at last have an end,
Tell me, Mr. Speaker, I'm still your friend?"
(That's what I'd like to know.)

Mr. Speaker—

O Mr. Speaker. Here's a Point of Order,
That on the ridiculous seems to border;
"Can a member of the Legislature
Change here in Harrisburg his Nature?
Is an Assemblyman's election
On the electorate a reflection?"

(The Point of Order is well taken.)

Mr. Speaker—

I'm really weaker. One more interrogation
About affairs of State and Nation;
"Why do the Democrats always oppose
Bills that have the sweet scent of a Rose;
And why do Republicans tighten their belt
When someone mentions F. Roosevelt?"

(You'll have to ask Rose and Roosevelt.)

Mr. Speaker—

O Mr. Speaker. A parliamentary inquiry:
"Why does Cohen get mad and fiery;
And why does Mr. Lovett talk so long
When he thinks a Republican bill is wrong;
And why does the Gentleman over in Wayne
Read these verses; now, let him explain?"

(Ask Mr. Levy.)

QUESTION OF INQUIRY

Mr. TATE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of inquiry.
The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his question of inquiry.

Mr. TATE. Is there a motion before the House to suspend Rule No. 95, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The only thing in motion is the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Tate.

Mr. TATE. I was going to suggest a roll call for verification when the motion was made, Mr. Speaker.

BILL ON SECOND READING

The SPEAKER. If there is no objection the Chair will return to the second reading calendar. The Chair hears none.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 433, entitled:

An Act relating to appointments reclassifications and promotions under the civil service systems of all political subdivisions of this Commonwealth that shall hereafter be made until a period after the cessation of hostilities making such appointments reclassifications and promotions of war duration providing for the establishment of new employment and promotion lists and suspending inconsistent laws

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

BILL DROPPED FROM CALENDAR

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be dropped from the calendar.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The Chair requests the gentleman from Schuylkill, Mr. Watkins, to preside.

MR. WATKINS IN THE CHAIR

Section 2 The provision of this act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Lehigh, Mr. Lichtenwalter.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Lehigh permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman tell me the purpose of the amendments inserted in the bill yesterday?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, the purpose of the amendments, which were inserted by the gentleman from Butler, Mr. McClester, was relative to the agreement between the General State Authority and the Federal Government in taking over the Butler Sanatorium. This act would require to be included in that price the sum of thirty-two thousand dollars which the County of Butler paid for acquiring of the site upon which the Butler Sanatorium was built.

Mr. COHEN. So then, Mr. Speaker, as a fact the Butler Sanatorium for tubercular patients is now out of the hands of the state?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. That is correct, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. COHEN. Will the gentleman tell me, Mr. Speaker, what provision or what plan if any the state has for the hospitalization of tuberculars in Pennsylvania?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I might mention, Mr. Speaker, that the Butler Sanatorium was not found necessary. I believe the gentleman will admit that the Department of Health of the Commonwealth knows its business and that there is no necessity for this sanatorium in the Commonwealth. Therefore, it was found that greater use of the sanatorium could be had by leasing it to the Federal government for hospital purposes.

Mr. COHEN. May I ask why the wording is used "any hospital or sanatorium erected by it," and so forth is used? Is it the idea to get rid of other state-owned hospitals?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. There might be that situation possibly. I know it is in the heart and mind of the present Governor of Pennsylvania that after this war has gone to what we hope will be a successful conclusion, there will be a great need not only in Pennsylvania but throughout the nation for hospitals which will be immediately needed for hospital purposes. This amendment would only allow such sales during such time as there was found in Pennsylvania not the need for the buildings erected by the General State Authority, that they could be leased to the Federal government or at such time sold back to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and used for such purposes.

Mr. COHEN. Is the gentleman familiar with the fact that there is no other tubercular sanatorium west of the Allegheny Mountains in Pennsylvania?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I am, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. COHEN. Is the gentleman also familiar with the fact that many doctors and health authorities in Pennsylvania have recently stated that tuberculosis is on the rise?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I realize that, Mr. Speaker, and it is a question for us to determine whether under the present state of affairs that we have no waiting list in Pennsylvania, and the gentleman attended a meeting at which we were both present, heard the statement that there is no waiting list; whether it is more useful to have these buildings available for tuberculosis patients which we do not have in Pennsylvania or to have them available for our wounded soldiers and sailors who are serving the nation.

Mr. COHEN. Is the gentleman familiar with the fact that this waiting list which we had at one time has been distributed among the various hospitals in the Commonwealth, so that their patients might be near the source of contamination?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I don't know whether that is true or not, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I don't know whether or not this is just a bit of exposition of hate, or don't care, or just a continuation of a policy, "I never did care, I don't ever care about the tubercular patients in Pennsylvania."

I can well remember in the past several years when plans were afoot to build the Butler Sanatorium and other hospitals for this dread disease, that the now majority party set up a great hue and cry. I sort of feel that this is the easy way out for the state in the future to divest itself of its great responsibility. I should be very happy if the control of tuberculosis had reached such a point that it had entirely stopped spreading or was on the down grade, but when eminent medical authorities only recently stated that tuberculosis is on the up grade, then I feel that the Commonwealth ought to do a lot of hard thinking before turning it over to any branch of the government or surrendering it to any other purpose. I can well appreciate the tender feeling of the gentleman on the other side, and I can agree with him too that institutions must be prepared to receive back wounded soldiers, sailors and marines, but these institutions must also be ready and available to take care of the soldiers on the production line; they also must be treated, they also must be cared for.

I can now understand why one of the other eleven Democratic points was turned down. We asked the Governor and we asked the committee representing both the House and the Senate to take up the question of health in our war centers and the common health of war workers in general. We were turned down flat. I can now understand the reason why the administration would not take progressive action on that point, because they were taking regressive action, as this bill before us indicates.

I am sure the administration doesn't want to be bothered with tough problems; it is a tough enough problem to take care of the favorite few without taking care of the health of the many. This bill is a tough enough problem, and this bill together with the amendments inserted by the Senate is just another step in the wrong direction.

I think that in the dying days of this session we ought to step very carefully and go very lightly, and not give up that great asset of the Commonwealth in the treatment of its unfortunate, unless we are prepared now with plans to take care of those whom we are dispossessing and for whom we are not making provision. I think this legislation should not pass, and I think the administration rather owes it to the people to give them a definite statement, a definite stand on the question of health, especially in war areas. I think it should be done without hesitation, should be done forthrightly and quickly, and if it is not done the administration must stand indicted for being utterly neglectful of the health of the people.

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, I certainly will take issue with the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Cohen. In the first place I think if he will take the time to investigate this situation he will find that it was upon the request of the Federal government that this hospital was made available, with its resources to the Federal government for hospital purposes. Secondly, I think if he will take the time to investigate through the Department of Health he will find also that there are at the present moment beds available for tubercular patients in Pennsylvania. During the time of the Democratic regime in Pennsylvania, during the great building program under the General State Authority at an expenditure of sixty-five or seventy million dollars, when we passed over the highways of Pennsylvania and passed over many of our public institutions we saw the name of a very familiar character in Pennsylvania who seemed to be reaping great benefits from contracts with the General State Authority.

I think this is the wrong time to bring up that question. These buildings were erected, it seems to take care of the friends and contributors to their party under the program of the General State Authority, and to say now that we of the majority party in Pennsylvania are not fulfilling our duties to the people of Pennsylvania and that we are not carrying out a program for the betterment of the health conditions in Pennsylvania is not being sincere.

I think also that the gentleman is insincere when he says that under the Federal program in taking over these hospitals we are not taking care of those who need hospitalization as far as tuberculosis is concerned in the Commonwealth. Certainly the gentleman from Philadelphia knows that during the Republican administration of Governor James we spent millions of dollars more for a health program in Pennsylvania than had been expended during the former Democratic administration. As far as the Republican party is concerned, we will always meet the challenge, and we will continue to take care of the people of Pennsylvania, whether they are on relief, wherever they need that care and hospitalization. We are going to stand by and never let it be said that we, the Republican party in Pennsylvania, have let the people down.

I want to state further, as far as this hospital is concerned, there may be need and there may be a time when we will even have to give up more of our public buildings for hospital purposes, and if that is so and it is for the cause that we leased the Butler Sanatorium to the Federal government, for the hospitalization of our wounded boys that will come back from fronts all over the world where they are fighting to preserve democracy and the nation that you and I enjoy here tonight, it is worthwhile to do everything we can to speed and enact legislation to help to acquire those buildings, and I feel if we do that our time and our energy and any money that it may cost the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania will be well spent.

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I did forget to mention the uncle of the gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Lovett.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair appreciates the fact that Mr. Lichtenwalter covered a lot of territory.

Mr. SARRAF. Mr. Speaker, this was presented to us by the leader of the Republican Party, but in all sincerity, with reference to the sick of our state back in 1939 and probably the year before there were two great institutions built in the western part of our state. One was the Butler Sanatorium for tuberculars and the other was the Psychiatric Hospital built near the University of Pittsburgh. The Butler Sanatorium never received a patient all through the entire administration; there wasn't enough money to operate it yet we came in here and heard of the balanced budget and the moneys left over.

The Psychiatric Hospital was only opened three months before the last general election, and until today only the operating force and the people who see the ward chairmen received jobs. If you call that humanitarian treatment of the sick of our state, and then make a great speech wherein the boys who are returning from the front are to be taken over and taken care of by one of our institutions, which by the way, has never been opened, I don't think I could sit in this House and say that the people in this state, especially west of the Allegheny mountains have been properly taken care of with reference to state aid.

I am not here to condemn this action, but I do condemn the action and the neglect of the tubercular patients in spite of the fact that your health authorities in the state claim that there are no waiting lists. I cannot dispute that because I don't have the figures, but I do know that during the days of the Earle Administration there was a tremendous list, and as a physician I know that in all probability those who were not cared for by the local institutions, those who were not cared for by the general hospitals, that were not cared for by them, in all probability are dead.

You cannot sit here and gloat because there is no waiting list in 1943. There was a waiting list in 1937, 1938, 1939 and 1940. This is a delicate problem, gentlemen. It is a valiant cause to turn these facilities over to the government for our war victims, I assure you, but remember, as our leader stated, we will have to take care of those ill in industry and those who are on the local front right here. I think the state should look into the matter and not pass it off gently and say this is O. K. because the state turns it over to our government for the boys that are coming back.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, I really want to be sincere in my statements here. I say to you that I sat in this House in 1939 when I saw one of the Members from my county, and possibly some of you Members remember, when he brought a man with him and sat him over on this side of the House, who was dying of tuberculosis. It didn't take long to find time or a place to get that man into a hospital when we brought him here to Harrisburg and set him on a chair here. They soon found a place.

They can talk about waiting lists. I was just informed by one of my own colleagues that he has been trying for one year to get a man into a tubercular sanatorium without success. I also want to be fair and say to you men that within the last week I had a particular case of my own in which a man in my legislative district was stricken with this disease and was cast out by the people with whom he was boarding, and was transferred down into Allegheny County to a nephew or some relation,—his nearest relation,—who refused to house this man and brought him back into my district on Sunday morning and placed him on the front porch of the boarding house.

Now, gentlemen, that particular community tried to place that man somewhere when he was placed on the front porch on a Sunday morning. He was taken to the hospital in that particular community, with the understanding that he would only be allowed to stay there two days.

I admit that we got in touch with the Department in Harrisburg and the man was placed in a sanatorium within two days, but my friend here says he has been trying to place a man in a sanatorium one year without success. I say to you that I think we should hesitate, although the cause may be good, in giving up this institution for our wounded soldiers. Let us stop to think, let us find out whether there are waiting lists. We realize that under the Earle administration the sanatoriums were built. They were built because of the depression that came on then, and the health of our people had certainly fallen to a very low level; our tuberculosis sanatoriums were crowded and we admit it. Let us hope that we don't find that same condition and have to have Members of the Legislature bring men into the halls of this House in order to wake up the people here to do something about the sanatoriums. Let us not wait until that day comes; let us hesitate right now and investigate and find out whether or not we are in a position to turn over to the Federal government an institution which was built and which was intended to be used for that particular type of case. Gentlemen, let us think before we pass this piece of legislation, and protect the people of the state.

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to reply to the statements of the gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Lovett. The gentleman talks of these very needy cases, tubercular cases, and their being unable to receive the proper relief and hospitalization. I want to say to him, following up my previous remarks, that we as the Republican party in Pennsylvania are not going to let the people down. I am sure if he will present these cases, if they are worthy cases and deserving of hospitalization, that they will receive proper attention from the Department of Health of Pennsylvania.

I do not think that it is fair to say that they have not received proper attention or proper hospitalization. If he will present the names of those people, I am quite confident that they will receive whatever is needed for relief and whatever they feel might be necessary. Certainly in the enactment of this bill we are not asking for anything that is not worthy of the consideration, not only of this House but of the people of Pennsylvania, for the boys that are fighting for us at the front.

Besides that this bill will allow the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to acquire these properties from the General State Authority. There is a great deal of confusion today because of the various institutions being owned by the Commonwealth, and then buildings adjacent to them being owned by the General State Authority.

The gentlemen on the other side should take the time to look into the matter and find the red tape and all that must be gone through in the matter of changing equipment from one building to another, from a building owned by the Commonwealth into a building owned by the State Authority,—and there were many small buildings put up by the General State Authority—there is no possible way under existing law that this can be done without this bill. Therefore, I ask the entire membership of the House to vote for this bill.

Mr. THOMPSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise to comment on this bill because I am definitely interested because of my profession. I am in the healing arts, and I certainly know just what has happened to the people in Philadelphia and I know of several concrete cases that I could offer, and I might offer names. I have a case that goes to the Philadelphia General, and it is there recommended that this individual should return and find some committeeman who would recommend this individual to go to a hospital. Without going into a long drawn out speech, we have found some politician who could recommend this individual to go back to the hospital, although it was a reputable physician who recommended the case, and the individual had a certificate to go to the hospital.

I don't know whether you appreciate that this hospitalization is no more than a racket, and like most of the rackets we have in Philadelphia you must go through a politician. I think it is most damnable that we stand here and holler from the high heavens of the goodness of everything and still we know of cause and effect. Inasmuch as we know the cause and effect we do nothing about the cause, neither do we try to treat effect. I think it is damnable that we sit here and lose our time and holler about what we are doing for the people when we know we are not doing anything. We are only making a mockery of the whole thing and we have made a mockery of the whole thing so long that the people are sick. They are sick because they know there are so many hypocrites that they can point to the truth, they point up here and read "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."

There are such things that have happened here in the House, as Mr. Brown said. We fought the last war and we didn't have any peace, and why should we expect it out of this? I think we should come to our senses, we should deal on the basis of common sense as to what we are actually doing and what we are not doing, because I think this is the greatest faker since 1937. I think we have done more things that are damnable than have happened to the people in a hundred years. We might be able to forgive ourselves but we may not be able to forget our God, because those who say they worship, those who say they are honest, have sat here and voted on everything that is damnable, everything that is unholy, everything that is untrue. Why should we sit here and say we are going to give to the people who have not been able to protect themselves the chance of really living.

I cited one particular case, and I would like to carry you on. My friend Mr. McMillen gave to the House the story of the three bulls, and I was hoping he would give us a shovel and a broom, so that we could really shovel the bull that has been given to us during this session. If he doesn't have the means, I would contract to furnish the shovel and the broom that we might clean it up, because I think the best thing we have had in this session is certainly the three bulls. I am willing to go along with the question, but not as you have presented it, because I would like to do a real service to the people of Pennsylvania. I think a bill of this nature certainly deserves the serious consideration of this House. There are people who are going to suffer, not only today, but tomorrow and on and on until we get down to business. Since we have no program and we are going to close up, I should like to say God help America unless we do better than we have so far.

Mr. IRVIN. Mr. Speaker, I happen to know about tuberculosis. I spent thirty months in a tuberculosis sanatorium, and I can testify to the fact that the reason we do not have many cases now is because of the fact that during Governor James' administration a great director of Health tried his best to protect the people of Pennsylvania through X-ray. Through that medium the number of tubercular cases was not only cut, but substantially cut. If the public would only realize the value of X-rays in the treatment of tuberculosis,—there are many clinics throughout the state that will do it at a minimum cost, and if money is not available they will do it free. In that way they will eliminate tuberculosis completely.

Mr. THOMPSON. Mr. Speaker, I happen to know Mr. Irvin, my colleague from Philadelphia, and I wouldn't like to say anything to hurt his feelings, but I would like to say that if I were as active as Mr. Irvin and knew as much as he knows about tuberculosis, having had the misfortune of really contacting that particular bacillus that causes tuberculosis, I would do a little something about getting on the microphone and tell Philadelphia that we have people down in City Hall that spit anywhere, spit all over City Hall, spread the disease and don't care who catches it. In the city of Philadelphia if you want something you go down to City Hall where they spit on the sidewalls, they spit on the floors, they spit anywhere, because they are privileged characters to do anything to spread the disease where they see fit to spread it. I am telling you because I am one of the taxpayers that tries to mail my taxes down to City Hall so that I won't have to go down there and catch it.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk return the same to the Senate with information that the House has passed the same with amendments in which the concurrence of the Senate is requested.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of Senate Bill No. 344, as follows:

An Act to further amend Clauses (c) and (f) of section three of the act approved the first day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 1168) entitled "An act to protect the right of employees to organize and bargain collectively creating the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board officers of the State government and courts providing for the right of employees to organize and bargain collectively declaring certain labor practices by employers to be unfair further providing that representatives of a majority of the employees be the exclusive representatives of all the employees authorizing the board to conduct hearings and elections and certify as to representatives of employees for purposes of collective bargaining empowering the board to prevent any person from engaging in any unfair labor practice and providing a procedure for such cases including the issuance of a complaint the conducting of a hearing and the making of an order empowering the board to petition a court of common pleas for the enforcement of its order and providing a procedure for such cases providing for the review of an order of the board by a court of common pleas on petition of any person aggrieved by such order and establishing a procedure for such cases providing for an appeal from the common pleas court to the Supreme Court providing the board with investigatory powers including the power to issue subpoenas and the compelling of obedience to them through application to the proper court providing for service of papers and process of the board prescribing certain penalties" including persons subject to the National Labor Relations Act in the definition of "employer" and defining the term "labor organization"

Section 1 Clauses (c) and (f) of section three of the act approved the first day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 1168) entitled "An act to protect the right of employees to organize and bargain collectively creating the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board officers of the State government and courts providing for the right of employees to organize and bargain collectively declaring certain labor practices by employers to be unfair further providing that representatives of a majority of the employees be the exclusive representatives of all the employees authorizing the board to conduct hearings and elections and certify as to representatives of employees for purposes of collective bargaining empowering the board to prevent any person from engaging in any unfair labor practice and providing a procedure for such cases including the issuance of a complaint the conducting of a hearing and the making of an order empowering the board to petition a court of common pleas for the enforcement of its order and providing a procedure for such cases providing for the review of an order of the board by a court of common pleas on petition of any person aggrieved by such order and establishing a procedure for such cases providing for an appeal from the common pleas court to the Supreme Court providing the board with investigatory powers including the power to issue subpoenas and the compelling of obedience to them through application to the proper court providing for service of papers and process of the board prescribing certain penalties" are hereby amended to read as follows

Section 3 Definitions When used in this act * * *

(c) The term "employer" includes any person acting directly or indirectly in the interest of an employer but shall not include the United States or the Commonwealth or any political subdivision thereof or any person subject to the Federal Railway Labor Act [or the National Labor Relations Act as amended from time to time] or any labor organization (other than when acting as an employer) or anyone acting in the capacity of officer or agent of such labor organization

* * * *

(f) The term "labor organization" means any organization of any kind or any agency or employee representation committee or plan in which employees participate and which exists for the purpose in whole or in part of dealing with employers concerning grievances labor disputes wages rates of pay hours of employment or conditions of work but shall not include any labor organization which by ritualistic practice constitutional or by-law proscription by tacit agreement among its members or otherwise denies a person or persons membership in its organization on account of race creed [or] color or political affiliation

Section 2 The provisions of this act shall become effective immediately upon its final enactment

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. COHEN, Mr. Speaker, this bill is really not fair to the members, because it is a technical lawyer's bill, and the chances are that the Members would be in just as much of a quandary as a jury with one or two lawyers getting up to debate the bill, but I think it would be unfair if at least the argument was not made.

This is an amendment to the State Labor Relations Law. It seeks to amend certain provisions and strike out certain provisions of the act. I will read a short statement I have on the bill. As I said before, I do not expect you to understand too much of it because it has a lot of technical lawyer's jargon.

This bill would amend the State Labor Relations Act, clause (c) of Section 3, in the definition of "employer." The amendment would strike out the phrase "or the National Labor Relations Act." The purpose accomplished would be to let the State Labor Relations Board decide whether or not the employer comes under the State or National Act.

Striking out reference to the National Labor Relations Act would leave the State Act worded so there is no reference to the National Labor Relations Act, as if it did not exist, although there would still remain, in the definition of "employer", reference to "the United States or the Commonwealth or any political subdivision thereof or any person subject to the Federal Railway Labor Act."

Why these parts of the definition of "employer" should remain, under the National Labor Relations Act coverage is stricken out, does not appear in this bill.

Certainly every employer and his employees ought to know under which labor relations act they are covered, should an industrial dispute arise, so it may be settled as quickly as possible, and without interruption of production or creation of hard feeling.

But changing the definition of "employer" does not relieve the situation. In twilight zone cases only the final settlement counts. The fact that somebody rushes to the State Board with a case clearly involving interstate commerce does not prevent the other party from taking the case to the regional office of the National Board where it belongs.

The way to take care of any such case in the twilight zone is for the two parties to come to agreement as soon as possible, not only as to which Board should be asked to take jurisdiction, but, if possible, come to agreement in genuine collective bargaining and not go to either Board.

The real question which should be considered in regard to the proposed amendment is whether it will help toward collective bargaining and prevention of industrial disputes. It looks as though it might hurt rather than help.

Record of the National Labor Relations Board proves that it has used the National Act to cut down difficulties between employers and employees and has proved that agreement by civilized collective bargaining is far better than letting differences between employers and employees sink into industrial warfare.

The National Labor Relations Act covers the very largest number of employers and their employees in Pennsylvania, because they are engaged in interstate commerce. No good purpose can come in letting the State Labor Relations Board, by amending the State Act, be encouraged to inch along into the jurisdiction of the National Board.

Especially would no good purpose be served by striking out the language in the State Act referring to the National Act, and thereby making it seem that there is no National Act, so the State Board could go ahead on its own.

That might result only in more confusion and hard feeling

The real trouble for much of whatever difficulty there is lies in the fact that the 1939 session of the General Assembly altered the State Act so it does not resemble the National Act. Employers of necessity could be confused, employees confused likewise, and delayed from coming to quick agreement with their employers.

The real remedy for this trouble is to bring the State Labor Relations Act back into its original shape, before the 1939 disturbing amendments, and once again conform with the National Act, thereby giving employers and employees the same square deal.

To bring this necessary change about we have introduced House Bill No. 339.

We are asking the members of this House to vote down Senate Bill No. 344, and, instead, vote for House Bill No. 339.

I would say, Mr. Speaker, that if we are to give both labor and industry, both employer and employee a clear pattern of law to cover their industrial relations and their industrial disputes we should have the state act conform as closely as may be to the national act. It should be a joint enterprise in legislation so that in no case should there be any confusion as to the form or type of remedy to be sought. If we attempt to set up a system which is totally different from the national system, we are going to confuse many cases on which we are never certain—and lawyers never agree, and I make the suggestion that since there comes under the National act a so much greater percentage of employers and employees, we should seek to conform to that act, and not mutilate the state act in the hope that some day the state act can be made to go farther. There was legislation introduced to accomplish that purpose, but like many other bills it never saw the light of day in committee. There is no complaint about that, but I hope that we do not stray further from the proper procedure in industrial disputes so that it becomes unreasonable and slips from the minds of employer and employee alike. I ask, therefore, that this bill be voted down. Let us go along the same path in industrial dispute legislation.

Mr. WALTER E. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, the reasoning of the gentleman from Philadelphia is practically perfect. I disagree with him only on this fact. The gentleman has properly stated that this is a lawyer's bill, and I agree with him. The only point at issue is this, that in the determination of these questions the Labor Relations Board has found a number of jurisdictional questions presented, not by one side or the other but by both, depending upon the particular situation and held up the determination of the facts in many cases to the detriment of both parties.

As the law is now the State Board is required to pass upon the question when raised as to whether or not it has jurisdiction, and in more than one case has this situation arisen, where the State Board has denied its own jurisdiction in the case and felt that it was a matter of Federal jurisdiction, and in the very same case upon appeal by the other party, the Federal Court said it was not a Federal case, it was one for the State.

We are only removing by this amendment that seeming no man's land that has existed in so many cases where we were saying to the State Labor Board, it is not up to you to attempt to determine what the jurisdiction of the Federal Board is. If anybody has a question about the Federal Board—and by the way the Federal Board and the appellate courts are the supreme authority—hereafter if anybody wishes to raise that question, they must raise it in either the Federal Board or the appellate court, and not in the State. When a case goes up to Federal Relations the State Board will now say to anybody that brings that case, whether it be employer or employee, that it is not their province to decide the case on its jurisdictional merits, it is their province to decide it on its qualitative merits and will ignore any dilatory practice when raising questions of jurisdiction, whether it be employer or employee, but will attempt to reach a decision on the merits of the case.

It further says to either party, if you want this case determined, take it to the proper authority, which is the Federal Labor Relations Board.

This discussion, as the gentleman from Philadelphia has pointed out, is important to nobody but lawyers, but those of you who were here will recall that in the Child Labor legislation the state said, we haven't jurisdiction, and the Federal government said we haven't jurisdiction. It has been a wrangling subject in the state, and it has been a wrangling subject in labor relations. Cases have been delayed so long by one party or the other taking it to one court or another to determine the question of jurisdiction that by the time the question of jurisdiction was decided it was entirely moot. Under this amendment, I submit that we are telling the State Board, no longer shall you delay by deciding the question of whether you have jurisdiction. We are telling them go ahead and decide the case, and if somebody doesn't like your jurisdiction let them take it up with the Federal Labor Relations Board. There have been a number of cases where the case was taken up and the question decided and the people have agreed by compromise to a decision and have settled their differences in employee relationship, and this particular bill encourages that sort of settlement of disputes. I have absolutely no hesitancy to recommend to every Member of this House, whether he be employer or employee, to vote in the affirmative on this bill, because I believe this will solve a lot of questions, as a lawyer might say, settle your differences out of court, compromise and be men about it and don't stand on what the public might think are dilatory legal methods.

I have no hesitancy, I say, Mr. Speaker, in urging that the membership vote in the affirmative on this bill in an effort to eradicate from labor relations all legal questions.

Mr. MORAN. Mr. Speaker, very briefly I want to tell you that organized labor is absolutely opposed to this bill.

On the question recurring,

BILLS ON FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of Senate Bill No. 85, as follows:

A Joint Resolution making application to the Congress of the United States to call a convention for proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States prohibiting the imposition of conditions upon grants of moneys and rebates of taxes in certain cases

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby resolves as follows

Section 1 The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby makes application to the Congress of the United States in accordance with the provisions of Article V of the Constitution of the United States to call a Convention for proposing the following amendment to the Constitution of the United States

Resolved by the Convention for proposing Amendments to the Constitution of the United States called by the Congress of the United States pursuant to application of the Legislatures of two-thirds of the several States That the following Article is hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the United States which shall be valid to all intents and purposes as a part of the Constitution when ratified by the Legislature of three-fourths of the several States

Article

Section 1 All grants of public moneys to the several states or political subdivisions thereof shall be outright and without condition except as to the public purpose for which they shall be used Congress shall not make any law providing to any State or to the people thereof any rebate refund or payment by way of taxes or otherwise except in the exercise of powers delegated to the United States by the Constitution Any State through its proper officers may enforce the provisions of this Article by injunctive process

Section 2 The Secretary of the Commonwealth shall transmit certified copies of this resolution to the President of the Senate of the United States and to the Speaker of the House of Representatives of the United States and to the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives of the Legislature of each of the other forty-seven States of the United States

Section 3 The provisions of this resolution shall become effective immediately upon its final enactment

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, when Senate Bill 85, Printer's No. 475 was on third reading yesterday the gentleman from Somerset, Mr. Hare, and myself, with the consent of the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, amended the bill so it would appear in better shape on final passage. We have deleted from the bill the matter concerning the invasion of states rights, leaving the contents of the bill undisturbed as to the general purposes of the bill. The Members on this side of the House are not in accord with the general purpose of the resolution to be submitted to Congress. However, in view of the democratic process as to amendments to the constitution, we are going to vote for the bill because we believe in following the fundamental democratic processes.

Mr. HARE. Mr. Speaker, this joint resolution passed by the Senate and now before the House for final vote has been brought about by a condition that has been recognized not only in our own state but all through the nation. This resolution would enjoin Congress to call a convention so that they might allow the states in the United States to further consider an amendment to the constitution to the effect that all grants of public moneys to the several states and the political subdivisions thereof shall be outright and without condition. This problem has been a glaring one and is one that will be given now to Congress through our votes for consideration, and I would ask Members of the House to vote "aye" on the resolution.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. LEONARD. Mr. Speaker, I would like to direct a little attention to this important bill that is before us now. This bill is known as Senate Bill No. 347. I have named this bill the drunken truck drivers' bill, and I cannot conceive an employer wanting this bill because of the risk and the premiums on insurance for protection that it would cost him. Then who in the world does want this bill? The truck driver doesn't want this bill. We by passing this bill are violating the laws that we fought so hard to put on the statute books to preserve life and to cut down the number of people that are being killed through the years. So to be sure that you will understand that the truck driver doesn't want the bill, I want to read into the record the following letter from the General Teamsters, Chauffeurs and Helpers Local No. 249, of Pittsburgh:

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 21, 1943.

Mr. Louis Leonard,
1217 Strahley Place,
Pittsburgh, Penna.

Dear Sir:

We have information that Senate Bill 347 is now pending.

This bill is a detriment to the trucking industry. It is contrary to the principles of highway safety and indiscriminately exonerates all types of offenders without regard to their qualifications as drivers. It also precludes the development of a higher skill and qualifications among commercial operators.

Trusting that you will do all in your power in opposing this Bill, and thanking you

Your very truly,

(signed) LEO B. STEHLE

Secretary-Treasurer—Local No. 249

Members of the House, this is from a man who is on that truck. He doesn't want this bill. I am asking you in his name and in the name of the people to vote this bill down.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, may I interrogate somebody on the other side of the House who knows something about this bill?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. The gentleman may proceed, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, do I have to take him? Let's be fair. Does the gentleman know whether or not the truckers of Pennsylvania are opposed to this bill?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Just what does the gentleman mean when he says the truckers of Pennsylvania?

Mr. LOVETT. The truckers' union of Pennsylvania.

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, to the best of my knowledge they are not particularly interested in the bill. I held it on the calendar for a considerable length of time awaiting their reply. They are afraid the provisions of the bill are so broad that it might reflect back on their particular union if it passes. However, Mr. Speaker, in the 1941 session I sat in conference on a bill containing very, very similar provisions to this in which the truckers' union was very much interested, and we had splendid cooperation at that time.

Mr. LOVETT. That is, this bill is somewhat like that other bill, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I would say that the provisions are just about the same, outside of the matter of commercial drivers' license fees.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, haven't we defeated this bill once during the session?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. We have not, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, I was misinformed and I beg the gentleman's pardon.

Does the gentleman not feel that the truckers' association or the truckers' union of Pennsylvania is opposed to this particular act?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I do, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LOVETT. That is all. Mr. Speaker, I appeal again to the fairness of the gentlemen over there who are workingmen and have the interests of the workingmen at heart and the truckers, since you have heard from your Floor Leader that the men who are affected by this bill are opposed to it. I ask you to defeat this bill.

Mr. WEISS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the Majority Floor Leader.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Lehigh permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. WEISS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to know from the Majority Floor Leader whether if this bill should become law, it would not be possible for a man who has been convicted of drunken driving to receive a license?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. That is correct, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. WEISS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to know whether, under this bill, if a man or a commercial operator were convicted of involuntary manslaughter, it would be possible for that man to receive a limited operator's license under this bill?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. That would depend on which type of vehicle he would be operating at the time he is convicted.

Mr. WEISS. Mr. Speaker, if this commercial operator were operating a truck at the time it happened or if he operated a machine at the time it happened would he be allowed to continue to drive?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman in his interrogation has not properly distinguished between the two types of vehicles. Under this bill there is one provision, if he is the operator of a truck, and another provision, if he is the operator of another type of vehicle. I would ask the gentleman to take time to read the bill. If he does he will not ask that question.

Mr. WEISS. If an operator is convicted of involuntary manslaughter, Mr. Speaker, would he still be allowed to receive a limited license under this bill?

Mr. LICHTENWALTER. That is correct, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. WEISS. Mr. Speaker, I would just like to point out to the Members of this House what kind of people you are licensing when you allow a man who is convicted of involuntary manslaughter, to operate a truck. By passing this bill you would be licensing such a driver.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

Section 5 This act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, these bills ceding jurisdiction to the United States are different from the usual type of bill in that we herein attempt to reserve to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania or its political subdivisions whatever rights of taxation may be constitutionally reserved. This is a problem confronting the states and their political subdivisions since World War No. 2 brought about many new problems. The Majority Whip, the gentleman from Cambria joins in this statement.

Mr. WALTER E. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, insofar as it is possible to debate on a bill to show legislative intent, I should like to join with the gentleman from Allegheny for myself and on behalf of the majority party in his statements.

We think the language is clear, but insofar as it is a new subject we realize that it is subject to interpretation, and insofar as it is possible for the statements coming, one from the minority and one from the majority to indicate our intent, I should like my remarks to help in the matter of interpretation to the effect, that we do not intend by this law to cede forever under all circumstances our right to tax by the state and political subdivisions thereof land ceded to the Federal government. Insofar as it is possible hereafter to tax any such property, we on behalf of the Commonwealth want to retain that right, and if the property hereafter is used for private gain or under any circumstances under which this state has a right to tax, we intend to retain that right to tax and not by this bill cede or give up the right of the Commonwealth to impose such taxes.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

RESOLUTION INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Mr. MURRIE. RESOLUTION No. 73.

In the House of Representatives, May 7, 1943.

Whereas, Under existing laws every incorporated Cemetery or Burial Ground Company is required under its Charter and the laws of this Commonwealth, to set aside 10% of the gross amount of funds received from the sale of burial lots for the purpose of providing perpetual care, and the preservation of the grounds; and

Whereas, the 10% set aside for perpetual care is required under the laws of this Commonwealth to be invested in legal investments; and

Whereas, it has been variously charged that some Cemetery organizations are not setting aside the said 10% for perpetual care, and are not investing the funds in legal investments; and

Whereas, no reports or information is made available in many cases to the owners of the various burial lots purchased from such Cemeteries; and

Whereas it is desirable that the facts be ascertained to determine whether there is compliance with the laws of this Commonwealth and the provisions of the Charters under which such Cemetery Association operate, and whether remedial Legislation is necessary; now therefore be it

Resolved that the Joint State Government Commission undertake an investigation of the operation of organizations, companies or associations incorporated or unincorporated, owning, operating or maintaining Cemeteries or Burial Grounds, to ascertain whether the laws of this Commonwealth are being complied with, and 10% of the gross receipts are set aside for perpetual care, and whether the funds are being invested in legal investments as required under the laws of this Commonwealth; and be it further

Resolved that a report be made to the General Assembly together with recommendations for such Legislation as the report will indicate.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

CONGRATULATIONS

Mr. SKALE. Mr. Speaker, I understand that the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. O'Dare, just received a telegram from Mr. Witkin congratulating him on his splendid floor work during this session and hoping that he will continue to carry on his duties in that manner.

Mr. SALUS. Mr. Speaker, I have heard many complimentary remarks about our friend O'Dare from Philadelphia. I am convinced that he is the most popular man who ever held a seat in the Legislature.

If I am interfered with by anybody from my own delegation I am going to knock him down, old as I am, and in the hope that I won't be charged with plagiarism, I am going to recite a poem, one that I should recite from memory, but I made some little changes in it—I hope this poem will be a matter for our records.

Hon. James O'Dare, may his tribe increase
Awoke one night from a deep dream of peace
And saw within the moonlight in his room
An angel writing in a book of gold
Exceeding peace had made Jimmy O'Dare bold
And to the presence in his room he said
What writest thou—the vision raised his head
And with sweet accord answered
The names of those who love the Lord
And is mine one, said Jimmy
Nay, not so, replied the angel
Jimmy spoke more low
But cheerily still and said
I pray thee then
Write me as one who loves his fellow men
The angel wrote and vanished.
The next night, it came again with a great awakening light

And showed the names whom the love of God had blessed
And lo, Jimmy O'Dare's name led all the rest.

I want to say to the Members of the House furthermore, believe me, gentlemen, that is how Jimmy O'Dare stands in his own community. He is a lover of his fellow men, and we are proud of him, and we hope you all are too.

PURCHASE OF PRIVATELY-OWNED INTRASTATE TOLL BRIDGES WITH PROCEEDS OF BOND ISSUE URGED

In the House of Representatives, May 3, 1943.

The people of Pennsylvania, by a majority vote of the electorate have approved the purchase by the Commonwealth of the few remaining, privately-owned intrastate toll bridges in the State and have authorized the issuance of ten million dollars of bonds for that purpose;

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth in accordance with that mandate of the electorate, has enacted legislation establishing the procedure by which the necessary bonds can be issued and the bridges can be purchased;

Both the mandate of the people and the intent of the General Assembly have been nullified by failure to complete the process of acquisition of these toll bridges by the Commonwealth;

The continued operation of these toll bridges by private owners prevents Pennsylvania from having a completely

free system of highways and bridges, and compels millions of highway users to pay more than a million dollars a year in toll-taxes with no prospect of the bridges ever being freed; therefore, be it

Resolved, (if the Senate concurs), That the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby requests and urges the proper executive officers of the Commonwealth to take immediate and appropriate action by which all privately-owned intrastate toll bridges in Pennsylvania can be purchased with the proceeds of the authorized bond issue without delay, to the end that they shall become free bridges just as soon as the revenues from tolls have been sufficient to retire the bonds and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this Resolution be sent to the Governor, the Secretary of Highways, the Auditor General and the State Treasurer.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the House of Representatives accordingly.

PRESENTATION TO THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR

Mr. WADE. Before making a report, Mr. President, I feel it incumbent upon me to make a few remarks, if that is agreeable to the Chair and to the members of the Senate.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Cumberland may proceed.

Mr. WADE. This is a report, Mr. President, from the Committee on Improvements and Changes in the Senate, and this committee, while exercising a guiding influence over all of the members of the Senate during the Session, realizes a workman is only as good as the tools he has to work with.

We have from this committee, Mr. President, a special tool that we wish to present to the Presiding Officer, the Lieutenant-Governor. It is called an Anti-New Deal gavel. I have it in my hand to give to the Lieutenant-Governor of the Commonwealth, but before doing so I want to tell him and the members of the Senate that this beautiful oak handle comes from an oak tree which grew in Jefferson county and is a gift with the good wishes of the Senator from that district, Senator Henry I. Wilson. Senator Henry I. Wilson hoped he could get the handle long enough so that the Lieutenant-Governor could reach possibly to the head of the Chairman of the Appropriations Committee. At the same time Senator Taylor suggested the handle should be long enough so that the Lieutenant-Governor would not hit himself on the head; and at the same time, when we have free bridge legislation and other things of that sort, it was the thought of Senator Henry I. Wilson that the handle might be long enough to reach even to the head of the Chairman of the Highways Committee.

This gift also has an iron pin that holds the handle in place, a product of the iron mills of good old Lebanon county. Down there in the Pennsylvania Dutch country, they have a peculiar way of making iron, so it will last over the years—charcoal iron, I am reminded.

The wood filler comes from Chester county. Down there they have a peculiar way, again I say, of smoothing over the rough places and filling them up, so there is no danger of rotting in the days to come.

The glue comes from Mercer county and is the gift of Senator Thomas. Out there they have a peculiar way of making things stick.

The varnish comes from Bucks county and is the gift of Senator James.

The shellac which covers this beautiful instrument comes from Delaware county. Shellac, you know, is frequently used to make things water-proof; shellac is not only used on wood, it is used on stock certificates or anything else to keep water out of the stock of a water company.

The wedge, Mr. President—that is a most important thing because out in McKean county they have a peculiar way of putting a wedge in, and it is the gift of Senator Tom Wilson.

The sandpaper with which the surface was smoothed came from the good old county of Butler.

The head, needless to remind you, is walnut grown in the good old county of Cumberland. I might also say this gift was designed by the second Senator from Cumberland, Mr. Weaver.

With this gift there is another article, a green piece of slate, which came from the quarries of Lehigh County, and is the gift of Senator Tallman. On this beautiful piece of slate are inscribed the names of all the members of the Senate. I am not so sure you can read them, Mr. President, and to further make that point let me just tell the members of the Senate a little story.

This is a story of a friend of mine who was visiting down in Arkansas, and there he stopped at a gas station and while the process of filling his car with gasoline was going on, the gas station attendant said to my friend "Who was elected president this last time?" "Why," my friend said, "don't you get the newspapers?" "Yes," he says, "we still get the newspapers, but these . . . Republicans won't read them to us any more."

I think perhaps you can read—you are Lieutenant-Governor of the Commonwealth.

Mr. President, this presentation would certainly not be complete if I did not tell you a very important part of it. The insurance that covers this mallet and this piece of slate comes from the well known firm of M. Harvey Taylor and Son of Dauphin County, and in the event you do not have an insurance policy, and may not understand the complete benefit of the grand coverage embodied in it, I am going to read just a part of this policy, and ask that you read the entire policy before you pay the premium—I will not state publicly the amount, but the policy says "Yet to be paid."

The policy reads in part as follows:

"Does insure His Excellency and most Imperial Highness, the then and now Lieutenant-Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, John C. Bell . . . for the duration and six months thereafter. The company hereinbefore mentioned undertakes, underwrites, underestimates and will hereby attempt to understand that this insurance covers one gavel saturated with oak and cured with campaign promises, all while in the possession of and in the right or left hand of the aforementioned Excellency who by his own admission has handled all previous gavels to the satisfaction of all parties concerned with the exception of Republicans, Democrats and employees of the Senate. It is hereby warranted that coverage will be doubled and premium will be paid—double also—by your colleagues, if his Excellency will make the best use of said gravel, i. e. tap himself on the head with same for the express purpose of inculcating in his cranium, wisdom which his present colleagues allege and aver are now missing. It is further agreed that should said gavel be used on the cranium of any Democratic Senator, any premium hereinbefore charged will be immediately remitted and a credit for that amount set upon the Company's books for the benefit of the Republicans. Any mention in this form guaranteeing coverage on the gavel, no matter how slight, is hereby abrogated, voided, nullified and made of no effect if at any time, the assured aforementioned in this policy should make a claim for same.

"Signed and sealed this sixth day of May, 1943."

In witness thereof—Mr. President, I repeat—In witness whereof, This company, through its duly authorized representative, the Honorable M. Harvey Taylor, hereby invalidates all provisions of the contract.

Senator Kephart suggest an amendment that Senator Taylor be the first to use the gavel—he says on the Lieutenant-Governor—but I think he wants to amend that.

Mr. TAYLOR. I think I will decline that honor—I do not want to ruin the gavel on the "bell."

The PRESIDENT. Members of the Senate, this is the first opportunity I have had to make a speech and I certainly am not going to miss it. I can not tell you how very much I appreciate this useful and at the same time beautiful gift, but I can not understand how some of you gentlemen would want to present it to me after the way I have treated you and after you know how effectively I am going to use it in 1945.

I just want to add that the policy which you have heard read is a typical Harvey Taylor insurance policy. The only thing I missed, while considering the Calendar, was who supplied the baloney in this mallet.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, in true customary Republican fashion the gentleman from Cumberland,

Senator Wade, distorted the story about the hills of Kentucky. As I understand that story, a Republican leader in that particular community, seeking votes for Willkie in the Willkie-Roosevelt campaign, went to an old gentleman in the hills of Kentucky, a well-informed Republican in that particular area, and asked him how he stood on the election and the gentleman said, to the astonishment of this Republican, seeking his vote, "What election," He said, "Don't you know that there is a presidential election and Wendell Willkie is running against Franklin D. Roosevelt?" The fellow answered "What is the matter with that fellow Lincoln, I thought he was doing a good job."

The gavel presented to the Presiding Officer reminds me of another story of a Republican. It appears that a Republican member of Congress was invited to talk to a crowd in Pittsburgh some years ago. He talked at a banquet for an hour and a half and finally the distress of the audience was being manifested and somewhere in the crowd a Democrat very plaintively said "Mr. Chairman, I wish the gentleman would end his speech." The toastmaster, rather anxious to relieve the speaker of embarrassment, picked up the gavel and brought it down with a mighty thud, but unfortunately he hit the gentleman sitting next to him, who fell over in his chair; appreciating the plight of his victim the toastmaster leaned down and said, "My good friend, I am terribly sorry, is there anything I can do for you?" The fellow looked up with a kind of a weary, snickering smile and said, "Hit me again, I can still hear him."

The PRESIDENT. Gentlemen, may I again tell you how much I appreciate these gifts and say that the orations and the stories that went with them have been unequalled so far in this Session. Thank you.

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Last night, Mr. President, in your absence, I made a statement which I am sure you will regret not having been here to have enjoyed, and in connection with that statement I read some figures with regard to increases in pay rolls. In view of the fact that those figures dealt with the department which is the subject matter of this bill, I should like to repeat them for the record and give them as a basis for our objection to this bill.

We all remember that the Department of Commerce was established during the James Administration and it was supposed to create great activity in the state and keep business from emigrating out of the state, and it was to advertise the state far and wide.

This department, in the four years that it has been in existence, as I stated yesterday, has increased salaries from $42,000 to $57,000, in one group, and in this planning board from $17,500 to $22,620.

This department, established to advertise the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, spent in advertising the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, $179,000 as against total salaries of $122,000; in other words, a total of over $313,000, sixty per cent of which was spent for salaries.

There is in my opinion no function this department ever took over which could not have been covered by the Department of Internal Affairs. As a matter of fact, as I now recall, when this bill was up for discussion originally, creating this Department, I called attention to the phraseology of the Constitution which set forth the duties and obligations and powers of the Department of Internal Affairs.

With the set-up in this bill, in the major portion, the powers which were assigned in the Department of Commerce bill were all included in the Department of Internal Affairs. I see no reason, with this record, for continuance of the Department of Commerce.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—29

A majority of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk return said bill to the House of Representatives with information that the Senate has passed the same with amendments in which the concurrence of the House is requested.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate resumed the consideration of House Bill No. 1111, as follows:

An Act providing for the payment by the State Treasurer of one-half of the amount of the tax on premiums paid by foreign casualty insurance companies to the treasurers of the several cities boroughs towns and townships and for the payment thereof into police pension funds and in certain cases into the Municipal Employees Retirement System and in certain other cases into the State Employees' Retirement Fund for certain purposes

Section 1 On and after the first day of January one thousand nine hundred and forty-four and annually thereafter there shall be paid by the State Treasurer to the treasurers of the several cities townships towns and boroughs within the Commonwealth one-half of the net amount received from the two per centum tax paid upon premiums by foreign casualty insurance companies. The amount to be paid to each of the treasurers of the several cities townships towns and boroughs shall be based upon the return of said two per centum tax upon premiums received from foreign casualty insurance companies doing business within the said cities townships towns and boroughs as shown by the report made to the Department of Revenue. Each city borough town or township receiving any payment from the State Treasurer hereunder shall forthwith pay the amount received into the police pension fund of such city borough town or township where such police pension fund exists or is hereafter established if the said police pension fund is duly recognized as such by the council commissioners or supervisors as the case may be of such city borough town or township. In any city borough town or township where the police elect to join the Municipal Employees' Retirement System created or hereafter created by law the amount received by the treasurer of the city borough town or township as herein-before provided shall be paid into the Municipal Employees' Retirement Fund and shall be credited to the municipal account of said fund for the benefit of the police of said city borough town or township who are members of said Municipal Employees' Retirement System. In any city borough town or township in which there is no police pension fund or in which city borough town or township the police have not elected to join any such Municipal Employees' Retirement System the amount received by the treasurer of the city borough town or township from said tax shall be forthwith paid into the State Employees' Retirement Fund and shall be credited to the accumulated deductions of members of the Pennsylvania State Police in proportion to the respective amounts contributed by such members during the period said tax was collected. Warrants for the above purposes shall be drawn by the Auditor General payable to the treasurers of the several cities townships towns and boroughs in accordance with this act whenever there are sufficient funds in the State Treasury to pay the same.

Section 2 All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, "the other day, as the members of the Senate will probably recall, House Bill No. 1111 went over in order because some of us had grave doubts as to its constitutionality. We all agree we owe a tremendous debt to the police of the Commonwealth because they are on duty twenty-four hours a day protecting the happiness and lives of our citizens. Therefore, we had no desire to sell them a gold brick; we have no desire to pass this bill if it is not going to do them any good.

Time is now getting late and this is the last day of the session, but we have reason to believe that this bill, and all other acts of this nature, stand a very good chance of being sustained in the courts. I just want to say that, Mr. President, to let the members of the Legislature and the rest of the citizens of the Commonwealth know our attitude, that is, that we always have been and are very much aware that this measure will probably do much to promote the security of a group of citizens to whom we are very much indebted.

I understand that the House receded and therefore the final printer's number of the bill is the report of the Committee of Conference, so it is not necessary for it to lie over for printing.

SENATE ADOPTS REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE ON HOUSE BILL No. 92

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. HOMSHER. Mr. President, I move that House Bill No. 135, on third reading, entitled:

An Act to further amend section one thousand two hundred five A of the act approved the eighteenth day of May one thousand nine hundred eleven (P. L. 309) entitled "An act to establish a public school system in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania together with the provisions by which it shall be administered and prescribing penalties for the violation thereof providing revenue to establish and maintain the same and the method of collecting such revenue and repealing all laws general special or local or any parts thereof that are or may be inconsistent therewith" authorizing temporary increases in compensation of professional employees of school districts and the discontinuance of such temporary increases without the consent of such employees be recommitted to the Committee on Education.

Mr. CROWE. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. COX. Mr. President, I would like to interrogate the Chairman of the Committee on Education.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Lancaster permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. HOMSHER. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. COX. Will the gentleman from Lancaster tell me his reasons for moving that House Bill No. 135 be re-committed to the Committee on Education.

Mr. HOMSHER. The reasons for the bill being re-committed, Mr. President, are as follows: the provisions in this bill are amply protected in House Bill No. 816, which we passed last evening. In consultation with a deputy attorney general and the sponsor of this bill, it was agreed this bill would fulfill no useful purpose and, therefore, should be recommitted; otherwise, if we passed this bill, the Attorney General would recommend to the Governor that this bill be vetoed and, therefore, it would be useless to have this bill pass on that basis.

Mr. COX. This is not an attempt to make a speech, Mr. President, and I do not propose to do so, I merely wish to state that I differ with the reasons given by the gentleman from Lancaster. I felt this bill had a useful purpose originally and I know that it still does.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

It was agreed to.

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I move that House Bill No. 408, on third reading, entitled:

An Act to further amend section two hundred and two of, and to add section four hundred and fifty-three to, the act, approved the ninth day of April, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine (P. L. 177), entitled "An act providing for and reorganizing the conduct of the executive and administrative work of the Commonwealth by the Executive Department thereof and the administrative departments, boards, commissions, and officers thereof, including the boards of trustees of State Normal Schools, or Teachers Colleges; abolishing, creating, reorganizing or authorizing the reorganization of certain administrative departments, boards, and commissions; defining the powers and duties of the Governor and other executive and administrative officers, and of the several administrative departments, boards, commissions, and officers; fixing the salaries of the Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, and certain other executive and administrative officers; providing for the appointment of certain administrative officers, and of all deputies and other assistants and employes in certain departments, boards, and commissions; and prescribing the manner in which the number and compensation of the deputies and all other assistants and employes of certain departments, boards and commissions shall be determined," creating a departmental administrative board in the Department of Public Instruction known as State Real Estate Board, and fixing qualifications and compensation of members be recommitted to the Committee on State Government.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. FARRELL. Mr. President, I know this bill is going to be recommitted; I knew that before I came up here. I usually go along with Caucus action. I guess our Caucus is grateful to Mr. Shapiro for moving that House Bill No. 408 be recommitted, but before this bill is recommitted, I just would like to say a few words, because I do not want to see this bill and House Bill No. 527, which is a companion bill, buried in one grave without someone saying a good word for them.

Nobody can make me think this bill is not a step in the right direction. It is a step to govern the real estate boards of Pennsylvania. I have failed to meet one real estate broker who is reputable and has a standing in his community who does not favor this bill. The Philadelphia Real Estate Board favors this bill one hundred per cent, and a great many members of the Bucks County Real Estate Board favor this bill. I have letters from reputable real estate brokers all over the State endorsing this bill.

This bill proposes to set up a board that is more capable of running this business than our Licensing Bureau at Harrisburg, which I think has twenty-seven other branches whose licensing they supervise. We have other boards that govern their own bodies and, Mr. President, I say very sincerely I think it is a step backward to not give these folks the right to govern their own business.

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, I am in favor of this bill and I will vote against its recommitment, because from bitter experience I learned last winter how much we need improvement in the field of real estate brokerage. Nobody is more qualified to pass upon the ethical activities of some of the real estate brokers than a board consisting of real estate brokers. I can illustrate my contention by citing the case of Donahue versus Ferguson, which was heard in Philadelphia on November 3, where the examiner, who listens to many cases involving real estate transactions and what not, had very little knowledge of the issues involved in the case, and in my opinion to set up a board of this kind would be a step in the proper direction.

Therefore, I shall vote against recommitment of this bill.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, this bill is unnecessary. I am grateful to the Republican Caucus in agreeing that this bill should be recommitted, because this bill is an illustration of what happens here year after year.

First some gentlemen come here and they want a board in the Department of Public Instruction, or somewhere else, where they can have their business regulated, and after they get their business regulated they get like every other group—the ins want to stay in and keep the outs out—and they try to strengthen their own powers and jurisdiction.

There is nothing in this bill which can not be accomplished under existing law. The only difference between this bill and the existing law, in my opinion, is that it creates a separate board instead of being handled in the department in which real estate broker's licenses are handled.

In addition to which, as I read the bill originally—I do not know whether it has been amended since—it provides that this new board shall be appointed by the Governor from a membership list furnished by the Real Estate Board.

It seems to me we have not yet reached the time when we want to grant to groups of people in business the right to select the body that governs them.

I have confidence in the body that has charge of this matter now. I do not think there has been any need for any change in the situation and, therefore, I was opposed to these bills from the beginning.

Some of my best friends are engaged in the real estate business in Philadelphia and they have spoken to me about this bill and they have told me they shall feel very badly if I opposed this bill, but I will have to take that consequence, because I really believe there is no necessity for this bill. In addition to that, what I object to in these bills now is that they were taken up on three separate occasions in the Committee on State Government—I hope I am not breaching any confidence, and I do not think I am, when I say these bills were defeated by unanimous vote in that committee.

In the last days of the Session these gentlemen come up here, and when everybody else was doing their best to try to end this Session, they were able to bring these bills out on the floor. That in my opinion does not make for good legislation. If there is such need for this kind of legislation we ought to be entitled to study it for perhaps one or two years, during which time there will be ample protection against realtors who are not decent, respectable business men, and then by the time the next session comes around this matter can have been studied and if there is a need, bills can be introduced and passed at that time, but in my opinion there is no need now, and certainly no need in the last few days of a session, to pass a bill so far-reaching in its effect as this bill.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, through the public press and public commentators during recent years we have heard of the danger of bureaucracies and commissions and so forth. I believe in direct action; when I see something I think is bad I do not talk about it, I act, and I believe the time has come when we here in this Senate should quit delegating powers and duties of this Legislature to boards and commissions. Were we to set up this real estate board, immediately the Legislature would practically lose all control over that particular business.

I do not think there is any man here, who has served for any length of time, who will deny that as soon as a board or commission is created it becomes allpowerful and acts as the sponsor or guiding arm of the Legislature in determining what is good or what is bad for that particular business.

I can easily remember when a barber control set-up was established in the state of Pennsylvania, where barbers came under a board; they set up rules and regulations and promoted examinations to qualify barbers which would have taken a college graduate to pass in order to become a barber. We all know the only purpose behind that bill was to encourage and help certain barbering schools in the state of Pennsylvania, so that persons who wanted to become barbers would not be allowed to become barbers unless they attended a certain school.

That is very true also in the beauty culture field. In order to become a hair curler now you have to have as much knowledge, experience, background and skill as a lawyer or doctor has to have. Recently this Senate passed a bill intended to remedy a serious situation in the beauty culture field, where, because of conditions surrounding the closing of schools, and the war industry demand for young girls, it is impossible to get licensed beauticians to head shops. That bill passed this Senate unanimously, went over to the House, and, because of the arbitrary attitude of the Chairman of the committee, was pickled in committee. Incidentally his latest move was to call a committee meeting at ten-thirty in the morning, for the purpose of having the members of that committee consider a bill which they had considered, and at ten thirty the committee was there but the chairman was not. Mr. President, that was done because the board over there, made up of licensed beauticians, stopped the passage of that bill. As the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro, has so well said, the ins wanted to keep the outs out.

We know that is exactly what happened in the mortician field, and every other board in the state of Pennsylvania, set up for the sole purpose of making it difficult for some one to get into that particular line of endeavor.

I have heard so many times here on the floor of this Senate statements made against organized labor, because of the demands of certain pressure groups.

Just recently a bill passed second reading, and today probably will pass third reading, a bill that destroys practically the entire apprenticeship proposition of coal miners. The miners were not invited into the conferences, except in the last instance they were invited to try to save something, and I want to say that the gentleman from Clearfield, Senator Letzler, and the gentleman from Cambria, Senator Haluska, did an admirable job in trying to save something for the miners. That is just exactly what we are up against in this bill.

The Insurance Commission, under its set-up in the State of Pennsylvania, operates the Legislature when it comes to insurance bills. All that and everything else that is done here is done exactly by the passage of bills such as this one we have before us.

I think it is really unfair. I do not blame the gentleman from Cumberland, Senator Wade, for wanting the president to use that big gavel on me. I am lucky the handle is not long enough to reach me, and I can assure the gentleman from Cumberland, Senator Wade, I will not attack his insurance bills by any speech I make when we get in power.

Mr. President, I am trying to tell the Senate of Pennsylvania the proper thing to do is to send this bill back to committee. I am trying to tell the Senate of Pennsylvania the time has come when it, as a membership body, should perform the duties for which it was elected. If there is anything wrong in the field of real estate brokerage, then introduce legislation with the consent or the advice, if you please, of the real estate brokers of the state, and we will do our best to pass bills to take evils out of their business that may be in it, but do not authorize the forming of some board to sit here in Harrisburg, to come down here and get twenty or twenty-five dollars a day for expenses, just to sit around here and think up schemes to keep other people out of the real estate business.

Over ninety per cent of the real estate brokers in the state of Pennsylvania got into the real estate business by way of apprenticeship under some insurance agent or some real estate agent and I think they have done a good job. If there is anything in the business that is wrong, let us pass a law to correct that, but I for one, so long as I am a member of this body, will never again vote to create a board or bureau or commission taking proper duties away from the Legislature and giving them to private interests.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays, were required by Mr. Jaspan and were as follows, viz:

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, in giving my reasons for voting "no", I wish to state I am happy to know that the lower House of this General Assembly has the courage and foresight to stand by its amendments. They have given us this measure with certain amendments and they are of vital importance to every man in this Commonwealth. I was very fearful, after we passed this bill, that the House might recede from its position and I certainly glory in their courage and in their sincerity. By the way, it is a Republican controlled House; and it goes to prove once again that right will rule. They have the courage to stand by their guns and give to the aged and to the poor what rightfully belongs to them, and I am disappointed very much to see action in this Chamber contrary to their wishes.

Mr. President, I am willing to sit here for a month or a year to uphold the House in its action and its position on this measure.

HOUSE RECEDES ON ITS AMENDMENTS NON-CONCURRED IN BY THE SENATE TO SENATE BILL No. 345 prescribing certain penalties," further regulating the right to, and procedure on, appeals to court.

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, on page 3 of House Bill No. 518 it states teaching the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania will "emphasize the good, worthwhile and best features and points of the social, economic and cultural development, the growth of the American family life, high standard of living of the United States citizen, the privileges enjoyed by such citizens, their heritage," and so forth.

I think all of us are in favor of teaching history in our schools. However, to vote upon a bill which all of us, no doubt, will be compelled to vote in favor of, and laying down just what shall be taught in our public schools, I believe is unfair to the teachers of our public schools. We all know there are some very good and worthwhile features of our social and economic development, but we also know there are some very bad conditions in our economic problems. We also know we do not have a balanced economic system. We also know, although we have political democracy we do not have economic democracy.

The way this bill reads, any teacher who would point out to her pupils some of the faults of our social conditions, some of the faults existing in our economic conditions, according to this bill that teacher might be and could be dismissed as a teacher. I think it is unfair to put that in a bill in which we ask that the history of the United States be taught. I believe it should be taught right; I believe the boys and the girls in the schools should be taught that there are a lot of things that should be corrected in our system and should not be allowed to exist. Why teach falsely? We all know legislation has been influenced for years and years by special interests.

It is unfair to say we can only point out to the pupils the good things, because we will never correct the bad things unless we show pupils in schools it is their duty as citizens to correct some of the evils existing in our economic and our social life; and in Pennsylvania there are lots to be corrected.

We know in our economic system in Pennsylvania the negro does not have a fair chance. We all know in our economic system, not only in Pennsylvania but in all the other states, the negro may go to school and become educated but he can not take his place in our economic system.

According to this bill we must teach our pupils that our economic system is perfect, that there is no want, there is no underprivilege—yes, and as we progress in our economic system we make more poverty. It is unfortunate that in a good bill this clause should be put in, and I hope it was not the intent to have that placed in the bill, to permit some school boards to dismiss teachers for teaching the truth.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I have great respect for the feelings and sincerity of the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Holland, when he discusses a subject of this kind, and I want to say to him that I, too, have been trying for some time to understand the purposes of this bill, because I remember, from the little schooling I did have and from what I have learned since I have been out of school, I understand they teach in the schools all of these things. What troubled me, as the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Holland, stated, was the emphasis placed on the evil things to the exclusion of the many good things.

I have been brought up to believe there are good and bad things in all religions and I make it my business to inquire into all kinds of religions by visiting churches and synagogues, as well.

I was a little bit concerned about this bill, but I was glad to see included in it the word "privileges." In other words, the bill gives the right to these teachers and advises them to instruct pupils as to their privilege and one of the privileges is to protest against things you do not like. One of the privileges they should teach is the privilege granted by our Constitution that we have the right to think for ourselves and speak for ourselves, and if any school children doubt their right to speak, all they have to do is to come here and they will see that right has been exercised very frequently—sometimes there may be little interruptions here and there and now and then—mostly now. There has been some difficulty in years gone by in expressing one's opinion but as time goes on that difficulty lessens. Sometimes the difficulty of expressing an opinion appears on one side and sometimes it appears on another side; sometimes it appears in one side of the Senate and sometimes it appears on the other, as the political complexion changes.

I want to say to the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Holland, I agree with what he said—I agree because I do not understand the purpose of the bill, but I do feel there is no harm in this bill. I think it is inaccurate because I think all the things said here should be done are being done but I think all of us might be misunderstood if we voted against this bill and, therefore, I am going to vote for it.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, after listening to the statements of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro, and also the statements of the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Holland, I am torn between two loves so I think I shall have to vote "present."

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I challenge the position of my colleague from Westmoreland; he can not vote present—he must vote either "Yes" or "No" unless he has a direct interest in the bill.

Mr. DENT. Since I am a little crippled this week I can not accept the challenge of my friend, so I will vote "Aye".
